EARL BUTZ
After Resigning

Resignation Of Butz Can't Silence Furor

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl L. Butz, having resigned as agriculture secretary because of the furor raised by a racial slur he made against blacks, says he still wants to campaign in the farm belt for President Ford.

Butz, who had tears in his eyes when he announced his resignation Monday at the White House, said he is determined to "continue to work tirelessly" for Ford's election.

Meanwhile, United Press International reported that Butz held secret meetings three years ago to advise subordinates and other government officials how to avoid hiring blacks, according to the Los Angeles Times.

Under Butz, the Times said, the department engaged in ignoring and in some cases circumventing federal laws to avoid employment of blacks.

According to the Times story, Butz held two secret meetings in November, 1973, with cooperative extension service personnel from seven states to help them get around hiring blacks.

White House spokesman Ron Nessen had no comment when asked if Ford intended to accept Butz' offer to campaign. But James A. Baker III, the Ford campaign manager, said he would discuss the idea with Butz.

"Let's face it," Baker said, "a lot of agriculture people out there support him."

A source close to Butz said Butz may be used by the Ford Campaign Committee's Farm Division. "I think you may hear a good deal from him. There will be a lot of platforms that he can take either through the committee or as a private citizen," the source said.

A number of farm spokesmen expressed regret over Butz' departure and said he was not a racist. Butz had referred to blacks as "coloreds" and said they "only want three things ... first, a tight (female sex organ); second, loose shoes; and third, a warm place (to defecate). That's all."

His comments, made in a conversation with John Dean and singers Pat Boone and Sonny Bono aboard an airplane in August, were published in Rolling Stone and New Times magazines.

Butz apologized publicly for the remarks and, according to the White House, was severely reprimanded by Ford on Friday. The White House said Ford had not demanded Butz' resignation, and Nessen refused to say what Ford might have done if Butz had tried to remain on.

Ford, in accepting the resignation, told reporters Monday that it "has been one of the saddest decisions of my presidency." Describing Butz as a "close personal friend," Ford said he felt the secretary was "wise enough and courageous enough to recognize that no single individual, no matter how distinguished his past public service, should cast a shadow over the integrity and good will of American government by his comments. For that reason I have accepted the resignation of this decent and good man."

Undersecretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel became acting secretary.

After Butz resigned, Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter said that "the way this whole embarassing and disgusting episode was handled by President Ford shows a continuation of lack of leadership. Instead of making his decision based on what was right and best for the country, he very carefully waited until he assessed public opinion polls to see what was right politically."

Butz, 67, agriculture secretary for the past five years, said he received no pressure from the White House to quit.

A few hours before the resignation was announced, Ford was quoted as telling black workers at a plant here that Butz was "merely telling a story." Butz said he was repeating a "50-year-old joke" that he maintained did not represent his own view of

Who Will Be Next Lion Head Coach?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Jim Carr? Fritz Shurmur? Ken Shipp? Bob Gibson?

Was one of those assistants in line for the Detroit Lions head coaching job today? Or was it to be someone from outside the organization?

William Clay Ford, owner of the National Football League team, was to announce the successor to Coach Rick Forzano today at a news conference.

"The Detroit Lions announced Monday that Coach Rick Forzano submitted his resignation as head coach and it was accepted by owner William Clay Ford," the team said in a terse statement late Monday.

A team spokesman said Forzano would hold a news conference and afterwards an announcement would be made on his successor.

There were no indications as to whether Forzano was asked to resign by Ford, who had issued him a win-or-else ultimatum several weeks ago. The Lions then left Atlanta to save Forzano's job.

Forzano said his resignation as "strictly voluntary" and had nothing to do with Ford's statement. "I respect Mr. Ford as the owner of the Detroit Lions, as a person, and hope he will always be my friend."

Ford had indicated General Manager Russ Thomas was tied to that ultimatum, but Thomas did not join Forzano in resigning. Said one Lions' player: "I can't imagine Russ Thomas resigning."

Forzano said he first thought about resigning last week around Wednesday.

"I felt the football team was deserving of a coaching change at this time," Forzano said. "There are problems that I, Rick Forzano, could not correct and felt that maybe they could be corrected if I were no longer coach."

Forzano refused to elaborate on what the problems were.

Detroit's 24-14 upset loss Sunday to previously winless Green Bay was the straw that broke the camel's back for Forzano. The Lions could have gotten back into the Central Division race in the National Conference with a triumph, but instead fell to 1-3. The losses were to division opponents Chicago (10-3), Minnesota (10-9) and Green Bay.

State, Counties Get Flu Vaccine

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Public health officials say every county in Michigan should have at least a share of the state's supply of swine flu vaccine by the end of the week, as distribution of some 900,000 doses of the vaccine began Monday.

The vaccine, representing just over 20 per cent of the state's allocation of 4.2 million doses, arrived here Friday for shipment to each county health department, said John Orris, swine flu program coordinator for the state Public Health Department.

Orris said the county agencies will announce when and where swine flu shots are available. He said the program probably won't be in full swing until the week of Oct. 18.

The chronically ill, those with cardiovascular or pulmonary diseases and persons over 60 will be first in line for the shots, Orris said.

"The Berrien county health department expects to receive 4,100 doses of swine flu vaccine this week, according to Mrs. Joan Eberly, director of nurses for the county department. About 2,500 doses of the county's vaccine shipment are for the elderly and high risk, according to Mrs. Eberly, and 1,600 doses are for the general public. The Berrien department is scheduled to begin clinics to inoculate the elderly and medically high-risk Oct. 25 and for general inoculations Nov. 3, she said.

The 4.2 million doses allocated for Michigan are enough for about 70 per cent of the eligible population. But if more people want to get the voluntary shots, more vaccine will be shipped in, Orris said.

Colorado's Sacred Cow

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Colorado's sacred cow is a bulky, meandering, cud-chewing beast that frightens people, tramples gardens and munches corn and lettuce oblivious to protests. She looks just like any other cow, but has more freedom than most. But she has more freedom to roam than household pets, or humans who stray onto another's property. Capt. Phil Battany of the Boulder County Sheriff's department says it is legal for a cow to wander up to 50 miles from home — "All we can do is shoo them off the highway. If you hit a cow, you're responsible for damages to the cow, but the cow's owner is not responsible for the damage to your car." He says there is little law officers can do, under Colorado's range law, which dates back to when the 100-year-old state was a territory. "People are afraid of cows, especially small children. The fellow who doesn't own any animals can't understand why he should have to pay several thousand dollars to fence in his garden to keep the cows out," Battany observes. "They'll really trample a garden and they like to eat the corn and lettuce," he adds.

Mobster Writes Hoffa Killed On Orders Of CIA

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Chicago underworld killer says former Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa was killed on orders by the CIA, then dumped into a junk car that was crushed and smelted, the Knight News Service reported.

Charles "Chuckie" Crimaldi, who calls himself a one-time killer for the Chicago syndicate, wrote about Hoffa in a yet unpublished, ghost-written book.

Crimaldi wrote that Hoffa was murdered for his involvement in a CIA plot to assassinate Cuban premier Fidel Castro, the news service reported.

Vera Glaser, a Knight columnist based in Washington, D.C., said the book, "Crimaldi: Contract Killer," is scheduled to be released late in October by Acropolis Books Ltd. in Washington. She said Crimaldi is living under a new identity after cooperating with federal authorities.

Crimaldi wrote that Hoffa was killed on orders from the CIA because he was the original liaison between the agency and the mob in a plot to kill the Cuban leader in the early 1960s. Ms. Glaser said in a Sunday column.

Ms. Glaser, who prefers that designation, said Crimaldi's book also contends the CIA was responsible for the shooting of Chicago gangland figure Sam Giancana.

Giancana was killed at his home last year, shortly before he was to testify before a Senate committee investigating CIA assassination plots.

Hoffa disappeared several weeks after the Giancana shooting. The body of John Rosselli, who also was said to be involved in the Castro plot, was found floating in an oil drum in Dumboing Bay near Miami last August.

"The same man that killed Motto (Giancana) took care of Hoffa for the same reason: he knew about the Castro plots," Ms. Glaser quoted Crimaldi as saying.

The columnist said the book describes an incident in Chicago when Giancana asked Crimaldi's boss, reputed loan shark Sam DeStefano, to kill Castro.

"I was tapped by some guys from the CIA," Crimaldi reported Giancana as saying. "I was promised special government consideration for a lot of aggravation that was coming my way."

In the book, Crimaldi said the plan called for him and DeStefano, who is now dead, to jump bail and go to South America. He said they would then be dropped on the Cuban coast and kill Castro. The two were promised special consideration from the government for the job.

Crimaldi said DeStefano eventually turned down the job, according to the book.

Ms. Glaser said the book was written with the help of John Kidner, a retired Air Force colonel and free-lance writer. She said Kidner is not convinced of Crimaldi's claims but is sure Crimaldi's underworld sources are authentic.

Boone Confirms Report Of Joke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Pat Boone says he "shuddered" when former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz told the derogatory racial joke that led to his resignation.

Boone said Butz told the "tasteless and offensive joke" to him and John Dean, one-time special counsel to former President Richard Nixon, last August on a flight after the Republican National Convention. Boone was a California delegate pledged to Ronald Reagan.

Boone confirmed on Monday that the conversation aboard the plane went as it has been reported.

But he said he felt it was unfair that the cabinet officer was forced to resign over a joke which he believes did not reflect Butz' true feelings.

"I shuddered at the time (the joke was told) because I knew John Dean was writing for Rolling Stone," Boone said. "I imagine (Butz) thought the story he told was unprintable."

Boone said he saw no evidence of a tape recorder and Dean was not taking notes, but he said, "He quoted me and others accurately."

Boone said he believed Butz' story was meant simply as a joke between two men on a plane.

"We are all guilty of repeating offensive stories," he said.

filed a lawsuit against the society in an attempt to force it to disclose the name of the new owners.

Judge McCauley said yesterday that he hoped that once the O'Connors learned the identity of the people they think have their dog, some type of out of court settlement can be made. If not, the judge continued, the suit would come to trial, with the court determining if the Humane society had followed the law in selling the dog, and if in fact the dog was really the O'Connors'.

The couple previously told society officials they would buy the new owners another husky. Judge McCauley also ordered that until a resolution of the case is made, the present owners will continue to have custody of Nyak, but that they may not sell or otherwise dispose of him.

Atty. Steve Sheridan of Saugatuck, who represents the O'Connors, said he was hopeful that once Nyak's new owners are found, a settlement can be made. He said he would meet with Atty. Douglas L. Callender, who represents the Humane society, within the next week to look over the shelter's records.

Callender refused in court yesterday to admit or deny that the Humane society ever had custody of the dog. Noting that Nyak had no identification, Callender said, "All we know is that a person found a dog and it may not have been their (the O'Connors') dog."

Sheridan said he has not been able to find any case quite like it in Michigan law.

In the meantime, Mrs. O'Connor said her children are praying nightly that their dog will come home.

"This is one of those cases judges wish they didn't have to hear," Judge McCauley sighed. "I wish I could assign it to another judge."

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

A Third Party Without Frills

Until a few months ago we had never heard of the Libertarian party and we have no large stock of information about its Presidential candidate, Roger MacBride, except that he inclines to the whimsical and pilots his own airplane, a DC-3, styled "No Force One," from stumping ground to stumping ground.

Neither do we know who his campaign manager in Michigan may be.

The Libertarians are on the ballot this November 2d, along with a gaggle of other splinter groups who won't get anywhere.

Basically, the Libertarians espouse a doctrine which goes back to the days of the Founding Fathers and Thomas Jefferson's credo that the best governed people are the ones least governed.

Its label could be described as radical conservatism or conservative radicalism when contrasted with today's relationship between the citizen and the government.

Georgia Shields, a 34-year-old systems analyst for Standard Oil of Indiana, who is running MacBride's campaign in Illinois, says the following things would happen in her state if the Libertarians gained control of the apparatus down at Springfield. Her proposals parallel what would transpire in Michigan since the two states are equally far down the big government road.

The state income tax would be repealed because it is considered a pocketbook made to be picked.

State aid to education would be reduced by one-third. The Libertarians believe this budget shrinkage would not reduce the educational output whatever. They would pay for the teaching of the 3 Rs in the morning hours and close the schools at noon. If parents wanted some curriculum enrichment for their youngsters, they could obtain it by the tuition system.

Mrs. MacBride who is attending night law school sees another dividend in that cutback. The free afternoons would give the youngsters time to work part time. The child labor laws, in her book, are just another device to prevent kids from learning the virtues of work.

Just about every one of the innumerable commissions, councils and bureaus working out of Springfield would be chopped off. Several of them relate to so called victimless crime, pot smoking being one oft cited example. If pot was decriminalized, there would be no need to continue Illinois' Dangerous Drug Commission.

Labor unions, in the Libertarian's eye, are all right for fraternal pensions, but all wrong as a government supported sole bargainer for all employees in a particular shop.

Except for the national defense, local police and fire protection, and controlling the money supply in the form of coins and currency, the Libertarians would take government out of the economy and personal lives.

Not even the deepest dyed Reaganite would go along sled length with the Libertarians because their recommendations stem from the family's self containment of the American frontier. Applied full force to an interdependent society and economy would result in chaos.

More to the point from an electioneering viewpoint, their thoughts will not draw many votes. Every American today, whether he knows it or not will admit to it, has a special interest of varying degree in the entanglement between government and the private sector.

The Libertarians being aware of that involvement realize their message will not install MacBride in the White House nor Mrs. Shields as lieutenant governor at Springfield.

What they are trying to do is to wake up the public to the danger of the involvement growing beyond what it already is.

British Labor Party Coming To Its Senses?

Perhaps the British pound would not have dropped to an all-time low — one-third of its post-World War II value — if earlier prime ministers had talked as frankly to their party members as Prime Minister James Callaghan has to his.

That Britain is approaching economic collapse if it does not mend its ways should be apparent to all but the blind. High inflation (currently 15 percent), lagging productivity, a growing imbalance in trade, rising unemployment and finally a sagging currency are the stepping stones to economic ruin. Britain has them all.

Even so, some people close to the scene cannot see. At the Labor Party conference in which Callaghan dropped his bombshell, leftist party members were busily engaged in their favorite pursuit — expanding the welfare state without regard to the cost.

Imagine the trauma when into their midst came their leader to tell them the charade was over. From now on Britain would have to sink or swim, and the way to save itself was through policies which would bring wages in line with their worth and provide greater incentives for industrial profits.

Such words are almost heresy to the British Labor Party, but that was not all Callaghan had to say.

"I did not become a leader of our party to propound shallow analyses and false remedies for fundamental economic and social problems," the Prime Minister said.

"Quite simply and unequivocally, unemployment is caused by paying ourselves more than the value of what we produce. This is as true in a mixed economy under democratic socialism as it is under capitalism or communism.

Wealth, Callaghan reminded the conference, had to be created before it could be distributed. In the last two years, he said, public spending had grown by 18 percent while gross domestic production had expanded only 2 percent.

That record, Callaghan said, is produced by living too long on borrowed time, borrowed money and borrowed ideas. The prescription for improved economic health was to help bring on an industrial recovery.

Strangely enough, the audience — composed largely of extreme left Laborites who had been promoting expanding welfarism at any cost — was silent during Callaghan's remarks but responded with an ovation when he concluded. It is possible that awakening to reality may not be as painful as many thought.

Work is scheduled to start this week on excavating for the new Statler-Hilton Inn on the northwest corner of the I-94 and M-139 interchange, Mark East, president of Inns Investment, Inc., has announced. The six-story Statler-Hilton will have 124 rooms in the initial phase of construction, expected to be open for business by early 1987, according to East.

Benton Harbor residents who want to live in the city's first low-rent, public housing project may apply now, it was announced today by Atty. Elden W. A Benton Harbor high school division of the Monday Musical club was organized yesterday afternoon at the school by Miss Marjorie Poundstone, under the auspices of the older club. It is planned to form a similar organization at the St. Joseph high school in the near future. The high school club is to be entirely apart from the Junior Monday Musical, which will be re-organized this year for just grade school children, it is announced.

Gallen — The annual street celebration of Halloween will be held again this year, and plans are underway for the gorgeous affair Saturday night, October 30.

— 75 Years Ago —

The next big improvement for the business portion of Benton Harbor will be, what is to Berrien county, a sky scraper.

Co. resume talks today on non-economic matters that snagged their settlement of a three-week-old strike.

Announcement of a tentative new accord for 170,000 striking workers in 22 states had been expected Monday, but sources said negotiations bogged down unexpectedly over secondary issues which could not be resolved despite a full day of intensive bargaining.

The sources confirmed that all major provisions of a new three-year accord — which will provide the industry pattern for 700,000 workers at the four U.S. carmakers — were put together over the weekend.

The principal gains include more paid days off, wage hikes of about three per cent a year, cash payments for retirees and an improved supplemental unemployment benefits (SUB) fund for laid off workers.

However, a UAW spokesman said that even though "all the centerpiece issues essentially are resolved, nothing is together until everything is together."

"We're hopeful we can put this together before too long," the spokesman added after talks recessed just before midnight Monday, the fourth consecutive late-night session. "We still have things to do and a number of differences." He added that bargainers for the union and nation's No. 2 automaker were to resume talks this morning.

The spokesman would not speculate if an agreement would be reached today, although he said he remained hopeful. Sources, who previously had been optimistic about a Monday settlement, backed off later in the day and declined to guess when an agreement would come.

Although details of the major provisions in the new agreement officially were not disclosed, sources confirmed that Ford has agreed to:

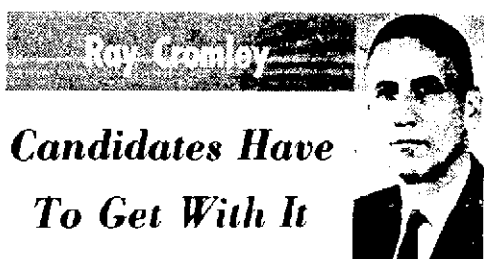

—Grant workers about a dozen additional days off at full pay — spread over three years — on top of the 33 days a year they already have. The union originally had sought 12 days off per year to create new job opportunities and offset a permanent reduction in the work-force.

—Continue the traditional wage hike of approximately three per cent a year, and continue the current cost-of-living (COL) formula. The average Ford worker now earns $6.88 an hour in straight wages.

—Grant its 38,000 retirees — who do not have COL protection — an additional cash payment, reportedly of about $600. In exchange, the union will help finance the payment by diverting future COL money that otherwise would go into worker's paychecks.

—Increase regular contributions to its SUB fund, which provides laid-off workers nearly 95 per cent of their takehome pay for up to a year, and provide additional cash guarantees should the fund be depleted by extensive layoffs in another recession.

—Provide skilled tradesmen an additional wage hike of about 35 cents an hour.

Candidates Have To Get With It

WASHINGTON — For all their claims, neither Jimmy Carter nor Gerald Ford has put the hard thinking into reducing unemployment, inflation and taxes we should expect of serious presidential candidates. They're advocating more of the quick fixes, grandiose programs and economic theories which have consistently failed.

Mr. Ford's theme, on the one hand, is steady as you go — which means in essence that if we wait the problem will go away. On the other hand, he relies almost solely on controlling the money supply, a one-pronged approach questioned even by Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board.

Jimmy Carter's proposals tend to smack of those blue-sky

stock schemes which flourish from time to time or fizzle out in generalities which make it all too clear he has not thought the problems through.

With the overall efficiency of U.S. industry growing at a snail's pace compared with its potential, with growing domestic shortages of raw materials for which our laboratories are not finding substitutes with sufficient rapidity, with our schools falling behind in teaching basic and intellectual skills required for industry and for life, we are clearly gradually moving into an economy in which heavy taxes, unbearable

unemployment and high prices will be the rule rather than the exception — permanently.

Which means we need less talk about sex and more from the candidates about how we are to insure that we will be able to earn our daily bread.

For there are critical steps the government can take. I have just come from a meeting of men and women from government, industry and the universities, where it was agreed that private business didn't need help to increase efficiency and to expand production so as to produce more jobs. What industry needs, they suggested most emphatically, was less counterproductive interference and red tape.

There is, they reported, no shortage of new ideas, or of men willing and anxious to expand and build. Nor shortage of capital. Only a fear to invest because of what the government is now doing to private business and apprehension as to what Washington would do next.

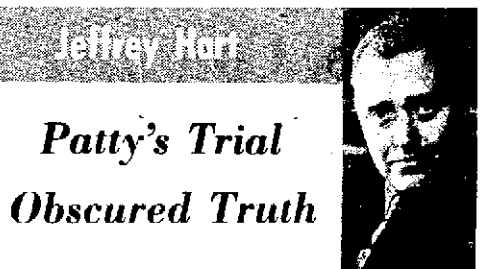

In the end, the reduction of unemployment, the increases in wages we need to meet the increasingly heavy costs of living and broadening the tax base to take some of the load from the shoulders of individuals and families must come from the government doing those things which help increase private production efficiency and not doing those things which discourage output and reasonable profits.

For profits, as noted above, are the pot we workers must dip into for our jobs, for increased wages and pensions.

Creating millions of temporary government jobs, as endorsed by Carter, doesn't get to the heart of the problem.

It's soothing to talk of tax cuts along with Mr. Ford. But reducing taxes without lowering spending bomeangs into inflation.

The candidates have got to get with it.

Patty's Trial Obscured Truth

The sentencing of Patty Hearst returns her temporarily at least to public awareness, and revives in me the sense that a large though complex injustice may have been perpetrated in her case.

I have read practically everything published on the SLA and on Patty because of my conviction that, bizarre as the whole thing was, it is also important. The most illuminating discussion of the affair, strange to say, may be found in the final chapter of Steven Weed's book, "My Search for Patty Hearst."

At the trial, he argues, the prosecution and the defense offered two opposite but simplified explanations for her behavior. The very process of the trial, encouraging such polarization, thus tended to obscure rather than bring out the truth.

The prosecution argued that Patty had simply joined the SLA, and now, understandably enough, was trying to deny it in order to avoid prison.

Defense Lawyer F. Lee Bailey, on the other hand, argued that Patty had been coerced. He thus tried to show, for example, that when she participated in the bank robbery, she did so because guns were pointed at her. Things that did not fit into the "coercion" thesis Bailey tried to explain as the result of fear instilled by the SLA.

Weed persuades me that the truth is more complex than the versions of both the prosecution and the defense.

Weed, of course, had every reason to be aware of what he calls "the dramatic disparity between Patty as she was before and as she was when captured." However, the "defense in particular wasted no time in bringing out its tailored version of an enormous white bow. Never mind that some might remember Patty bra-less, in a T-shirt, fist-clenched in a salute only one day before..." Weed argues that the defense would have been better advised to stress, indeed to rest its case on, the enormous change that had really occurred. He cites, among other things, the zombie-like cliches and spaced-out tones of her taped jail interview with her friend Trish Tobin soon after her capture.

Weed thinks, and I agree, that in the hands of the SLA, Patty underwent a process of personality destruction via terror: "The jury should not have been cheated out of having this shown to them."

Patty had gradually "become the robot-like student (of Emily Harris in particular)." The "full reality of Patty's having been psychologically overwhelmed; the precise nature of her dependence on the Harrises; Patty as a chain-smoking, parrotting, anxious and patronized 'pupil' — this never found its way into Judge Oliver Carter's "courtroom."

No doubt this is a much more frightening hypothesis than those offered by either the prosecution or the defense. Nevertheless, I think it has been established that under extreme circumstances the personality can actually break down and undergo mutation, at least temporarily.

Obviously this hypothesis presents great dilemmas from the standpoint of "free will" and "personal responsibility." Our laws assume the validity of those two concepts. Nevertheless, free will and personal responsibility belong to a more sane and humane world than the one created by Cingue, the Harrises, Mizmoon Solitsky, and the rest.

I myself would not like to be under the control of that crowd, any more than I would like to be isolated somewhere with Charles Manson and his jolly band; and I cannot say with any confidence how I would behave under such circumstances.

I do not know how the ordinary categories of the law can deal with this sort of phenomenon. Clearly, however, justice requires that the reality of Patty Hearst's nightmare experience be taken into account.

Jobless Return To GM Factory

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The General Motors Assembly plant here was back near peak operation today as 1,900 once laid-off workers returned to the plant. At the same time, thousands of others were turned away while seeking jobs.

The plant started laying off 23 months ago when the auto industry hit a slump, and 1,800 workers were idled.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

A Third Party Without Frills

Until a few months ago we had never heard of the Libertarian party and we have no large stock of information about its Presidential candidate, Roger MacBride, except that he inclines to the whimsical and pilots his own airplane, a DC-3, styled "No Force One," from stumping ground to stumping ground.

Neither do we know who his campaign manager in Michigan may be.

The Libertarians are on the ballot this November 2d, along with a gaggle of other splinter groups who won't get anywhere.

Basically, the Libertarians espouse a doctrine which goes back to the days of the Founding Fathers and Thomas Jefferson's credo that the best governed people are the ones least governed.

Its label could be described as radical conservatism or conservative radicalism when contrasted with today's relationship between the citizen and the government.

Georgia Shields, a 34-year-old systems analyst for Standard Oil of Indiana, who is running MacBride's campaign in Illinois, says the following things would happen in her state if the Libertarians gained control of the apparatus down at Springfield. Her proposals parallel what would transpire in Michigan since the two states are equally far down the big government road.

The state income tax would be repealed because it is considered a pocketbook made to be picked.

State aid to education would be reduced by one-third. The Libertarians believe this budget shrinkage would not reduce the educational output whatever. They would pay for the teaching of the 3 Rs in the morning hours and close the schools at noon. If parents wanted some curriculum enrichment for their youngsters, they could obtain it by the tuition system.

Mrs. MacBride who is attending night law school sees another dividend in that cutback. The free afternoons would give the youngsters time to work part time. The child labor laws, in her book, are just another device to prevent kids from learning the virtues of work.

Just about every one of the innumerable commissions, councils and bureaus working out of Springfield would be chopped off. Several of them relate to so called victimless crime, pot smoking being one oft cited example. If pot was decriminalized, there would be no need to continue Illinois' Dangerous Drug Commission.

Labor unions, in the Libertarian's eye, are all right for fraternal pensions, but all wrong as a government supported sole bargainer for all employees in a particular shop.

Except for the national defense, local police and fire protection, and controlling the money supply in the form of coins and currency, the Libertarians would take government out of the economy and personal lives.

Not even the deepest dyed Reaganite would go along sled length with the Libertarians because their recommendations stem from the family's self containment of the American frontier. Applied full force to an interdependent society and economy would result in chaos.

More to the point from an electioneering viewpoint, their thoughts will not draw many votes. Every American today, whether he knows it or not will admit to it, has a special interest of varying degree in the entanglement between government and the private sector.

The Libertarians being aware of that involvement realize their message will not install MacBride in the White House nor Mrs. Shields as lieutenant governor at Springfield.

What they are trying to do is to wake up the public to the danger of the involvement growing beyond what it already is.

British Labor Party Coming To Its Senses?

Perhaps the British pound would not have dropped to an all-time low — one-third of its post-World War II value — if earlier prime ministers had talked as frankly to their party members as Prime Minister James Callaghan has to his.

That Britain is approaching economic collapse if it does not mend its ways should be apparent to all but the blind. High inflation (currently 15 percent), lagging productivity, a growing imbalance in trade, rising unemployment and finally a sagging currency are the stepping stones to economic ruin. Britain has them all.

Even so, some people close to the scene cannot see. At the Labor Party conference in which Callaghan dropped his bombshell, leftist party members were busily engaged in their favorite pursuit — expanding the welfare state without regard to the cost.

Imagine the trauma when into their midst came their leader to tell them the charade was over. From now on Britain would have to sink or swim, and the way to save itself was through policies which would bring wages in line with their worth and provide greater incentives for industrial profits.

Such words are almost heresy to the British Labor Party, but that was not all Callaghan had to say.

"I did not become a leader of our party to propound shallow analyses and false remedies for fundamental economic and social problems," the Prime Minister said.

"Quite simply and unequivocally, unemployment is caused by paying ourselves more than the value of what we produce. This is as true in a mixed economy under democratic socialism as it is under capitalism or communism.

Wealth, Callaghan reminded the conference, had to be created before it could be distributed. In the last two years, he said, public spending had grown by 18 percent while gross domestic production had expanded only 2 percent.

That record, Callaghan said, is produced by living too long on borrowed time, borrowed money and borrowed ideas. The prescription for improved economic health was to help bring on an industrial recovery.

Strangely enough, the audience — composed largely of extreme left Laborites who had been promoting expanding welfarism at any cost — was silent during Callaghan's remarks but responded with an ovation when he concluded. It is possible that awakening to reality may not be as painful as many thought.

Work is scheduled to start this week on excavating for the new Statler-Hilton Inn on the northwest corner of the I-94 and M-139 interchange. Mark East, president of Inns Investment, Inc., has announced. The six-story Statler-Hilton will have 124 rooms in the initial phase of construction, expected to be open for business by early 1967, according to East.

Benton Harbor residents who want to live in the city's first low-rent, public housing project may apply now, it was announced today by Atty. Elden W. Butzbaugh, president of the Benton Harbor Housing Commission. The 94-apartment project, located on Conkey field off McCord street, will be fully completed by Christmas at a cost in excess of $1,000,000.

A Benton Harbor high school division of the Monday Musical club was organized yesterday afternoon at the school by Miss Marjorie Poundstone, under the auspices of the older club. It is planned to form a similar organization at the St. Joseph high school in the near future. The high school club is to be entirely apart from the Junior Monday Musical, which will be re-organized this year for just grade school children, it is announced.

Gallen — The annual street celebration of Halloween will be held again this year, and plans are underway for the gorgeous affair Saturday night, October 30.

The next big improvement for the business portion of Benton Harbor will be, what is to Berrien county, a sky scraper.

Co. resume talks today on non-economic matters that snagged their settlement of a three-week-old strike.

Announcement of a tentative new accord for 170,000 striking workers in 22 states had been expected Monday, but sources said negotiations bogged down unexpectedly over secondary issues which could not be resolved despite a full day of intensive bargaining.

The sources confirmed that all major provisions of a new three-year accord — which will provide the industry pattern for 700,000 workers at the four U.S. carnakers — were put together over the weekend.

The principal gains include more paid days off, wage hikes of about three per cent a year, cash payments for retirees and an improved supplemental unemployment benefits (SUB) fund for laid off workers.

However, a UAW spokesman said that even though "all the centerpiece issues essentially are resolved, nothing is together until everything is together."

"We're hopeful we can put this together before too long," the spokesman added after talks recessed just before midnight Monday, the fourth consecutive late-night session. "We still have things to do and a number of differences." He added that bargainers for the union and nation's No. 2 automaker were to resume talks this morning.

The spokesman would not speculate if an agreement would be reached today, although he said he remained hopeful. Sources, who previously had been optimistic about a Monday settlement, backed off later in the day and declined to guess when an agreement would come.

Although details of the major provisions in the new agreement officially were not disclosed, sources confirmed that Ford has agreed to:

—Grant workers about a dozen additional days off at full pay — spread over three years — on top of the 33 days a year they already have. The union originally had sought 12 days off per year to create new job opportunities and offset a permanent reduction in the work-force.

—Continue the traditional wage hike of approximately three per cent a year, and continue the current cost-of-living (COL) formula. The average Ford worker now earns $6.88 an hour in straight wages.

—Grant its 38,000 retirees — who do not have COL protection — an additional cash payment, reportedly of about $600. In exchange, the union will help finance the payment by diverting future COL money that otherwise would go into worker's paychecks.

—Increase regular contributions to its SUB fund, which provides laid-off workers nearly 95 per cent of their takehome pay for up to a year, and provide additional cash guarantees should the fund be depleted by extensive layoffs in another recession.

—Provide skilled tradesmen an additional wage hike of about 35 cents an hour.

Reuse Of Fruit Mart Site Tackled By BH

The Benton Harbor city commission last night took action toward redevelopment of the old fruit market and also heard that a new program for trash pickup is drawing protests from some residents.

Commissioners voted to accept an offer from the Benton Harbor architectural firm of Wayne Hatfield & Associates to donate $7,500 worth of services to the city to develop plans for four major commercial projects.

Commissioner Michael Govatos, chairman of the commission's economic development committee, said the city hopes to get one of the four projects — a group of small retail stores at the old market site near River-view drive — off the ground by spring.

Govatos said one of the plans for redevelopment of the old fruit market is to locate the retail market there. The retail market is presently combined with the wholesale market on Territorial road. Relocation of the retail market downtown would help attract other businesses to the site, Govatos said.

The city hopes to get plans off the ground by spring, he added.

The old market site is some 30 acres of urban renewal land which the city currently is negotiating to buy from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Govatos said.

Current plans call for the city to establish an authority to oversee redevelopment and obtain financing from part of a $5 million grant for which the city intends to apply under the proposed federal Public Works employment act, Govatos said.

The three other projects — a central business district shopping mall, a state service center, and a project using downtown stores as "incubators" for new businesses to start up in — have all been discussed by city officials before.

Commissioners Edmund Eaman and Tommie Parks said they have received complaints about the new trash pickup system because it requires residents to place trash on their front lawns for pickup instead of along alleys, causing litter problems and inconvenience for senior citizens.

Acting City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. said the city will run a 30-day trial period after which a questionnaire will be sent to all residents seeking advice and comments on the one-man pickup service.

"I don't think the complaints are well-founded," Farmer said last night. "They haven't given the city a chance to make the new project work."

Farmer said the new one-man garbage trucks will save the city money because it requires only one man instead of three to operate, and would provide "personalized" service because one man would handle each resident's garbage and be responsible for any complaints. The city commission approved the purchase of the two new trucks, at a cost of about $11,000 each, at its Aug. 30 meeting.

Farmer said about 42 per cent of all garbage collections in the city are already made at the front curb rather than in alleys.

Eaman presented a petition with about 65 signatures last night which stated opposition to the new garbage collection and Parks said has received objections from block clubs in the second ward.

In other action, the commission directed the city manager to investigate reported plans of Michigan Bell Telephone to transfer about 90 jobs from the Benton Harbor office to Kalamazoo.

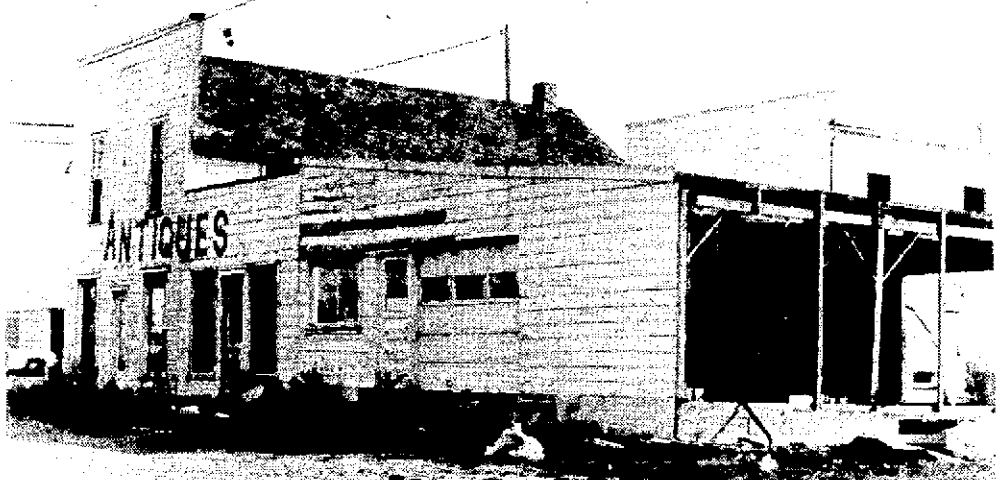

Robert Bellmer, president of Local 4032 of the Communication Workers of America which represents telephone workers, appeared before the commission and asked commissioners to formally protest the transfer of the 90 telephone operators.

Bellmer said Michigan Bell plans to transfer the 90 operators from its current office at 56 Wall street to other departments in Kalamazoo over the next two years as part of an automation plan. He said eight operators have already been transferred.

The commission also voted to formally appeal to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to investigate and rectify alleged television reception problems in the city caused by Citizen Band (CB) radio operators.

Willie Horton, of 395 Miller street, appeared before the commission and presented a petition with 34 signatures asking that the commission do something about CB interference in the city.

"I like to watch the ballgames and when my picture got blacked out this summer, that's what really got the ball started with me," Horton said.

SJ Law Firm Objection Delays Downtown Plan

Final action by the St. Joseph city commission to establish a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) was postponed last night because of an objection from a city law firm.

In a letter read at last night's meeting, the law firm of Hartwig, Crow, Jones & Postelli asked that a building they own at 206-208 Court street not be included in the development district. The law firm recently moved to St. Joseph from Benton Harbor.

According to the letter, the law firm wants out of the district because it will not benefit "specially", but only as much as the rest of the city's residents who are not in the district. No one from the firm was present at the meeting.

The commission last week approved the first reading of an ordinance to establish the DDA. A second reading and subsequent approval is needed to establish the DDA.

Mayor Franklin Smith said the law firm's objection along with a similar one from the St. Joseph Masonic Temple will be taken up at next week's meeting.

Toni Brundrett, representing the St. Joseph Masonic Temple, was present at the meeting and also lodged a protest to exclude a building owned by the St. Joseph Masonic Building Association at 420 Main street from the district.

A letter stating the Masons' objection was read last week, but the commission approved the first reading of the ordinance including the building at 420 Main as part of the district.

The DDA, if established, would have the power to levy a tax of up to two mills on real estate within the boundaries of the development district for downtown improvements.

In other action last night, the commission approved application requests from City Manager Gerald W. Heppner to apply for $440,000 in federal funds to help finance a downtown office district and $800,000 in federal funds for construction of an 80-slip marina in the Morrison channel. Both projects were reported in the Sept. 29 edition of The Herald-Palladium.

The DDA and the office district are separate projects. The grant money would come under the federal Public Works Employment Act.

In connection with the grant applications, the commission voted to hire the firm of Consoer, Townsend & Associates, with main offices in Chicago, to do a feasibility study in the office district for (1) relocation of the utilities and (2) for a new storm sewer, water and sanitary system.

The agreement with Consoer, Townsend & Associates was for a study not to cost more than $5,000.

The commission also voted approval of a recommendation from the planning commission to accept the comprehensive plan for the city. The plan covers housing, traffic, utilities, population trends, parks and public facilities.

The plan was the work of the Southwestern Michigan Regional Planning commission and the city's planning commission. The two groups are still working on zoning changes in the city, which will also be approved to the commission for approval.

The commission approved the following:

- Two direct grants for $1,000 for Mrs. Lillian Peil, 831 Myrtle avenue, and $1,395 for Mrs. Norma Kinder, 1008 Wayne street.

—An interest subsidy grant in the amount of $886.18 for Mrs. Marjorie Rukes, 1116 Kingsley avenue.

All three come under the city's Community Development program and are for home improvements.

The commission also:

- Approved hiring 55 workers for the Nov. 2 election to be paid $25 each.
- Postponed for two weeks

demolition proceedings for a garage at 1010 State street owned by Eric Johnson until further study can be done on Johnson's eligibility for a direct grant.

—Approved a request for a peanut sale to be held Oct. 16 in the downtown area by the St. Joseph Football Booster club.

The commission accepted a low bid of $6,152.85 from Mitts & Merrill, Inc., Saginaw, for a brush chipper to be used in crunching up branches and limbs.

STEPS UP CAMPAIGN: Henry Handy (left), GOP candidate for supervisor of Benton township, the biggest single municipal unit in Berrien county, confers with "two very good friends" he named as co-chairmen of his campaign committee. His campaign leaders are Joe Shurn (center), a neighbor, and Millie Handy, his wife.

Handy Picks Aides For Benton Race

Henry (Hank) Handy, Republican candidate for supervisor in Benton township, said today he is stepping up his campaign for office by naming co-chairmen for a committee that has been working for weeks already.

He described the co-chairmen as "two very good friends of mine", Millie Handy, his wife of 35 years, and Joe Shurn, his across the street neighbor. Handy has resided at the same address in Benton township, 1130 Golf road, for 25 years.

Mrs. Handy, a teacher for a number of years, has taught at Boynton school, Benton Harbor high school and at Brown school, and has a master's degree in remedial reading.

Shurn, his neighbor more than 10 years, is principal of Seely McCord school in the Benton Harbor Area Schools. He has been in the teaching profession for many years and has been active in community affairs.

Handy, 59, is a Realtor associated with Tala Real Estate firm of Coloma. He said he has taken a leave from work for the final month of campaigning before the election.

School Bond Issue Beaten

SHEPHERD, Mich. (AP) — Voters in the Shepherd School District have rejected by a 2-1 margin a $2.99 million general obligation bond issue. With 1,373 of an estimated 3,800 registered voters going to the polls, 920 ballots were cast against the issue. The money would have been used to build a new middle school, add two rooms to the Winn Elementary School, build a new high school shop building, remodel the high school and set up outdoor physical education facilities.

NEW BH GARBAGE TRUCK: Anthony Henry, public works employee for City of Benton Harbor, demonstrates new one-man garbage and trash pickup truck city began using yesterday as part of pilot project. Two trucks were purchased by city at cost of about $11,000 each. Some residents have raised objections to new trucks because they require residents to put trash on front curb rather than in alley. Congress Hopefuls Oppose Gun Laws

By BRANDON BROWN
Staff Writer

ARDEN — Democrat Richard "Mike" Daugherty, Republican Dave Stockman and the American Independent party's Karl Friske came out against gun control at a meet-the-candidates night at the Berrien County Sportsman's club here last night. All three are vying for Fourth District congressional on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Stockman pictured himself to some 45 club members and guests as "someone who can articulate and defend your positions" in Washington.

Stockman said gun control doesn't work in New York City, home of some of the toughest gun laws in the country, and put a $5 billion price tag on a national gun licensing and registration law.

He also said gun control would drive guns "underground" and asked: "Why do we want to give them (organized crime) another $10 billion illicit business" trafficking in guns?

He called for tougher laws to punish those who use firearms during felonies, such as 5 to 10 years in prison for first offense, and 20 to 25 years for second offense.

"I am absolutely opposed to gun control," said Daugherty. A member of the audience termed Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter in favor of gun control and asked if Daugherty would support Carter on it.

"My answer is no, I would not support Carter, I would not support gun control laws," Daugherty said.

Daugherty also called for mandatory minimum sentences for slayers, rapped lenient judges, and said the public should "insist on speedy trials and punishment certain."

Friske spent little time on gun control because, he said later, the AIP pro-gun stand is "obvious."

His campaign literature says: "I will uphold the Constitutional right of the people to keep and bear arms. I insist on more criminal control — not more gun control."

The candidates also flailed away at each other on Social Security, jobs and the economy, inflation, the federal bureaucracy, taxes, health care, a balanced federal budget, and campaign finances.

Under questioning from the audience, Stockman said as a 19-year-old undergraduate at Michigan State university he signed an advertisement saying he didn't want to be drafted to serve in southeast Asia. Was he connected with Students for a Democratic Society? "Never was, period."

Stockman said if he had it to do over again, he probably wouldn't sign the ad.

On campaign financing, Stockman said he'd raised $110,000, from more than 1,800 contributors, $12,000 of it in thousand-dollar donations from divergent groups and small sums from hundreds of donors.

Daugherty acknowledged a recent $5,000 contribution from the United Auto Workers community action program (CAP) council. "That means 5,000 people had a hand in that somewhere . . . at a buck apiece," he said.

Friske said the U.S. international and domestic situation has eroded, and suggested voting Democratic or Republican will yield more of the same.

"We have a country to save," he said. Stockman noted Monday's front-page news of spiraling government taxes on Americans and said the country can't afford one new program at the federal level. A balanced federal budget is a major element in cutting the rising cost of living, he indicated.

"I say baloney when they start talking about a balanced budget," countered Daugherty. He said it would not help people on fixed incomes. He called for a return to a 1935 Democratic formula of funding Social Security: one-third from general funding; a third from employees and a third from employers, and raising the income level on which Social Security is paid.

Flunks Spelling Test

DETROIT (AP) — A 16-year-old Detroit girl has learned that a holdup note with spelling errors does not lead to a successful robbery. Police said the girl walked into a bar on the West Side during the weekend and presented a hand-written note to the bar owner. It read: "Give me all the money in the cash register or I'll kill you. If you call the police, I'll kill you for sure." The owner told police he didn't see that she had any weapon, so he turned away and called police. When officers arrived, she was still standing at the bar, waiting for the loot. Police arrested her on a charge of attempted armed robbery and later found an 8 1/2-inch butcher knife in her clothing.

Royalton Improvement Group Elects Officers, Directors

The Royalton Township Improvement association elected two directors and saw officers for 1977 chosen at an annual meeting at Peoples State bank at Scottdale last night. Adolph J. Dongvillo Jr. was re-elected and Jonathan H. Veersma was elected as directors. They will serve three-year terms. Then directors chose officers: President, Neil R. Berndt; vice presidents, Dongvillo and Veersma; secretary, Elizabeth C. Laetz; and treasurer, Fred Schalon. The president and vice presidents are new. The treasurer and secretary were re-elected.

Reuse Of Fruit Mart Site Tackled By BH

The Benton Harbor city commission last night took action toward redevelopment of the old fruit market and also heard that a new program for trash pickup is drawing protests from some residents.

Commissioners voted to accept an offer from the Benton Harbor architectural firm of Wayne Hatfield & Associates to donate $7,500 worth of services to the city to develop plans for four major commercial projects.

Commissioner Michael Govatos, chairman of the commission's economic development committee, said the city hopes to get one of the four projects — a group of small retail stores at the old market site near River-view drive — off the ground by spring.

Govatos said one of the plans for redevelopment of the old fruit market is to locate the retail market there. The retail market is presently combined with the wholesale market on Territorial road. Relocation of the retail market downtown would help attract other businesses to the site, Govatos said.

The city hopes to get plans off the ground by spring, he added.

The old market site is some 30 acres of urban renewal land which the city currently is negotiating to buy from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Govatos said.

Current plans call for the city to establish an authority to oversee redevelopment and obtain financing from part of a $5 million grant for which the city intends to apply under the proposed federal Public Works employment act, Govatos said.

The three other projects — a central business district shopping mall, a state service center, and a project using downtown stores as "incubators" for new businesses to start up in — have all been discussed by city officials before.

Commissioners Edmund Eaman and Tommie Parks said they have received complaints about the new trash pickup system because it requires residents to place trash on their front lawns for pickup instead of along alleys, causing litter problems and inconvenience for senior citizens.

Acting City Manager Melvin Farmer Jr. said the city will run a 30-day trial period after which a questionnaire will be sent to all residents seeking advice and comments on the one-man pickup service.

"I don't think the complaints are well-founded," Farmer said last night. "They haven't given the city a chance to make the new project work."

Farmer said the new one-man garbage trucks will save the city money because it requires only one man instead of three to operate, and would provide "personalized" service because one man would handle each resident's garbage and be responsible for any complaints. The city commission approved the purchase of the two new trucks, at a cost of about $11,000 each, at its Aug. 30 meeting.

Farmer said about 42 per cent of all garbage collections in the city are already made at the front curb rather than in alleys.

Eaman presented a petition with about 65 signatures last night which stated opposition to the new garbage collection and Parks said has received objections from block clubs in the second ward.

In other action, the commission directed the city manager to investigate reported plans of Michigan Bell Telephone to transfer about 90 jobs from the Benton Harbor office to Kalamazoo.

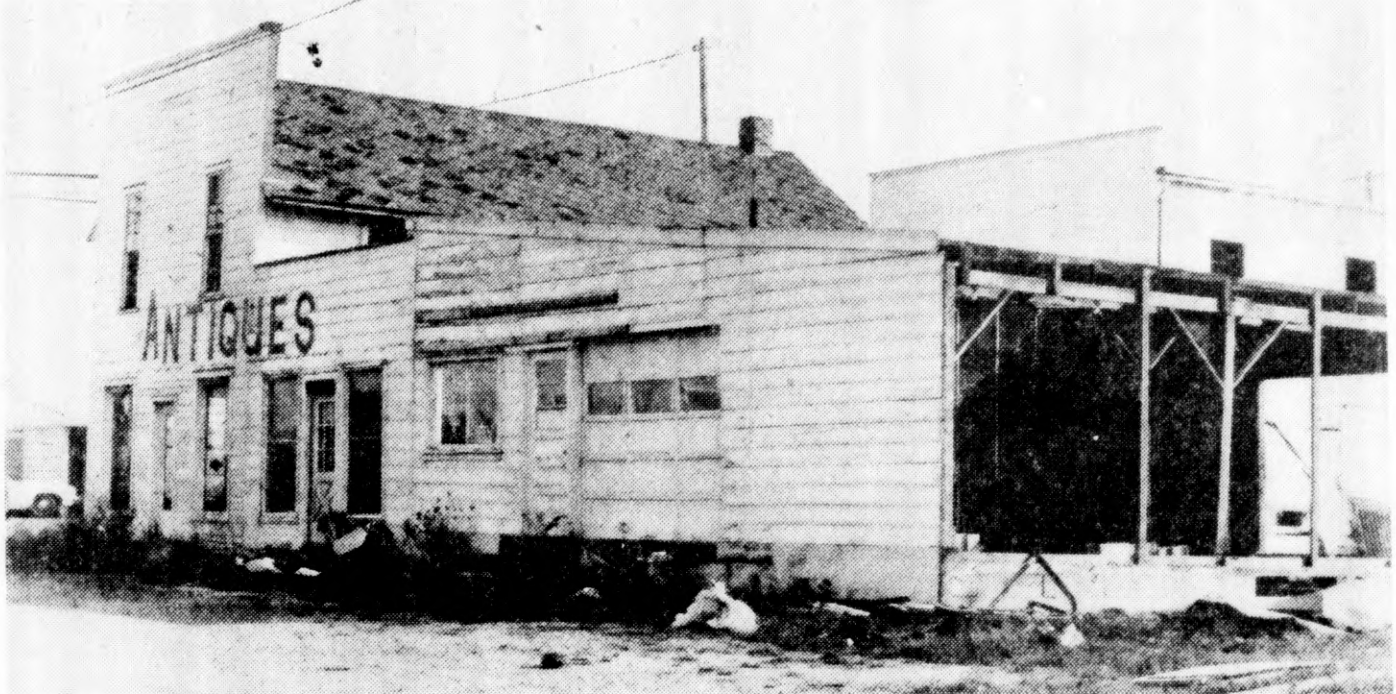

Robert Beilmer, president of Local 4032 of the Communication Workers of America which represents telephone workers, appeared before the commission and asked commissioners to formally protest the transfer of the 90 telephone operators.

Bellmer said Michigan Bell plans to transfer the 90 operators from its current office at 56 Wall street to other departments in Kalamazoo over the next two years as part of an automation plan. He said eight operators have already been transferred.

The commission also voted to formally appeal to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to investigate and rectify alleged television reception problems in the city caused by Citizen Band (CB) radio operators.

Willie Horton, of 395 Miller street, appeared before the commission and presented a petition with 34 signatures asking that the commission do something about CB interference in the city.

"I like to watch the ballgames and when my picture got blacked out this summer, that's what really got the ball started with me," Horton said.

OLD SCOTSDALE BUILDING TO BE RAZED: One of first buildings in what is now Scottdale area is being torn down this week. Long-time area resident William H. Bartz, 82, of 5281 Scottdale road, said structure, located at what is now corner of Miners road and M-139, was built by Henry Geisler as grocery store with living quarters upstairs. Old Benton Harbor

Buchanan branch of Pere Marquette railroad ran along what is now M-139. Dilapidated building is on two-acre tract purchased by Peoples State bank. Antiques sign on building is from one of last businesses there. Peoples State operates branch bank around corner on Miners road. Land was purchased for possible expansion and better view of bank. SJ Law Firm Objection Delays Downtown Plan

Final action by the St. Joseph city commission to establish a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) was postponed last night because of an objection from a city law firm.

In a letter read at last night's meeting, the law firm of Hartwig, Crow, Jones & Postelli asked that a building they own at 206-208 Court street not be included in the development district. The law firm recently moved to St. Joseph from Benton Harbor.

According to the letter, the law firm wants out of the district because it will not benefit "specially", but only as much as the rest of the city's residents who are not in the district. No one from the firm was present at the meeting.

The commission last week approved the first reading of an ordinance to establish the DDA. A second reading and subsequent approval is needed to establish the DDA.

Mayor Franklin Smith said the law firm's objection along with a similar one from the St. Joseph Masonic Temple will be taken up at next week's meeting.

Tom Brundrett, representing the St. Joseph Masonic Temple, was present at the meeting and also lodged a protest to exclude a building owned by the St. Joseph Masonic Building association at 420 Main street from the district.

A letter stating the Masons' objection was read last week, but the commission approved the first reading of the ordinance including the building at 420 Main as part of the district.

The DDA, if established, would have the power to levy a tax of up to two mills on real estate within the boundaries of the development district for downtown improvements.

In other action last night, the commission approved application requests from City Manager Gerald W. Heppler to apply for $440,000 in federal funds to help finance a downtown office district and $600,000 in federal funds for construction of an 80-slip marina in the Morrison channel. Both projects were reported in the Sept. 29 edition of The Herald-Palladium.

The DDA and the office district are separate projects.

The grant money would come under the federal Public Works Employment Act.

In connection with the grant applications, the commission voted to hire the firm of Consoer, Townsend & Associates, with main offices in Chicago, to do a feasibility study in the office district for (1) relocation of the utilities and (2) for a new storm sewer, water and sanitary system.

The agreement with Consoer, Townsend & Associates was for a study not to cost more than $5,000.

The commission also voted approval of a recommendation from the planning commission to accept the comprehensive plan for the city. The plan covers housing, traffic, utilities, population trends, parks and public facilities.

The plan was the work of the Southwestern Michigan Regional Planning commission and the city's planning commission. The two groups are still working on zoning changes in the city, which will also be presented to the commission for approval.

The commission approved the following:

—Two direct grants for $1,080 for Mrs. Lillian Peil, 831 Myrtle avenue, and $1,395 for Mrs. Norma Kinder, 1008 Wayne street.

—An interest subsidy grant in the amount of $686.18 for Mrs. Marjorie Rukes, 1116 Kingsley avenue.

All three come under the city's Community Development program and are for home improvements.

The commission also:

—Approved hiring 55 workers for the Nov. 2 election to be paid $25 each.

—Postponed for two weeks

demolition proceedings for a garage at 1010 State street owned by Eric Johnson until further study can be done on Johnson's eligibility for a direct grant.

—Approved a request for a peanut sale to be held Oct. 16 in the downtown area by the St. Joseph Football Booster club.

The commission accepted a low bid of $6,152.85 from Mitts & Merrill, Inc., Saginaw, for a brush chipper to be used in crunching up branches and limbs.

Bedsheet Designs Take Cue From Museums

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you can't get to a museum to see your favorite art subject, don't despair. It may eventually turn up on your bedsheet. Real art — some of it ancient — is being dug out of museum archives for that purpose.

In fact, $380,000 in royalties was paid to the Metropolitan Museum of Art last year, under an exclusive contract, says John O'Donoghue, president of the consumer division of Spring Mills. But that is not the reason flat sheets will now cost more, he explained.

"The scale of activity is so big — sheets are a 30-million-dozen market — that design becomes a small percentage of total cost. But sheets are now a big fashion item and lots are being bought for the yardage. Six yards of fabric by a good designer can be bought in a flat sheet for $8.

"When we were selling white sheets, flat and fitted, they were bought in equal proportion. Even though it cost more to make flat than fitted, both were sold at the same wholesale price to make it easier for merchants."

After designer sheets were introduced, the fashion explosion changed the ratio of sheets sold to 60-40 — more flat sheets than fitted are sold and they are used for everything from wall covering to clothes.

Yet the designer flat sheets have been sold on the white sheet price basis, he explained.

Most people assume fitted sheets cost more to make. Even New York stores "are embarrassed about the price change" because they've been charging more for fitted than flat, O'Donoghue maintains.

"There are surprises in the museum archives," he explained, fingering one new sheet. "This Greek key design was found on a fabric woven in the pre-lucan period, 600 to 900."

They had to work with a small piece of cloth — it was too fragile to unfold. One of three Peruvian sheets adapted from ancient designs; it is part of a new museum series which includes empire florals and and costume laces.

The 17th and 18th-century lace reproductions are a new look for the bedroom. Filigrees, bobbin laces and drawnwork taken from designs on mantillas, costumes, and samplers of Northern Italians and Dutch of the period are printed on dark brownish backgrounds.

With real pull-through ribbons or wide border appliques of real lace trim, textural dimensional effects give the illusion of real lace sheets: bolsters, cases. One printed pattern, drawnwork lace patches, is an over-all reproduction of an unusual, 18th-century Dutch sampler.

The company made its designer debut in 1967 with Pucci towels, but the vivid colors presented printing problems. About five years ago they were swept into fashion in a big way when fashion designer

Bill Blass began designing sheets for them.

"Good design is lasting. Our first pattern printed in 1961 on no-iron sheets — fresh daisy — is an example. It still sells at more than 100,000 dozen sheets a year," he said.

Spurred by success of the sheets, new ideas have emerged. Quilt making has been changed by a new technique of quilting pinsonically, a thermastic process that gives the illusion of stitches. O'Donoghue says. Regular quilting goes through a machine at two feet a minute; the new technology lets it go through at 25 feet a minute.

Translating quilts into big business meant an investment of $130,000 for a machine that has such a "voracious appetite" that a half-million dollars has already gone into the care and feeding necessary to production.

"Quilts are popular again because the young singles group has made the bedroom a focal point, and now, in addition, the quilt cover is upon us," O'Donoghue explained.

The quilt or comforter cover is "kind of a sheet envelope" that matches a fitted sheet. Used like a slipcover, it can coordinate an existing comforter. The acceptance of comforters and their covers may also be a reflection of the energy crisis. In any event, the quilt cover is already being hailed as a success by store buyers, he said.

Mother's Second Adolescence

NEW YORK — Mother can be a problem for a teenage girl because both are going through a kind of adolescence at the same time.

Daughter is full of confusion and self-doubt and questions like "What will I do with the rest of my life?" and her mother is suffering through almost the same thing, says the October "Seventeen." According to family therapist Pearl H. Knie, "a woman's midlife crisis is a second adolescence, a time when she rebels, examines her goals, values and personal relationships, just as she did in her teens."

So life with Mother can be rough. Some mothers treat their daughters like small children in an effort to stave off a future in which their roles as mothers will be phased out. Is there a solution? Knie encourages "reentry," a woman's going back to school or work or doing anything that increases her self-esteem and ends her isolation at home.

But even working mothers can pose a problem when they're very busy and daughters have to take over the chores. Both mothers and daughters are striking out on their own at the same time, which can sometimes seem selfish. But a girl who's probably longing for new experiences and looking forward to life outside her family should be able to understand her mother's desires.

Use Lettuce As Bouquet

When a recipe calls for a bouquet garni (herbs in cheesecloth) substitute iceberg lettuce for the cheesecloth.

water, then the parsley, thyme and bay leaf in it. The iceberg lettuce adds flavor to a stew, just as herbs do — especially to veal. Discard the bouquet before serving.

So life with Mother can be rough. Some mothers treat their daughters like small children in an effort to stave off a future in which their roles as mothers will be phased out. Is there a solution? Bedsheet Designs Take Cue From Museums

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you can't get to a museum to see your favorite art subject, don't despair. It may eventually turn up on your bedsheet. Real art — some of it ancient — is being dug out of museum archives for that purpose.

In fact, $360,000 in royalties was paid to the Metropolitan Museum of Art last year, under an exclusive contract, says John O'Donoghue, president of the consumer division of Spring Mills. But that is not the reason flat sheets will now cost more, he explained.

"The scale of activity is so big — sheets are a 30-million-dozen market — that design becomes a small percentage of total cost. But sheets are now a big fashion item and lots are being bought for the yardage. Six yards of fabric by a good designer can be bought in a flat sheet for $8. "When we were selling white sheets, flat and fitted, they were bought in equal proportion. Even though it cost more to make flat than fitted, both were sold at the same wholesale price to make it easier for merchants."

After designer sheets were introduced, the fashion explosion changed the ratio of sheets sold to 60-40 — more flat sheets than fitted are sold and they are used for everything from wall covering to clothes. Yet the designer flat sheets have been sold on the white sheet price basis, he explained.

Most people assume fitted sheets cost more to make. Even New York stores "are embarrassed about the price change" because they've been charging more for fitted than flat, O'Donoghue maintains.

"There are surprises in the museum archives," he explained, fingering one new sheet. "This Greek key design was found on a fabric woven in the pre-Incan period, 600 to 900."

They had to work with a small piece of cloth — it was too fragile to unfold. One of three Peruvian sheets adapted from ancient designs, it is part of a new museum series which includes empire florals and and costume laces.

The 17th and 18th-century lace reproductions are a new look for the bedroom. Filigrees, bobbin laces and drawnwork taken from designs on mantillas, costumes and samplers of Northern Italians and Dutch of the period are printed on dark brownish backgrounds.

With real pull-through ribbons or wide border appliques of real lace trim, textural dimensional effects give the illusion of real lace sheets; bolsters, cases. One printed pattern, drawnwork lace patches, is an over-all reproduction of an unusual, 18th-century Dutch sampler.

The company made its designer debut in 1967 with Pucci towels, but the vivid colors presented printing problems. About five years ago they were swept into fashion in a big way when fashion designer

Bill Blass began designing sheets for them.

"Good design is lasting. Our first pattern printed in 1964 on no-iron sheets — fresh daisy — is an example. It still sells at more than 100,000 dozen sheets a year," he said.

Spurred by success of the sheets, new ideas have emerged. Quilt making has been changed by a new technique of quilting pinsonically, a thermastic process that gives the illusion of stitches, O'Donoghue says. Regular quilting goes through a machine at two feet a minute; the new technology lets it go through at 25 feet a minute.

Translating quilts into big business meant an investment of $130,000 for a machine that has such a "voracious appetite" that a half-million dollars has already gone into the care and feeding necessary to production.

"Quilts are popular again because the young singles group has made the bedroom a focal point, and now, in addition, the quilt cover is upon us," O'Donoghue explained.

The quilt or comforter cover is "kind of a sheet envelope" that matches a fitted sheet. Used like a slipcover, it can coordinate an existing comforter. The acceptance of comforters and their covers may also be a reflection of the energy crisis. In any event, the quilt cover is already being hailed as a success by store buyers, he said.

Mother's Second Adolescence

NEW YORK — Mother can be a problem for a teenage girl because both are going through a kind of adolescence at the same time.

Daughter is full of confusion and self-doubt and questions like "What will I do with the rest of my life?" and her mother is suffering through almost the same thing, says the October "Seventeen." According to family therapist Pearl R. Knie, "a woman's midlife crisis is a second adolescence, a time when she rebels, examines her goals, values and personal relationships, just as she did in her teens."

So life with Mother can be rough. Some mothers treat their daughters like small children in an effort to stave off a future in which their roles as mothers will be phased out. Is there a solution? Knie encourages "reentry," a woman's going back to school or work or doing anything that increases her self-esteem and ends her isolation at home.

But even working mothers can pose a problem when they're very busy and daughters have to take over the chores. Both mothers and daughters are striking out on their own at the same time, which can sometimes seem selfish. But a girl who's probably longing for new experiences and looking forward to life outside her family should be able to understand her mother's desires.

Use Lettuce As Bouquet

When a recipe calls for a bouquet garni (herbs in cheesecloth) substitute iceberg lettuce for the cheesecloth.

Wilt a lettuce leaf in hot water, then tie parsley, thyme and bay leaf in it. The iceberg lettuce adds flavor to a stew, just as herbs do — especially to veal. Discard the bouquet before serving.

Dust Cloths Need Cleaning

Dust cloths and polishing cloths must be clean to handle household chores.

Wash frequently. First shake out loose dirt and dust. Then machine wash in hot water with other heavily-soiled items. Use additional detergent or soap for extra soiled cloths.

Comedy Writer To Be At AU

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Zeno Klinker, the comedy writer for radio and television comedian Edgar Bergen, will narrate his comedy film "Higher 'n' a Kite" in a program at the Andrews university Johnson auditorium, Saturday, Oct. 9, at 8:30 p.m.

The film, which deals with man's conquest of the air and space, will open the AU concert-picture series. Twenty-five events are planned for the series at a season ticket cost of $20. Single adult admission is $2.50. Special rates are available for children and senior citizens.

Klinker, who still flies his own plane, started flying in his middle teens and became an aerial motion picture cameraman during the early days of aviation. He later began a collection of rare and amusing historical aviation movies which is now the world's most complete. It includes, Klinker says, "every funny happening from the Wrights to rockets."

During his first year on the air, Edgar Bergen, after seeing Klinker's aviation films, hired Klinker to write gag lines for the Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy radio show. Klinker continued writing for Bergen during all the years the show was on the air.

Klinker's first venture in humorous writing was at an early age when he wrote humorous greeting cards and booklets. His first card sold nearly a half million copies. He has also written for motion pictures, television, and other comedians.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Shower Scene A Big Ripoff?

Dear Ann Landers: I recently attended a bridal shower for my sister. Twenty guests came and every person brought a gift — except one. She is a close relative.

We checked and double-checked each gift and card and couldn't find a thing from this certain person. The woman deliberately came empty-handed, ate dinner and helped herself to numerous glasses of punch.

We were all shocked. My sister was hurt and puzzled. The question is: Should we say something to her? Also, should we invite her to the wedding? — Anxious To Know

Dear Anxious: Well!!!! Never have I heard of anything so despicable in my entire life. Imagine, coming to a shower without a gift! How low can you get? That woman should never be invited to anything again so long as she lives. In fact, now that the Supreme Court has reinstated the death penalty in some states, maybe you can have her electrocuted.

I've received hundreds of letters from women who say they have been invited to as many as four or five showers for the same bride. They view the whole shower scene as a gigantic ripoff, and I must say, your letter lends a great deal of validity to their complaints. Sorry, girls, you rattled the wrong cage.

Fresh Drunk

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I go with this certain couple (I'll call them the B's). The fellow is obnoxious. After he's had a few drinks he gets fresh under the table which is the cheapest approach I've ever heard of. I've lifted his hand off my knee at least a dozen times. What I'd like to do is slap his face.

Last night six of us were going out to dinner (the B's included.) When I told my husband I didn't want to sit next to Mr. B I had to explain why. Would you believe he turned the whole thing around and made it MY fault? He says no guy in a right mind would make such passes unless he'd gotten plenty of encouragement.

Could I be initiating this sort of thing without realizing it? Please tell me. I am — Nausedated

Dear N.: I doubt it. Drunks don't need encouragement. When the booze goes on active duty the judgment goes on furlough.

Your husband's vote of no confidence is understandably shattering. Next time that eight-handed idiot starts playing games, give him a swift kick in the ankle and ask his wife to change places with you. No explanation need be given.

Slipping A Little

Dear Ann Landers: Many thanks for your wonderful answer to "Slipping A Little." It made my day.

I, too, found myself forgetting names and misplacing articles and worrying that maybe I was becoming senile. Your suggestion that the woman put things where they belong was excellent. I've tried it and it works.

And thanks too, Ann, for admitting that you too are having trouble remembering things. That made me feel a lot better about myself. — An Admirer From Atlanta

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is one bid that the winning bridge player shuns like the plague. We call it the give-away double.

If West had just passed four hearts, two or three things might have happened. East might have decided to sacrifice at four spades. Four spades doubled would have been no great loss. It would only e down one.

The second thing is that South would play four hearts and go down several tricks. He would ruff the spade, lead a trump to dummy's king and then play a second trump, whereupon West would take his ace and jack of trumps and lead a spade. South would be down to one trump so West would have control of the hand.

The third possibility is that after playing one trump South would see that he could be sure of his contract by the simple expedient of playing clubs until someone ruffed one.

This is what happened after the double. South did play clubs after one trump lead. West ruffed the third club and led a second spade. South ruffed and led a fourth club. West could take two more trumps, but this allowed South to discard two of dummy's diamonds on long clubs and get away without the loss of a diamond trick.

Ask the Jacobys

What is the significance of South's jump to four hearts? South opens one heart. His partner responds two clubs and South jumps to four hearts.

The bid says, "Partner my hearts are solid, but my high-card strength is minimal."

Dr. Lester Coleman

I am amazed at the poor posture that so many of my students have in high school. They slump and crouch. I can't believe that this does not affect their health in adult life. — Miss D.W., Ore.

Dear Miss W.: The posture of an adult reflects the posture that has been acquired or been taught as a child or an adolescent.

I am sure that the present vogue for slouching will eventually affect adult posture and general attractiveness.

The Department of Education of the American Medical Association has outlined an excellent set of rules for better posture. You can contribute immeasurably to your students if some of these suggestions are followed.

- While standing:
- 1) Keep feet slightly apart, weight balanced on both feet and toes straight ahead.
 - 2) Keep knees straight and relaxed.
 - 3) Hips tucked in, abdomen flat, chest slightly up and forward.
 - 4) Neck and head balanced over the body, chin in.
- While walking:
- 1) Comfortable, well-fitted

- shoes.
- 2) Feet parallel and close together as you step, with toes straight ahead.
 - 3) Control the length of the step for an even, rhythmic stride.
 - 4) Swing arms loosely and easily.

While sitting:

- 1) Thighs should be supported by the chair as far as the curve of the knee.
- 2) Feet should be kept flat on the floor.
- 3) Back should be supported by the chair back, the body kept straight from the hips to the neck.

While working:

- 1) Stand erect and balanced.
- 2) Correct working heights to prevent slumping or excessive reaching.

While lifting:

Stand close to the object, draw it to the center of gravity and lift it with the strong muscles of the legs and shoulders.

Good posture can be acquired with proper direction and training.

'Emerging Women' Topic At College

DOWAGIAC — "Emerging Women in Today's Society" will be the topic of a University of Michigan specialist in management and personnel at Southwestern Michigan college Wednesday, Oct. 6.

Dr. Carolyn Mills' talk, to be presented at 8 p.m. in room 301 of the O'Leary Arts building, is open to the public free of charge. The presentation is the first of several public special activities planned at SMC, with more than 20 concerts, theatre productions and exhibitions to follow during the academic year.

Dr. Mills' talk will focus on the historical perspective of the women's movement in the past decade. She will examine the sex roles of men and women, how the roles have changed, and the effects brought about by these changes. Included will be some of the main problems and anxieties faced by women and methods of dealing with them.

Dr. Mills views the "women's movement" as a combination of forces coming together, not as a unique element in itself. She feels that these factors have created certain goals for women of all ages, and she will examine how thoroughly the public understands what women today are seeking.

An instructor in the University of Michigan School of Engineering, Dr. Mills is also an assistant to the chairman and an instructor in the U-M School of Medicine's Department of Post-graduate Medicine. She is an assistant professor of management and organizational development at Bowling Green, Ohio, university.

She received her undergraduate and graduate degrees in psychology from U-M, specializing in the areas of organizational, behavioral and social change.

JFK Meddled, Says Canadian

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Former Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker says the late President John F. Kennedy and his administration intervened in Canadian elections in 1962 and 1963 to help defeat Diefenbaker's party.

"He was out to destroy me, 100 per cent," Diefenbaker said about Kennedy in a new television series previewed here Monday night.

Diefenbaker, prime minister from 1957 to 1963, blamed Kennedy and "his friends ... the powerful interests on Wall Street" for a foreign exchange crisis that forced the Diefenbaker government to devalue the Canadian dollar just before the 1962 general election.

SPECULATION: Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, above, speaks before Soviet Party Congress in Moscow earlier this year. Speculation is mounting on whether the 72-year-old premier — who hasn't made a public appearance since July 22 — is planning to retire. (AP Wirephoto)

Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative party, which had gained a sizeable majority in Canada's House of Commons, was reduced to minority status in 1962 and forced to form a coalition government. It was defeated in 1963 after the cabinet split on arming Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles in Canada with nuclear warheads. Diefenbaker was opposed to the nuclear armaments.

"In 1962, everything pointed to an election victory for us," Diefenbaker said. "Suddenly, an eventuality arose of which we had no warning. It was obvious that some external influence was being brought to bear (on the Canadian dollar)."

"It's now clear it was part and parcel of the beginning of action by John F. Kennedy and ... powerful interests on Wall Street to get rid of the Conservative government of Canada."

On the Bomarc issue, Diefenbaker said, "JFK decided I must be kayoed."

Diefenbaker described Kennedy as "affable, friendly and suddenly arrogant." He said the late president believed that Canada should closely follow U.S. advice on international matters.

Diefenbaker said the late Lester B. Pearson, former Liberal party leader who succeeded him as prime minister, "became the ally of the U.S. administration ... and beneficiary in funds and assistance."

"The Liberal party under Mr. Pearson was a party whose policies were determined and made in Washington and nowhere else."

Diefenbaker voiced his remarks in a new 13-week series, "One Canadian," scheduled to start Wednesday on the nationwide network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Two of the episodes were previewed Monday night before an audience of several hundred former cabinet officials, Diefenbaker friends and workers in the opposition Conservative party.

Probe Shows $1 Million Loss In Wayne 'Dole' Irregularities

DETROIT (AP) — Preliminary results of an investigation into the Wayne County welfare program shows more than $1 million may have been lost through theft, fraud and mismanagement, state officials say.

"I think we are dealing with ... probably over $1 million that was paid improperly ... in violation of department policy," state Social Services Department director John Dempsey said Monday.

The state investigation, which will be completed next week, should document "a lack of attention to detail and sloppy practices" in the Wayne County office, he said.

Dempsey said he may discipline or dismiss some state employees after he has seen the final report.

Local 1890 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents around 1,000 state welfare employees, leveled charges Monday against Kenneth Jackson, director of the Wayne County welfare department's fiscal bureau.

In a press release, the local called for Jackson to "be removed from office for evident mismanagement and possible fraud."

Jackson denied "any wrongdoing on the part of myself or on the part of my staff at this time."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbara Walters and Harry Reasoner, newly teamed on the "ABC Evening News" and no doubt attracting more attention than the news they delivered, performed smoothly on opening night.

Their debut Monday held up despite the weight of heavy advance publicity and advertising. She didn't seem nervous, he was wryly gracious, and there were no major mishaps or misstatements.

There was also no hint that he had almost quit when ABC asked her to leave NBC's "Today" show, join ABC at $1 million per year and become the first female co-anchor of a nightly network television news show.

Miss Walters seemed uncertain only once. It came after she quoted former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, who quit Monday amid controversy about an obscene racial slur, as saying "I think Jimmy Carter should now step up to the plate himself and resign for his indiscreet remarks (on sex and adultery) in Playboy."

Reasoner said, "I suppose the Carter people would object to having one verbal indiscretion linked to a racial joke."

That seemed briefly to fluster Miss Walters, as if Reasoner's unprompted remark were unexpected.

Such are the hazards of reporting an item and chatting about it in almost the same breath. In any event, it was all smoothed out by the second "feed" of Monday's show to ABC affiliates.

She again quoted Butz' contention that if he resigned because of a verbal indiscretion, so should Carter. Then she asked Reasoner: "Think that'll wash, Harry?" Not in the Carter camp, he suggested.

To show that ABC News means business with its new look, no doubt, and that Miss Walters hasn't lost her touch for interviewing the biggies, the show aired a taped satellite interview by her of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Even Sadat seemed caught up in the spirit of her ABC debut. At one point, during questioning about Lebanon, he said, "I declare this for the first time, Barbara, for you."

The show, preceded by a good luck message to Miss Walters from President Ford, closed with her one-minute, 45-second comment on herself, the new show and what she hopes happens on it.

'Michigame' Drawing Thursday

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The first winning numbers for the new 50-cent "Michigame" lottery contest will be drawn Thursday in Grand Rapids during the weekly Super Play drawing.

This week's Super Drawing will be held at the Woodland Mall. Eight contestants will vie for prizes of up to $200,000. They are:

No Favorite Martian?

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — In less than three months, two robots have increased man's knowledge of Mars a thousand times. But Viking 1 and Viking 2 have not found any Martians, and that may endanger the prospects of a Viking 3. For a while it seemed as though the traveling laboratories from earth had indeed found evidence of life. Their early experiments came up with enticing results, but the test to confirm those results failed. The promising processes have now been chalked up to a bizarre chemical system beyond immediate explanation. Scientists have not given up all hope, however, and some are quick to point out that the Vikings have examined just two tiny parts of the planet. They would like to put on Mars a mobile Viking 3, equipped with crawler tracks and instruments better able to look into the findings of Vikings 1 and 2. "Imagine what we could see if we could move around," said a NASA official.

JFK Meddled, Says Canadian

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Former Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker says the late President John F. Kennedy and his administration intervened in Canadian elections in 1962 and 1963 to help defeat Diefenbaker's party.

"He was out to destroy me, 100 per cent," Diefenbaker said about Kennedy in a new television series previewed here Monday night.

SPECULATION: Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, above, speaks before Soviet Party Congress in Moscow earlier this year. Speculation is mounting on whether the 72-year-old premier — who hasn't made a public appearance since July 22 — is planning to retire. (AP Wirephoto)

Diefenbaker, prime minister from 1957 to 1963, blamed Kennedy and "his friends ... the powerful interests on Wall Street" for a foreign exchange crisis that forced the Diefenbaker government to devalue the Canadian dollar just before the 1962 general election.

Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative party, which had gained a sizeable majority in Canada's House of Commons, was reduced to minority status in 1962 and forced to form a coalition government. It was defeated in 1963 after the cabinet split on arming Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles in Canada with nuclear warheads. Diefenbaker was opposed to the nuclear armaments.

"In 1962, everything pointed to an election victory for us," Diefenbaker said. "Suddenly, an eventuality arose of which we had no warning. It was obvious that some external influence was being brought to bear (on the Canadian dollar)."

"It's now clear it was part and parcel of the beginning of action by John F. Kennedy and ... powerful interests on Wall Street to get rid of the Conservative government of Canada."

On the Bomarc issue, Diefenbaker said, "JFK decided I must be kayo-ed."

Diefenbaker described Kennedy as "affable, friendly and suddenly arrogant." He said the late president believed that Canada should closely follow U.S. advice on international matters.

Diefenbaker said the late Lester B. Pearson, former Liberal party leader who succeeded him as prime minister, "became the ally of the U.S. administration ... and beneficiary in funds and assistance."

"The Liberal party under Mr. Pearson was a party whose policies were determined and made in Washington and nowhere else."

Diefenbaker voiced his remarks in a new 13-week series, "One Canadian," scheduled to start Wednesday on the nationwide network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Two of the episodes were previewed Monday night before an audience of several hundred former cabinet officials, Diefenbaker friends and workers in the opposition Conservative party.

NEW AT ABC: Smiling Barbara Walters chats with Harry Reasoner Monday night in wake of her smooth debut as ABC's news co-anchor on Evening News program. Probe Shows $1 Million Loss In Wayne 'Dole' Irregularities

DETROIT (AP) — Preliminary results of an investigation into the Wayne County welfare program shows more than $1 million may have been lost through theft, fraud and mismanagement, state officials say.

"I think we are dealing with ... probably over $1 million that was paid improperly ... in violation of department policy," state Social Services Department director John Dempsey said Monday.

The state investigation, which will be completed next week, should document "a lack of attention to detail and sloppy practices" in the Wayne County office, he said.

Dempsey said he may discipline or dismiss some state employees after he has seen the final report.

Local 1880 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents around 1,000 state welfare employees, leveled charges Monday against Kenneth Jackson, director of the Wayne County welfare department's fiscal bureau.

In a press release, the local called for Jackson to "... be removed from office for evident mismanagement and possible fraud."

Jackson denied "any wrongdoing on the part of myself or on the part of my staff at this time."

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
Jimmy Carter and President Ford are going into virtual seclusion in San Francisco as they prepare to argue foreign affairs in the second round of an election year debate triple header.

Both candidates planned to keep low profiles today as they prepared for Wednesday night's debate, but Carter took a few parting swings at Ford for his handling of the Earl Butz affair.

Carter was on his way to San Francisco when word reached him that Butz had quit, and he said, "The way this whole embarrassing and disgusting episode was handled by President Ford shows a continuation of lack of leadership."

Meanwhile, the League of Women Voters announced plans to hold the debate between the vice presidential nominees, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, in Houston on Oct. 15.

Both Ford and Carter planned to stay in San Francisco until the 9:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday debate at the city's historic Palace of Fine Arts. Neither candidate had plans for any public appearances.

Carter scheduled meetings with foreign policy advisers as well as a rehearsal session in which aides were to test him with questions that may come up during the nationally broadcast debate.

Ford spokesman Ron Nessen said the Republican candidate planned to spend some time studying legislation passed late last week by Congress in addition to studying for the debate.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger helped Ford on debate preparations over the weekend, but aides said there were no plans for Kissinger to fly to San Francisco to coach Ford before the debate.

In addition to rapping Ford's handling of Butz, Carter accused Ford of putting together a patchwork proposal on halting the spread of nuclear arms.

The proposal, he said, was based on Carter speeches.

"The President's men have pasted together bits and pieces of my proposals in a belated attempt to correct a dismal record," he said.

The plan, he said, was leaked to the press only after the Ford administration had killed all "responsible" legislation in the field and after Congress had adjourned.

Ford administration sources say the President will soon announce new policies to restrain the spread of nuclear weapons, including proposals that resemble Carter's.

Ford will propose that the United States offer to purchase spent fuel from other nations to remove it from foreign circulation, sources said. Spent fuel can be turned into a key ingredient for nuclear weapons.

Ford also will propose to renegotiate existing agreements by the United States with other nations to tighten controls on the use of nuclear materials intended only for peaceful purposes, sources said.

Economists See Slower Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's report later this month on economic growth is expected to show that the U.S. economy grew at a disappointing rate of about 4 per cent in the third quarter of this year.

This is the opinion of economists both in and out of government who are puzzled about why the economy has bogged down after such promising growth earlier this year.

If the Oct. 19 report is disappointing, which now seems likely, it may give Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter new ammunition in his attempt to use the economy as an issue in his campaign against President Ford.

A 4 per cent growth rate in the Gross National Product is considered just enough to keep up with new entries into the labor force and does nothing to dent the nation's still-high 7.9 per cent unemployment rate.

The report on the third-quarter GNP will be released by the Commerce Department just two weeks before the election on Nov. 2. The GNP measures the value of goods and services produced in the economy and is the broadest measure of overall economic performance.

Although Ford claims credit for "turning the economy around" after the deep recession, Ford's advisers privately admit that recent economic statistics have taken much of the steam out of the claim.

There could be more bad news for Ford if the September employment report, to be released Friday, shows another rise in the jobless rate. That rate already has increased for three consecutive months.

Ford administration officials say that although the economy still has a long way to go, it nevertheless is on the right path.

"We see no reason whatsoever to alter our basic feelings that continued economic growth is still there," James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said in an interview Monday.

"Very shortly, that growth will resume at a faster rate than in the last two quarters."

Carter's approach is to claim that the economy is in danger of being permanently bogged down because the Ford administration has not done enough to stimulate it.

His top economic adviser, Lawrence Klein of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton

School of Economics, has said the economy may need additional stimulus of about $15 billion next year in order to maintain a satisfactory growth rate.

The stimulus could be provided through tax cuts, or increased federal spending, or both, he said.

Lynn said suggestions that new economic stimulus may be needed is "sheer speculation."

But one administration economist, Sidney L. Jones, an assistant secretary of the Treasury, said the Ford administration might have to consider some stimulus through tax cuts if the economy remains in the doldrums during the fourth quarter of the year.

PRaises U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, former U.S. ambassador to Ghana and now President Ford's chief of protocol, says American policy in Africa is "morally impeccable."

Troopers Seek More Pay, Fringe Benefits

The Michigan State Police Troopers Association has notified the state Civil Service Compensation Hearings Panel it wants the dental plan to provide a maximum $750 annually to each employee with the state funding 90 per cent of the plan. The troopers also said they want two additional paid holidays, and an increase of $150 a year in plainclothes allowance for State Police detectives. The hearings panel will take testimony and other gather other information before making recommendations on pay levels for various state employees to the Civil Service Commission. Lobby Urging Milliken To Sign Campaign Bill LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A citizens' lobby group has urged Gov. William Milliken not carry out his threats to veto a bill providing partial public financing for gubernatorial campaigns.

Common Cause also urged top lawmakers Monday to meet with Milliken and discuss Republican objections to a bill to regulate campaign financing.

The group indicated it feared the dispute will kill chances of either bill passing by the end of session in December.

Milliken has vowed to veto the campaign finance bill unless it is changed to meet his objections. The governor said the gubernatorial funding bill is "tied to the other bill and he will not approve it by itself if the campaign measure is not improved."

Republicans claim the campaign financing bill unfairly restricts corporate involvement in politics, permits too many campaign contributions to go unreported and permits unions to shuffle money among their local units.

Common Cause led the drive last year that resulted in passage of a sweeping political standards act which included both bills now before the legislature. But that law was overturned by the state Supreme Court as including too many issues in one measure.

Common Cause's Michigan chairman, Sam Ross, said discussion on the campaign finance measure "must begin immediately if reform is to be in effect for the 1978 election ..."

"We call upon Gov. Milliken to sign legislation providing for public funding of the gubernatorial election," Ross said. "No part of the effort to enact political reform is more important than public funding, in removing big money and special interest influence from the political process."

"The public funding bill is a separate and distinct piece of legislation ... and we deplore any effort to link this bill to other legislation or to play politics with reform in any other way," Ross said.

Milliken and Democratic legislative leaders are expected to meet this week to discuss the campaign financing bill, and both measures are expected to see debate when the legislature returns Wednesday for a two-day wrap-up session before breaking for the election campaign.

Judge Stands By Ruling On Bottle-Ban Stickers

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An Ingham County Circuit Court judge has refused to overturn a state agency's ruling that bars from retail liquor stores a sticker campaign against a ballot proposal to ban nonreturnable cans and bottles.

Judge James Warren on Monday rejected a suit filed by the beverage industry seeking to overturn last week's ruling by the Liquor Control Commission.

The industry had begun a campaign in which anti-"Proposal A" stickers were applied to six packs of soft drinks and beer.

The stickers were also supplied to retailers to apply themselves, but aroused opposition from backers of the proposal and some retailers.

Proposal A on the November ballot would outlaw nonreturnable beverage containers in Michigan.

The Liquor Control Commission ruled last week the campaign violated state rules prohibiting licensed outlets to engage in political activity. Only licensed beverage outlets were affected by the ruling.

The beverage industry suit claimed the ban was an infringement on its first amendment right of free speech. Warren disagreed, saying distributors were aware of state regulations when they began business and that the state should appear neutral in the campaign.

He denied the request he grant an injunction setting aside the commission's order.

He Doesn't Expect Perfection

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Democratic judges have gone overboard in protecting the rights of defendants in criminal cases, a Republican candidate for the Michigan Supreme Court charged Monday.

Alpena Circuit Court Judge Joseph P. Swallow said Democrats have a judicial philosophy that goes beyond ensuring the right to a fair trial.

"I certainly say every defendant is entitled to a fair trial, but not a perfect trial," Swallow said in a news conference. He said crime is the main issue in the Supreme Court race.

Swallow is running against Democrats Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh and Wayne Circuit County Judge Roman S. Gribbs, who won the Democratic nomination over incumbent Kavanagh.

Meanwhile, seventeen of the 19 past presidents of the State Bar of Michigan have joined in an unusual endorsement of Chief Justice Kavanagh for reelection.

In a letter Monday to 15,000 Michigan attorneys, the 17 called on the bar for financial support for Kavanagh's campaign to head off a threat "to the independence and integrity of our state's judiciary."

Veteran Sports Cartoonist Dies

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Harold V. "Bob" Coyne, of Cambridge, whose 15,000 sports cartoons adorned Boston newspapers for 47 years, including some now in the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., died Monday at a nursing home after a long illness. He was 78.

Don't Expect Quick Fix, Simon Tells Poor Nations

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon cautioned impatient poor nations today against seeking a "quick fix" to solve their economic problems.

Addressing the joint annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank, Simon also urged oil-rich lands to join the United States in emergency measures to ensure that World Bank funds for the poorest countries do not run out.

He said the U.S. economy is showing a "well balanced" recovery, although he predicted a slowdown of economic expansion in 1977.

Both employment growth and unemployment will decline next year in the United States, Simon predicted, with inflation expected to run at 5 to 6 per cent.

He said the slower American economic pace would be a "proper pattern" because continued 6 to 7 per cent growth in economic output over an extended period of time "would invariably overheat the U.S. economy, followed soon afterward by recession and unemployment."

In warning poorer countries against expecting any speedy resolution of economic problems, Simon said: "More and more people understand that this is not the case. I sense growing suspicion of the proposed instant solutions, the quick fix."

Simon said the United States strongly supports a "bridge agreement" to make sure the World Bank's International Development Association (IDA) does not run out of funds. Under such an agreement, governments would voluntarily commit contributions in advance to the IDA, allowing lending to continue into 1978.

"I would hope that prospective new members of IDA will voluntarily make contributions to this bridge agreement," said Simon, referring to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). World Bank President Robert S. McNamara and representatives of developing countries here have urged quick action to prevent IDA from running out of funds by next June.

Simon said the United States wants a bridging agreement reached by January. He suggested that the problem should be the primary topic of a meeting of IDA deputies next week in Kyoto, Japan.

All-Year Lake Shipping Data 5-15 Years Off

CLEVELAND (AP) — The only way to answer the questions about year-round Great Lakes shipping is to keep it going for another 5 to 15 years as a test, the Great Lakes Commission was told Monday.

And in a related report, the administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., D. W. Oberlin, told the commission that a joint 10-year U.S.-Canadian plan for a season extension program was near a final draft.

The call for a conditional year-round shipping program came from Brig. Gen. Robert L. Moore, North Central Division chief with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"That is what we are after, that is what we need, that is what we have got to obtain, and that is the only way we are going to answer all the doubts," Moore said.

Moore said he felt the Winter Navigation Board's past five years of work showed "that we need not be afraid of winter on the Great Lakes and in the St. Lawrence Seaway."

More to be feared than winter, he added, was "the severity of storms in late November and in late March, early April."

He agreed that feasibility of year-round shipping requires demonstration in the lower lakes and the St. Lawrence, with Canadian participation.

But he said he felt the key to doing so was full-season extension "to have the ships on the water ... all year round in order to gain the information to answer the questions."

To do so, he urged going ahead with bubbler systems for the harbors, ice booms and ice by-pass systems where needed, thermal units where agreed upon and whatever else might be required.

Oberlin, noting this year's closing date has been set for Dec. 18 and that it looks firm, said the act assuring a 2½-year extension of the winter program is awaiting President Ford's signature.

He also said the agreement nearing completion with Canada was expected to identify components, provide a timetable and estimate the funding that will be needed.

Canada already is planning new navigational aids for Lakes St. Louis and St. Francis, both of which are near the head of the seaway, he added.

BEING SQUARE is an outmoded expression that used to suggest someone who wasn't up-to-date, who wasn't "with it." The expression itself is now considered "square" ... but it has a useful application in interior decoration.

Most of the times in a room tend to be straight. They make up squares or rectangles or cubes. Many sofas (most, in fact) are rectangular shapes, and upholstered chairs are "boxes." Paintings are mounted in rectangular frames, and so on.

But a room which is all straight lines becomes literally too "square." It lacks visual interest. That's why good decorators introduce other shapes and lines. This also accounts for the popularity today of oval or circular tables, hexagonal tables, or the fine old drum styles.

Look at your tables. If the furniture is all "straight lines," do you break the monotony with graceful curves or hexagonal patterns? With an oval dining table, a drum-shaped lamp table, the graceful oval of a mirror? Remember the curves and your room will never be called "square."

You'll find all the interesting new shapes and styles in end and cocktail tables, as well as fine dining room tables. In our complete furniture display, we'll be glad to help you with your selection, and with any of your decorating problems. Come in and see us...soon!

Saginaw District Stymied

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — The Saginaw school system's push to keep federal funds by waging a court battle have been stymied by a U.S. District Court judge's ruling in another district's suit.

On Friday, Judge James Harvey dismissed a suit brought by the Flint Board of Education to keep the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from proceeding with desegregation plans for the district.

Last week, the Saginaw Board of Education had voted to use the Flint suit as a model in its own attempt to keep HEW from withholding some $5 million in federal school aid.

Dowagiac Pushes Hunt For Arsonists

DOWAGIAC — A state program which provides for a $1,000 reward for information about fires caused by arson will be promoted in the city, Henry Graper Jr., city manager, told the city council last night. Graper said the city fire department will promote the program in the wake of two recent fires believed caused by arson in the Dowagiac area.

One blaze gutted two apartments in a city public housing duplex on Sept. 19, causing an estimated $25,000 in damage. The second fire destroyed a barn in nearby Pokagon township Sept. 25, Graper said. Under the state program, sponsored by the Michigan Association of the Insurance Companies, information about possible arson may be mailed or telephoned to the group.

The system allows the person with information to remain anonymous and collect a reward if an arsonist is arrested and convicted.

In other areas, the council approved the plat for a portion of N10w industrial park on Pokagon street inside city limits. Approval of the plat is conditional upon receipt of a bond from N10w owners headed by Joey Andrews Jr. of Dowagiac to cover costs of a street and sewer and water lines in the park. Graper said cost of the bond is estimated at about $10,000.

In a related matter, the council gave final approval to the city's Economic Development Corporation's plans to purchase a 21,600 square foot building in the park from C.E. Hess and Sons.

Dowagiac, for $190,000. The building will in turn be leased to Glencroft, Inc., a Texas-based manufacturer of foam products.

The council approved the adoption of a 27-paragraph amendment to the city ordinance governing disorderly conduct. The amendment strengthens the ordinance for arrest and court purposes, the council said.

The council also announced it is going to issue 10-year, special assessment bonds totaling $21,181 to fund a two-block sanitary sewer project on Florence street and a curb and gutter project on a portion of Chestnut street. Total cost of the projects will be spread among property owners who had petitioned for the improvements and who are included in the assessment district.

Berrien Springs Zoning Lawsuit Hearing Oct. 18

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs village council was told last night that a court hearing was to be held Oct. 18 in a lawsuit against the village's zoning ordinance. Jerry Johnson, assistant village attorney, said the hearing was to be held in Berrien circuit court and would be a show cause hearing on whether a temporary injunction should be issued in the case. A temporary restraining order was issued by the court Sept. 30.

The order kept the village from enforcing the zoning provisions in the case pending the hearing.

The suit was filed by Daniel and Jennie Cristancho, owners of a foster home at 362 Washington street, and Kenneth Casey and Mac Holtz, residents of the home.

The Cristanchos' claim the zoning ordinance provision which requires commercial zoning for a foster home where more than three people live is unconstitutional.

The suit contends the rights of the residents are being violated because the ordinance denies them the right to reside in a residential area of the village. The Cristancho home, located in a residential area, has six full-time residents and one person on a temporary basis, according to the suit.

Johnson also informed the village council that two village policemen are to appear in federal court in Grand Rapids on Oct. 29 to face charges of alleged police brutality.

The charges were filed by William L. Baldwin against Frederick Foster and George John. The brutality allegedly took place May 23, 1973 when Baldwin was being transferred from Berrien county courthouse to the county jail.

Johnson said the village denies the allegations and village attorneys are seeking a pre-trial conference to determine if a trial is necessary.

Baldwin was being taken back to jail following conviction in a non-jury trial on a charge of rape. He is currently serving the 5 to 25-year prison sentence imposed in the case.

In other areas, the council called a special meeting for Oct. 12 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss a federal grant application under the public works employment act.

This act enables cities to apply for federal funds for development and improvements of public works programs. Berrien Springs would be seeking funding for water well and transmission lines, street improvements, construction of sewer lift station and force main, and curb and gutter improvements.

Engineering consultants from Williams and Works of Grand Rapids will be asked to make recommendations for such improvements before the village submits a grant application.

Carter To Speak In Detroit

Carter's first Michigan appearance since being nominated was Sept. 15, when he spoke to a group of labor leaders in Dearborn.

$32,300 Salary Freed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has ruled unconstitutional language in a budget bill which banned funds for the salary of a former reporter now employed by the Supreme Court. Kelley said Monday the legislature cannot prohibit the Supreme Court from spending its appropriation as it sees fit. He said a provision barring the use of funds to pay a specific salary was improper. The legislature had written language into a budget bill for the 1976-77 fiscal year which barred the salary of Roger Lane, a former Detroit Free Press reporter who is now an assistant to Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh. Lane, 58, took the position March 1 and is paid $32,300 a year.

Ferency: It's A 'Gimmick'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A candidate for the Michigan Supreme Court says the mass transit bill awaiting the governor's signature is "nothing more than an election-year gimmick." Human Rights Party candidate Zoltan Ferency, a supporter of mass transit, said the bill passed last week by the Legislature contains no definable mass transit program and does no favors for the people of the Detroit area. The bill is to fund mass transit in the metropolitan area by hiking license plate and auto transfer fees for residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. More money would come from the state, and the federal government is expected to award some $800 million to Michigan. Ferency said the tax on auto owners is discriminatory and that the bill violates the constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds majority vote in the House and Senate for bills appropriating money for local purposes. He predicted years of litigation over key features of the legislation.

Now Addicts Have To Pay

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's drug addicts will begin paying $6 per week for treatment, counseling and drugs they get at the city's 23 narcotics addiction centers, the Detroit Health Department has announced. Dr. William Klexton, head of the department, said the fee is necessary because of recent cutbacks in federal funding programs and increased operating costs. The alternative would be closing some of the centers before the end of the current fiscal year next June, he said. Detroit is currently treating about 7,000 narcotics addicts. Klexton estimates there are 30,000 heroin addicts in Detroit.

Milliken's Lobbying, Too

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has joined the governors of 12 other midwestern states in lobbying for the federal government to locate a proposed Solar Energy Research Institute in the Midwest. The governors, in a telegram to the federal Energy Research and Development Administration, said their states have received a relatively low share of federal research funds and called that an inequity. The list of potential sites has been narrowed to 20, including sites in Michigan, Nebraska, Indiana and Minnesota. Governors of eight other midwestern states said the institute would be beneficial to the entire area.

Over 1,000 Attend Funeral

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's top ranking police officers bade farewell Monday to Deputy Chief Reginald C. Harvel, who died by his own hand last Wednesday. More than 1,000 persons attended the Ebenezer A.M.E. church funeral service which had a family, rather than a military, atmosphere, at the request of Harvel's widow, Gwendolyn. Newly appointed Police Chief William L. Hart headed the police delegation. Officials said Harvel shot himself in death after his name was mentioned indirectly in a federal probe of Detroit drug operations. He never was called as a witness in the case or linked to it directly.

Police Reserve Upheld

DETROIT (AP) — A Wayne County Circuit Court judge has ruled the Canton Township reserve police force is a legally functioning department under the township charter. Judge Joseph Sullivan dismissed a suit by Leonard Waszczenski from Canton, who claimed township residents were in grave danger of "injury or death from gunshot wounds" with the armed reserve force on the street. The decision will allow the 23 reserve policemen to continue week night and weekend patrols of the western Wayne County township.

Highway Ad Act Signed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed a bill to bring the state Highway Advertising Act into line with federal billboard laws. The bill, aimed at assuring that Michigan will not lose federal highway funds, raises from $3 to $5 the permit fee to put up a sign next to a state highway, and removes a requirement for posting of bond. It also sets a 10-day period for the state to act on applications, and expands the area over which the state has control over signs. The governor also signed a bill amending the Highway Act to permit direct agreements between the state and county road commissions and townships or private parties to make improvements on state or county roads.

Forzano Quits As Lion Coach

named immediately, suggested that someone from the staff — or at least familiar with the organization — would replace Forzano, whose teams have wound up with 7-7 records in his two years.

One possibility was Ray Dempsey, an assistant in 1975 who became head coach at Southern Illinois University. The Salukis won three games the last three years, but this season are off to a 3-1 start.

Carr, 43-year-old defensive coordinator, played pro football for 10 years and was an assistant at Minnesota, Chicago (twice) and Philadelphia of the NFL before joining the Lions last season. Defense has been Detroit's strength and that made Carr a prime head coach candidate.

Shurmur, defensive line coach, was head coach at the University of Wyoming from 1962 through 1970. Before that he coached at Albion (1954-61) in Michigan, which happens to be ranked nationally this year among the nation's Division III teams.

Shipp, Detroit's offensive coordinator, was head coach of the New York Jets the last five games of last season. But that NFL experience doesn't mask the Lions' dismal offensive showing this year that hurt his chances for promotion.

Gibson was head coach last year of Charlotte of the new defunct World Football League.

Other Lions assistants are Bruce Beatty, Joe Bugel, Jerry Glavin, Floyd Reese and Art Zeleznik.

Rogers Lebow is Detroit's assistant general manager who some believe is in line to replace Thomas.

One player, who chose to remain unidentified, said the resignation came as a surprise to the team. "We had a regular team meeting at 2:30 this afternoon," he said, "and there was no indication then that anything was gonna happen."

He said Forzano told players several weeks ago he had no intention of resigning.

There has been a lot of dissension among the Lions the last couple years, with player revolts occurring during training seasons both this season and last.

Forzano, who had been offensive backfield coach, became head coach Aug. 3, 1974, a week after Coach Don McCafferty died of a heart attack. His successor will be the fourth head coach in the last decade. Detroit reached the playoffs just once in that span, in 1970 when they were 10-4 under Joe Schmidt.

Killings By Detroit Police Reported Subject Of Probe

DETROIT (AP) — Police officials said they had no comment today on a report the department is probing the disappearance of material dealing with the slayings of alleged drug dealers who may have been killed by policemen.

The report, in today's editions of the Detroit Free Press, quotes police sources that say they believe the two men, killed in separate incidents, may have been slain in October 1972 by an officer using a 9 mm gun.

The newspaper said sources said the officer who may have done the killings is still on the police force.

Police officers and homicide detectives said an investigation of the disappearance of files and tapes relating to the deaths of the alleged drug dealers will take weeks or months, the Free Press said.

Sources also told the newspaper that the police department probe "appears to go hand in hand" with the present grand jury probe into alleged drug activities among Detroit police because "similar people are involved" in both probes.

The Free Press reported that officers discovered the files and tapes were missing about two weeks ago when they reopened the investigation, based on an interview with an informant.

Top department officers met late Monday with Police Chief William Hart to discuss the missing files, the newspaper said.

Sources told the Free Press they believed some of the policemen named in the grand jury probe also were involved in drug dealings with the two slain alleged drug dealers, Edward Chatman, 44, and Raymond Walker, 30, both of Detroit.

Both were killed in Detroit as they sat in their cars, according to police records.

The Free Press said sources told it that the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration initially was not involved in the re-investigation, but could be interested now.

The DEA and the U.S. Organized Crime Strike Force are participating in the federal probe of police involvement in alleged narcotics payoffs.

Urges Taconite Tax Hike

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Gov. Wendell Anderson proposed today that taconite production taxes be increased to finance up to $70 million of the cost of an on-land disposal site for Reserve Mining Co. In remarks prepared for a Capitol news conference, the governor recommended that the 75-cent per ton production tax paid by all taconite companies be boosted to $1 per ton. The 25-cent increase, which would raise about $12 million in 1977, would go into a special long-range environmental protection fund which would help finance solutions to taconite mining-related environmental problems.

'Free' Mail' Booming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of letters from congressmen seeking reelection are being mailed to voters at public expense. The mass mailings constitute the latest instance of what critics say is use by congressmen of the free mailing privilege to win votes. Congressmen are prohibited from making mass mailings to their constituents within 29 days of an election. So Monday was the deadline and congressional mail facilities were busy. At one time Monday, an employee pushing a mail-filled hamper from a hallway outside the House folding room to a loading dock said, "We've been working nights and weekends for three weeks." Another said of the mail volume, "It's unbelievable. It's as bad now as I've ever seen it."

Dowagiac Pushes Hunt For Arsonists

DOWAGIAC — A state program which provides for a $1,000 reward for information about fires caused by arson will be promoted in the city, Henry Graper Jr., city manager, told the city council last night. Graper said the city fire department will promote the program in the wake of two recent fires believed caused by arson in the Dowagiac area.

One blaze gutted two apartments in a city public housing duplex on Sept. 19, causing an estimated $25,000 in damage. The second fire destroyed a barn in nearby Pokagon township Sept. 25, Graper said. Under the state program, sponsored by the Michigan Association of the Insurance Companies, information about possible arson may be mailed or telephoned to the group.

The system allows the person with information to remain anonymous and collect a reward if an arsonist is arrested and convicted.

In other areas, the council approved the plat for a portion of NiDow industrial park on Pokagon street inside city limits. Approval of the plat is conditional upon receipt of a bond from NiDow owners headed by Joey Andrews Jr. of Dowagiac to cover costs of a street and sewer and water lines in the park. Graper said cost of the bond is estimated at about $10,000.

In a related matter, the council gave final approval to the city's Economic Development Corporation's plans to purchase a 21,600 square foot building in the park from C.E. Hess and Sons.

Berrien Springs Zoning Lawsuit Hearing Oct. 18

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs village council was told last night that a court hearing was to be held Oct. 18 in a lawsuit against the village's zoning ordinance. Jerry Johnson, assistant village attorney, said the hearing was to be held in Berrien circuit court and would be a show cause hearing on whether a temporary injunction should be issued in the case. A temporary restraining order was issued by the court Sept. 30.

The order kept the village from enforcing the zoning provisions in the case pending the hearing.

The suit was filed by Daniel and Jennie Cristancho, owners of a foster home at 362 Washington street, and Kenneth Casey and Mae Holtz, residents of the home.

The Cristanchos' claim the zoning ordinance provision which requires commercial zoning for a foster home where more than three people live is unconstitutional.

The suit contends the rights of the residents are being violated because the ordinance denies them the right to reside in a residential area of the village. The Cristanchos' home, located in a residential area, has six full-time residents and one person on a temporary basis, according to the suit.

Johnson also informed the village council that two village policemen are to appear in federal court in Grand Rapids on Oct. 29 to face charges of alleged police brutality.

The charges were filed by William L. Baldwin against Frederick Foster and George John. The brutality allegedly took place May 23, 1973 when Baldwin was being transferred from Berrien county courthouse to the county jail.

Johnson said the village denies the allegations and village attorneys are seeking a pre-trial conference to determine if a trial is necessary.

Baldwin was being taken back to jail following conviction in a non-jury trial on a charge of rape. He is currently serving the 5 to 25-year prison sentence imposed in the case.

In other areas, the council called a special meeting for Oct. 12 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss a federal grant application under the public works employment act.

This act enables cities to apply for federal funds for development and improvements of public works programs. Berrien Springs would be seeking funding for water well and transmission lines, street improvements, construction of sewer lift station and force main, and curb and gutter improvements.

Engineering consultants from Williams and Works of Grand Rapids will be asked to make recommendations for such improvements before the village submits a grant application.

The council approved a Halloween parade sponsored by the Lions club for Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. The parade will be held on Main street.

The council also set 6 to 7 p.m. on Oct. 30, as the official trick-or-treating time for Berrien Springs children.

Milliken Will Sign Two Bills

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken is scheduled to sign bills requiring public bodies to hold open sessions and to fund a Detroit-area public transportation system later today.

The governor's office announced that Milliken will approve both bills in a ceremony in his office.

The open meetings bill requires that all deliberations and decisions made by public agencies be made in open session. Extensive notification requirements and availability of minutes rules are also included.

Public bodies could go behind closed doors in specific instances, however, such as disciplining an employee; strategy sessions during collective bargaining; discussions of purchasing property; and discussions of legal matters.

Any citizen or prosecutor could file suit to challenge the validity of a decision made illegally in secret, and courts would have the power to invalidate such decisions. The new law also includes penalty provisions for intentional violations.

The mass transit bill would increase two separate auto fees in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties to raise some $12 million in local revenue. The state would kick in some $25 million to attract up to $600 million in federal funding for a massive rail-bus system in the tri-county area.

Detroit-area residents will pay $2.50 extra for license plates and $6 more for transferring auto titles to fund the transit system. The bill, which passed last week after a major legislative battle, also restructures the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority.

Boone said the episode struck him as ironic.

"I just can't get it into my head that a Cabinet man can tell a bad joke in private and get tired, and then John Dean can tell the same joke to millions and get paid for it," Boone said. "The sad thing is he meant it as a joke. I did not understand at the time that it was his true feelings, nor do I think them to be now."

Here is some other reaction to the incident:

—Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan: The "anecdote was sordid and inexcusable but, as I understand it, Mr. Butz was simply repeating what someone else had told him. I don't think any racism can be attributed to him."

—The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. commented about "the mess in Washington. And now Butz breaks out at the mouth. But he's just saying what everybody else in Washington is thinking. I'm tired of all these resignations and I'm worried about America. Too many people in this country are out of work, they are hungry, they are mad, and if conditions do not soon improve, somebody is going to get killed."

—GOP Vice presidential candidate Bob Dole: "Secretary Butz was popular in many places. There's no doubt about it. But you have to weigh that against a very tasteless remark, one I felt difficult to swallow."

—Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.: "No man can slander an entire race and remain in public office today."

—Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill: Butz was "the greatest secretary of agriculture in American history." But he said the resignation was the proper move.

—Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd: "It became an act of political expediency rather than a resignation because of the offensiveness of the words themselves."

—Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., former chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus: "I think it's good for the nation he did resign. But as a politician I'm a little disappointed because I think Secretary Butz has served as a constant reminder of the racism that exists in this administration."

—Harold B. Steele, president of the Illinois Farm Bureau: "It is indeed unfortunate that Secretary Butz made a remark which reflects badly on the blacks of the nation. But it is even more unfortunate that this remark is being used to brand Secretary Butz as a racist. The programs, policies and personal attitudes of Secretary Butz are eloquent testimony to the fact that he is not a racist."

Ferency: It's A 'Gimmick'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A candidate for the Michigan Supreme Court says the mass transit bill awaiting the governor's signature is "nothing more than an election-year gimmick." Human Rights Party candidate Zolton Ferency, a supporter of mass transit, said the bill passed last week by the Legislature contains no definable mass transit program and does not favor the people of the Detroit area. The bill is to fund mass transit in the metropolitan area by hiking license plate and auto transfer fees for residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. More money would come from the state, and the federal government is expected to award some $600 million to Michigan. Ferency said the tax on auto owners is discriminatory and that the bill violates the constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds majority vote in the House and Senate for bills appropriating money for local purposes. He predicted years of litigation over key features of the legislation.

Now Addicts Have To Pay

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's drug addicts will begin paying $6 per week for treatment, counseling and drugs they get at the city's 23 narcotics addiction centers, the Detroit Health Department has announced. Dr. William Klextion, head of the department, said the fee is necessary because of recent cutbacks in federal funding programs and increased operating costs. The alternative would be closing some of the centers before the end of the current fiscal year next June, he said. Detroit is currently treating about 7,000 narcotics addicts. Klextion estimates there are 30,000 heroin addicts in Detroit.

Milliken's Lobbying, Too

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has joined the governors of 12 other midwestern states in lobbying for the federal government to locate a proposed Solar Energy Research Institute in the Midwest. The governors, in a telegram to the federal Energy Research and Development Administration, said their states have received a relatively low share of federal research funds and called that an inequity. The list of potential sites has been narrowed to 20, including sites in Michigan, Nebraska, Indiana and Minnesota. Governors of eight other midwestern states said the institute would be beneficial to the entire area.

Over 1,000 Attend Funeral

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's top ranking police officers bade farewell Monday to Deputy Chief Reginald C. Harvel, who died by his own hand last Wednesday. More than 1,000 persons attended the Ebenezer A.M.E. church funeral service which had a family, rather than a military, atmosphere, at the request of Harvel's widow, Gwendolyn. Newly appointed Police Chief William L. Hart headed the police delegation. Officials said Harvel shot himself to death after his name was mentioned indirectly in a federal probe of Detroit drug operations. He never was called as a witness in the case or linked to it directly.

Police Reserve Upheld

DETROIT (AP) — A Wayne County Circuit Court judge has ruled the Canton Township reserve police force is a legally functioning department under the township charter. Judge Joseph Sullivan dismissed a suit by Leonard Wasczenski from Canton, who claimed township residents were in grave danger of "injury or death from gunshot wounds" with the armed reserve force on the street. The decision will allow the 23 reserve policemen to continue week night and weekend patrols of the western Wayne County township.

Highway Ad Act Signed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has signed a bill to bring the state Highway Advertising Act into line with federal billboard laws. The bill, aimed at assuring that Michigan will not lose federal highway funds, raises from $3 to $5 the permit fee to put up a sign next to a state highway, and removes a requirement for posting of bond. It also sets a 10-day period for the state to act on applications, and expands the area over which the state has control over signs. The governor also signed a bill amending the Highway Act to permit direct agreements between the state and county road commissions and townships or private parties to make improvements on state or county roads.

named immediately, suggested that someone from the staff — or at least familiar with the organization — would replace Forzano, whose teams have wound up with 7-7 records in his two years.

One possibility was Rey Dempsey, an assistant in 1975 who became head coach at Southern Illinois University. The Salukis won three games the last three years, but this season are off to a 3-1 start.

Carr, 43-year-old defensive coordinator, played pro football for 10 years and was an assistant at Minnesota, Chicago (twice) and Philadelphia of the NFL before joining the Lions last season. Defense has been Detroit's strength and that made Carr a prime head coach candidate.

Shurmur, defensive line coach, was head coach at the University of Wyoming from 1962 through 1970. Before that he coached at Albion (1954-61) in Michigan, which happens to be ranked nationally this year among the nation's Division III teams.

Shipp, Detroit's offensive coordinator, was head coach of the New York Jets the last five games of last season. But that NFL experience doesn't mask the Lions' dismal offensive showing this year that hurt his chances for promotion.

Gibson was head coach last year of Charlotte of the now defunct World Football League.

Other Lions assistants are Bruce Beatty, Joe Bugel, Jerry Glanville, Floyd Reese and Art Zeleznik.

Rogers Lelew is Detroit's assistant general manager who some believe is in line to replace Thomas.

One player, who chose to remain unidentified, said the resignation came as a surprise to the team. "We had a regular team meeting at 2:30 this afternoon," he said, "and there was no indication then that anything was gonna happen."

He said Forzano told players several weeks ago he had no intention of resigning.

There has been a lot of discussion among the Lions the last couple years, with player revolts occurring during training seasons both this season and last.

Forzano, who had been offensive backfield coach, became head coach Aug. 3, 1974, a week after Coach Don McCafferty died of a heart attack. His successor will be the fourth head coach in the last decade. Detroit reached the playoffs just once in that span, in 1970 when they were 10-4 under Joe Schmidt.

Killings By Detroit Police Reported Subject Of Probe

DETROIT (AP) — Police officials said they had no comment today on a report the department is probing the disappearance of material dealing with the slayings of alleged drug dealers who may have been killed by policemen.

The report, in today's editions of the Detroit Free Press, quotes police sources that say they believe the two men, killed in separate incidents, may have been slain in October 1972 by an officer using a 9 mm gun.

The newspaper said sources said the officer who may have done the killings is still on the police force.

Police officers and homicide detectives said an investigation of the disappearance of files and tapes relating to the deaths of the alleged drug dealers will take weeks or months, the Free Press said.

Sources also told the newspaper that the police department probe "appears to go hand in hand" with the present grand jury probe into alleged drug activities among Detroit police because "similar people are involved" in both probes.

The Free Press reported that officers discovered the files and tapes were missing about two weeks ago when they reopened the investigation, based on an interview with an informant.

Top department officers met late Monday with Police Chief William Hart to discuss the missing files, the newspaper said.

Sources told the Free Press they believed some of the policemen named in the grand jury probe also were involved in drug dealings with the two slain alleged drug dealers, Edward Chatman, 44, and Raymond Walker, 30, both of Detroit.

Both were killed in Detroit as they sat in their cars, according to police records.

The Free Press said sources told it that the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration initially was not involved in the re-investigation, but could be interested now.

The DEA and the U.S. Organized Crime Strike Force are participating in the federal probe of police involvement in alleged narcotics payoffs.

CITIZEN PROTEST: John Smart, 1516 Nelson road, tells St. Joseph township board assessments are too high on for drain because of water in his basement but payments will be worse than water.

SJ Township Drain Payment Relief Asked

BY RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

An attorney representing about 15 St. Joseph township property owners in the Nelson storm drain assessment district last night asked the township board of trustees to extend assessment payments from five to 30 years.

Some 20 people attended the board meeting. Many commented that assessments on the property owners' share of the $94,994 project is more than they can afford to pay. One property owner's assessment was reported at $10,536.

The request for the time extension from Atty. Gary G. Hosbein produced no board action.

Township Clerk Bill Payne Smith said individual property owners share of the project is $37,567. Peoples Savings Association is to pay $24,065 on three parcels it owns, the township's share is $23,846 and the county's $9,300, according to Smith.

One individual assessment was reported as $10,536 for 10 acres of land and a home owned by Miss Margaret Garlanger, 80. Other assessments were reported to range to a low of $800 for a few people.

Supervisor Orval Benson said he didn't see how an extension could be granted when the money borrowed for the project is for three years. Benson said the board originally set the assessment period for three years, then extended payments to five. However, township Atty. John Crow agreed to meet sometime today with Hosbein to determine if a 30-year payment period could legally be granted under the state financing formula for the Nelson drain. Crow and Hosbein said they hoped to contact Atty. Chester Pierce, Detroit, regarded as a leading expert and "father" of the state drain code.

Hosbein said the Nelson drain assessment district consists of 25 parcels of land in the Nelson road-Washington avenue neighborhood. He said two parcels are owned by the township; three others by Peoples Savings Association; and the remaining 20 by private citizens.

Benson said the storm system is virtually completed, except for some resurfacing work on Nelson road. Benson said while the county has to repay the loan in three years, the township has to reimburse the money to the county, by payments from property owners affected.

Miss Garlanger, 3126 Washington avenue, was represented at the meeting by her nephew Donald Atwood, of Chicago, formerly of St. Joseph. He questioned why Miss Garlanger should pay $10,536 on her ten acres, when the Peoples Savings Association is assessed at $24,065 on 35 acres of vacant land.

Charles Barger of Barger Engineering, consultants to St. Joseph township, said the assessments are based on what is called Chapter 20 of the state drain code. He said the formula calls for the township to pay 24 per cent, the Berrien road commission, 10 per cent, and property owners, 66 per cent.

Barger said of the 66 per cent paid by citizens, one-third is spread equally across the assessment district, while two-thirds is based on proximity to the drain. Barger said a front foot assessment system could not work in financing districts for storm sewers.

Benson said this was the first time such a district has been financed in St. Joseph township under the Chapter 20 portion of the state code. Crow said as he remembers it, advice was sought from code expert Atty. Pierce in Detroit, and this was road taken.

Among citizens who spoke was Mrs. Frank (Stella) Nemethy Sr., 1598 Nelson road, who said her income is social security and her assessment for the drain is $8,250. Other citizens who spoke in opposition to the costs were John Smart, 1516 Nelson road; Ralph Poole, 3302 Washington avenue; and Mike Donekas, 1381 Nelson road.

Some were critical of advance notice on an earlier hearing on setting the assessment rolls. Benson said the hearing was held by the county, and the township had no part in this.

Benson added, however, that a notice of the hearing appeared in the newspaper and he tried to notify all people in the district by letters.

Some citizens said they thought the average assessment would be only about $900. The first assessment payments will be included with township tax bills next December.

The frustrations were sized up by Trustee Carroll Gerbel, who exclaimed: "I've sat here for one and three-quarter hours waiting to hear something we could act on. I haven't heard it yet."

The board recessed ten minutes and then quickly concluded general business. Treasurer Isadore G. DiMaggio was named liaison representative between the board and the township parks committee. Gerbel was appointed as the township representative on the Twin Cities Airport board.

HORNS OF DILEMMA: Atty. Gary Hosbein (left) asks St. Joseph township board to extend assessment payments of property owners in Nelson storm drain district from five to 30 years. Supervisor Orval L. Benson (right) said he doesn't see how this can be done, because loan has to be repaid in three years on $94,994 project. Some 20 citizens of district in Nelson road-Washington avenue area said assessments were more than they can afford. (Staff photo)

Fennville Tables Ambulance Plan

FENNVILLE — The Fennville city commission last night tabled for further study a proposal that the ambulance that serves the city and four townships be equipped with life monitoring systems linked to Holland hospital.

The proposal came from John Kelly, director of the ambulance that now serves Fennville and Lee, Ganges and Clyde townships and part of Manlius township.

There were no costs discussed, but Kelly said it would be more than each of the units now pay. All but Manlius pay $2,888 yearly to support the service. Manlius pays half the amount.

Kelly told the commission he now has nine people taking paramedic training in preparation for the possible change in services the ambulance would provide.

Last night's meeting was the first for the new city clerk, Mrs. Dorothy Garlock, 42, who was sworn into the appointive office last Friday.

The commission last night set her wages at $3.25 hourly. She replaces Janet L. Morse whose resignation was effective Oct. 1. Mrs. Morse moved from the city.

Also last night, the city commission set Halloween trick-or-treat hours for 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 31. Firemen and members of the Fennville Lions club will be patrolling streets to hold down vandalism.

Mrs. Garlock said the city commission also tabled for further study a proposal that water bills be tabulated and sent out by Manatron, a Kalamazoo computer firm which already computerizes the city's tax roll.

Two other men have also been arrested in the kidnap-murder of Frank Meli, 20, grandson of a Detroit man identified in U.S. Senate testimony as a major Mafia figure.

The two arrested earlier were identified as David Leroy Washington, 26, and Nathaniel "Winkie" Taylor. Both have been charged with first degree murder.

Berrien Farm Sales Exceed $42 Million

By JOHN FENNELL
Staff Writer

The market value of agricultural products sold by the 2,118 farms in Berrien county was more than $42.3 million, according to a 1974 government census on agriculture.

Production costs on those farms during that year totaled about $34 million, according to the report released by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

In 1969 when a similar census was taken, the market value of products sold by farms was $28.5 million. In 1974 the average farm grossed about $20,000 in sales compared to $11,372 in 1969.

The report shows that since 1969 the number of farms in Berrien county decreased by 395. However, farms with sales of $2,500 or over have only decreased by 39, the report said.

Farms with sales of $2,500 or more accounted for $41.3 million of all agricultural products sold in 1974 and $27.4 million in 1969.

There were 1,343 of these farms in 1974 compared to 1,382 in 1969. The average size increased from 124 to 129 acres during the five years between reports. The value per acre of the land in these farms increased from $498 to $738, raising the average value per farm from $61,831 to $95,314, the report said.

The market value of livestock and their products on farms of $2,500 or more of sales was $4.9 million in 1974; poultry and their products, $1.3 million; and crop sales, including fruit, grain, nursery, hay and forest products, $35.1 million.

Farms reporting less than $1,000 in sales numbered 151 in 1974. The value of agricultural products sold on those farms was about $45,000.

Bloomingtondale Cuts School Programs

BLOOMINGTONDALE — The Bloomingtondale school board last night cut $37,091 in programs and warned it may have to cut others in order to erase a projected $89,120 budget deficit for the 1976-77 school year.

In a special session attended by some 150 people, the board eliminated summer band, one sponsor each for the ninth and tenth grades, three (and possibly four) teacher positions, and the head teacher position at the Grand Junction elementary school. It also reduced to a half-year the school's enrollment in the Regional Educational Media center (for film services), cut the duties of the librarian and ordered studies of transportation costs.

The cuts are necessary Supt. Donald Dragoo told the audience, because a drop in school enrollment from last year will bring a corresponding drop in state aid funds.

This year's school enrollment, according to the fourth Friday count, is 1,414 students, 93 fewer than the 1975-76 enrollment of 1,507.

The enrollment dip will mean about $56,000 less in state aid. The school also had a carryover deficit of $33,000 from the 1975-76 school year, school officials said previously.

Dragoo said the board will meet in special session again next Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Pullman school to consider how to cut another $52,000 from the school's budget.

A proposal last night to cut $9,250 from the school's athletic budget met with resistance and was rejected by the board in favor of a joint faculty-board-citizen committee to study athletic program expenses.

Last week, school officials announced an expected deficit of $113,000 in a budget of $2,080,000. That figure was based on a 100-student drop and the $33,000 carryover deficit, according to Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, board president.

Last night, Dr. Dragoo presented a reduced tentative budget of about $2,027,000, from which the $89,000 projected deficit must be clipped, Mrs. Johnson said.

School officials last night did not discuss the proposed shift of sixth graders from the middle school to the elementary school.

The shift would provide more room at the middle-high school building and end split shifts for grades seven through 12.

A man owing over $5,000 in support payments for two children was sentenced to 90 days in jail yesterday in Berrien Circuit court and threatened with a one-year jail sentence if he continues to fall behind in payments.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court office, reported four men were held in contempt of court by Circuit Judge William S. White for child support arrearages.

Lester J. Young, of 213 Colby street, Benton Harbor, was ordered to spend concurrent 90-day jail terms for two cases, each involving one child on ADC. He was also sentenced to two years probation.

In one of the cases Young was $2,620 in arrears, while in the other he was $2,871 behind in payments. Pastrick said the last payment made for either child was in July of 1973.

After his release from the county jail, Young must make weekly payments of $16 in support for each child and $5 on each arrearage, White said.

Eugene Spencer, of 596 Superior street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to two years probation. He was ordered to pay $10 in weekly child support payments for two children on ADC and to pay $5 a week on an arrearage of $2,069.

Russell W. Downs, of 219 Sycamore, Niles, was ordered to pay $50 immediately, $5 weekly for the support of one child on ADC and $10 a week on the arrearage of $539. He was also sentenced to two years probation. Pastrick noted that Downs' last support payment was made Nov. 20, 1973.

Johnnie C. May, of 106 West Division street, Watervliet, was put onto one year probation. While unemployed, May must pay $25 a week. If he misses two support payments he will be sentenced to 30 days in jail, White ordered.

May is $900 in arrears for one child on ADC.

Suit Fights Apartment Rezoning

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Three Coloma residents have filed suit in Berrien Circuit court challenging rezoning approved by the city commission which would allow construction of an apartment complex. The commission on Aug. 23 by a six to one vote approved rezoning about six acres on the west side of South Church street from residential to multi-family to allow construction of the proposed 48-unit apartment development.

The suit seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction prohibiting the city and the city commission from issuing any permits or taking other action surrounding "its illegal rezoning act." The suit also asks the court for a declaratory judgment declaring the rezoning illegal and that it was made without administrative due process of law. Plaintiffs in the suit are Robert Demske, Andrew Thomas, and Jan Wier, whom the suit identifies as property owners whose land abuts the parcels which were rezoned.

Cited as defendants were the City of Coloma and Commissioners Fred Munchow, Norman Carrothers, Harold Hammond, Glenn Randall, Wavia Noack, William Weybright, and Robert Wooley. Weybright cast the only "no" vote on the rezoning proposal. The suit contends the rezoning is invalid because it was done without administrative due process, alleging that "even though the city commission attempted to hold meetings on this proposed zoning change on July 26 and Aug. 16, neither meeting was validly constituted because of failure of the city to publish proper notice of the meeting and because of the lack of quorum."

The plaintiffs claim the "sole purpose for the passage . . . was to increase the city's tax base," and that the rezoning constitutes "spot zoning, having no relationship to an overall land use plan nor any other logical scheme of planned growth or land use within the City of Coloma." The suit also charges that the city failed to hold any substantive hearing on the proposed zoning change and failed to make any independent findings of fact as to existing sewage, water, and drain capacity in the proposed development area, ability of schools to absorb increased student growth, or the effect on adjacent property values.

The proposed developer of the complex is James Dine, of 4621 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville. His proposal calls for constructing three two-story buildings, each with 16 apartments. Adjacent property owners had filed objections to the rezoning, including a petition signed by 14 of 18 adjacent property owners. Commission approval for the rezoning stipulated that the project be limited to the three buildings, construction begin within one year, and the property must be fenced.

Diesel-powered A5's are safer to operate than gas-driven tanks formerly used by battalion, Army said. Tank incorporates all modern design and safety systems of M60 tanks in current use by active Army units. A5 costs about $400,000 less to build, however. Elements of 1st Battalion, 246th Armor, include Headquarters Company, Dowagiac; Company A, St. Joseph; Company B, Manistee; Company C, Cadillac; Combat Support Company, Three Rivers; and Troop C, 238th Cavalry, South Haven. New tanks will be on display at Armories.

Baroda Group Wants 2nd Look At Trailer Park

BARODA — The Baroda village council last night was asked to order construction stopped on a 75-site mobile home park and schedule a referendum to determine the desirability of such a park in the village.

The construction halt was requested by Sam Somora, 1476 South street, to enable the council more time to answer questions by the residents regarding sewage treatment facilities for the park and how the property will be zoned, should a zoning ordinance be adopted by the village. The referendum was asked in a petition submitted to the council by Somora. The petition was signed by 77 people.

Approximately 10 residents were present, objecting to the council's procedure in approving the permit to Rudl Eichen-dorff, 1889 Leomon Creek road, to build the park on 28 acres on Stevensville-Baroda road.

The permit was issued on Aug. 25 by Henry Nitz, building inspector, with the approval of Jerry Piley, council president. Tentative approval on the project was given by the council last November but final approval was not given.

Somora questioned why 75 sites were approved in the permit when it was reported to him by Lyle Livacy, Berrien county health department, environmental protection division, that only 50 sites were approved by the department to meet the sewage treatment requirements.

Piley stated the village and county were given the same plans but Livacy would be contacted to check the discrepancy.

The council voted to contact the village attorney, John L. Crow, St. Joseph, regarding the petition and the authenticity of a reported state requirement that eight per cent of the population in each community be permitted to reside in mobile homes.

The council was told earlier by State Rep. Harry Gast, Jr., that such a requirement was in effect and the council had no choice but to allow either a mobile home park or mobile homes on individual lots scattered throughout the village.

Somora argued that, based on the present population, "only about 12 mobile homes would have been permitted, which would be much better than 75."

On how the property was zoned, Piley said the village did not have a zoning ordinance. The council later agreed to establish a zoning board and begin plans for adopting such an ordinance. Piley called for residents to volunteer to on the board.

In other business, Piley reported a $150,000 community block grant, applied for jointly with Baroda township, had been approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. It was not known when the funds will be made available to the local agencies.

The council voted to retain Leslie R. Cripps and Associates, Berrien Springs, to assist in administering the funds. The grant will make funds available for such projects as housing rehabilitation and/or loan guarantee programs, sidewalks and demolition of undesirable buildings.

Council members voted to file for a federal public works act grant through the Economic Development administration for extending water mains from Lake township to the village and township. The application will be made by the village on behalf of both agencies.

Members also approved hiring Wightman and Associates, St. Joseph, and Cripps and Associates to prepare and submit the application at a cost of $25 per hour, the total cost not to exceed $2,500. The expense will be shared equally by the two agencies.

Mrs. William Ohmann, of the Cripps organization, said the village and township will also be responsible for an additional amount in engineering fees if the grant is not approved. She said all plans must be certified for construction use within 90 days from the time the funds are approved. If approved, engineering fees will be paid with funds from the grant.

It was reported last month 50-60 per cent of the priority rating is based on unemployment and Berrien county is one of the top three or four on the list. Mrs. Ohmann stated, of the 9,000 unemployed in the county, 900 are considered construction workers. Funding is available on a "first come, first served" basis, she said, and after the 900 construction jobs are made available through the grants, all other applications will be placed on a waiting list.

Piley stated he would request a meeting with Lake township officials to determine a cost for water from Lake township.

The council appropriated $100 to the Concerned Parents of Baroda for the purpose of sponsoring a Halloween party on Oct. 30 in the Baroda elementary school. The party is open to all village and township residents. No trick or treating will be allowed in the village or township on Halloween, Oct. 31.

Planning Discussed In Baroda

BARODA — Members of the Baroda township board and the township planning commission met with county health and planning officials last night to discuss preparation of a township land use plan.

Soil survey maps, showing the various types of soil in the township, were presented at last night's meeting. The maps will be used in making up the land use plan.

Charles Eckenstahler, county planning director, explained the soil survey maps to board and planning commission members.

He said the survey maps help show areas where septic tank sewage systems must be limited.

Eckenstahler said it will take a minimum of 12 months to complete the entire land use plan. When completed, the plan will show such things as where municipal sewer service is needed.

The board and planning commission members will meet on the first Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall until the plan is completed. The meetings are open to the public.

Coloma Board To Seek Jobs Funds For New Gym

COLOMA — The Coloma school board last night voted to seek a federal public works employment act grant to finance construction of new junior-senior high school gymnasium. Supt. William Barrett said if the grant is approved, there would be no need to place a property tax millage issue before district voters for financing. But, he said, approval of a grant would not eliminate the possibility of seeking an operating millage for the structure.

The board, meeting in a brief special session, voted to hire the firm of Perkins, Rogers and Associates, Inc., of Detroit, to fill out the application for a grant which could exceed $3 million. The cost for preparing the required application will not exceed $3,000, according to Barrett.

Seeking the federal grant will be the "major effort" to build the gymnasium and equip it, said Barrett.

Board Member Richard Eastman said, however, the board is not abandoning the efforts of interested school district residents in placing the measure before the voters. The residents petitions with 397 signatures requesting the issue be placed on the ballot were submitted to the board Sept. 13. Several previous attempts to get bond issue approval have been defeated by voters.

In another area, the board appointed Miss Marjorie Krieger as the assistant principal of the Coloma junior high school.

Miss Krieger has been in the Coloma school system for over nine years and presently is a reading teacher at the junior high. The board set her salary at $18,234 as assistant principal. She is receiving $14,828 as a teacher, according to Barrett.

Berrien Farm Sales Exceed $42 Million

By JOHN FENNELL
Staff Writer

The market value of agricultural products sold by the 2,118 farms in Berrien county was more than $42.3 million, according to a 1974 government census on agriculture.

Production costs on those farms during that year totaled about $34 million, according to the report released by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

In 1969 when a similar census was taken, the market value of products sold by farms was $28.5 million. In 1974 the average farm grossed about $20,000 in sales compared to $11,372 in 1969.

The report shows that since 1969 the number of farms in Berrien county decreased by 395. However, farms with sales of $2,500 or over have only decreased by 39, the report said.

Farms with sales of $2,500 or more accounted for $41.3 million of all agricultural products sold in 1974 and $27.4 million in 1969.

There were 1,343 of these farms in 1974 compared to 1,352 in 1969. The average size increased from 124 to 129 acres during the five years between reports. The value per acre of the land in these farms increased from $498 to $738, raising the average value per farm from $61,831 to $95,314, the report said.

The market value of livestock and their products on farms of $2,500 or more of sales was $4.8 million in 1974; poultry and their products, $1.3 million; and crop sales, including fruit, grain, nursery, hay and forest products, $35.1 million.

Farms reporting less than $1,000 in sales numbered 151 in 1974. The value of agricultural products sold on those farms was about $45,000.

Rogers Wouldn't Resent Big Score By Wolverines

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Bo Schembechler denies running up the score on anybody. But he can go ahead Saturday without hurting Darryl Rogers' feelings.

The Michigan State coach said Monday he learned his lesson long ago about resenting a bad defeat. The lesson may make Saturday's clash with archrival Michigan a little easier to bear.

"A guy ran up a score on me one time," Rogers recounted. Rogers said he later complained to the coach about throwing the ball late in a game with his team far ahead.

"He said to me: 'Don't blame me for your poor personnel,'" Rogers said.

"Whoever he has, we have to contend with," he explained. "You have to play a full 60 minutes."

Based on the Spartans' performance in their 24-6 loss to Notre Dame last Saturday, it may seem much longer than 60 minutes in Ann Arbor this weekend against the No. 1-ranked Wolverines.

Although the previously shoddy defense came up with its best game, the offense went nowhere against the tough Irish defenders. There was little blocking, little running, poor passing, poor catching, and a downright lousy kicking game — including the coverage of punts and kickoffs, according to Rogers.

The lone bright spot was the defense, which Rogers called "phenomenal in terms of improvement. You couldn't ask a defensive unit to give you a greater opportunity — five times they turned the ball over to the offense inside the 50-yard line.

"We had the things to beat Notre Dame," he insisted. "We had the opportunities and weren't able to capitalize on them."

"Our kicking game has hurt us as much as anything all season — it just isn't being taken care of — running, blocking and kicking," Rogers said.

He said quarterback Ed Smith had a poor game, receivers dropped passes, and "we haven't blocked anybody with any consistency."

To make MSU's problems worse, offensive tackle Tony Bruggenthies injured his knee Saturday and is questionable for the Michigan game. Rogers said the giant (6-3, 265-pound) tackle would see a doctor before his status is determined.

Schembechler, meanwhile, believes sports writers should be "honest."

They should be fans of the teams they're assigned to cover and should write "positively" about them, he says.

"If I'm a writer and I'm following Michigan, I am Michigan," he said. "If I'm following the Detroit Tigers, I am the Detroit Tigers."

"You mean, you think a reporter should be a fan?" a newsman asked incredulously.

"You're darn right he should be a fan!" Schembechler responded.

He was speaking at his weekly news luncheon in Ann Arbor before about a dozen sports writers and broadcasters.

His provincialism didn't appear to set well with those present, who claimed the necessity for writing objective stories about Michigan, the Tigers, the Detroit Lions, or whatever.

"There's no objectivity in sports writing," asserted Schembechler, whose team is ranked No. 1 in the country heading into Saturday's home clash against intra-state rival Michigan State.

Schembechler seemed somewhat upset over reports the previous week which he felt tended to downgrade the caliber of Michigan's opponent, Wake Forest. Saturday the Wolverines didn't have it as easy as the stories suggested, but beat the Demon Deacons, 31-0.

"You guys gotta do a better job on college football," he said. "You cover it like the pros. You're too cynical with the pros. You always look for the negative."

Schembechler has consistently sloughed off the significance of being ranked first in the poll. When reminded that might be the type of "negative" attitude he dislikes he grinned and said pollsters should continue to vote his Wolverines on top.

Schembechler also went to the defense of a couple of head coaches whose teams are struggling: Dick Crum of the University of Miami, Ohio, where Schembechler once was head coach, and Rick Forzano of the Detroit Lions. Schembechler's comments came hours before the Lions announced Forzano's resignation Monday.

"I don't like to see what's happening to Forzano down there," he said. "I know him and I know he knows how to coach."

The Lions are off to a 1-3 start, having lost Sunday to previously winless Green Bay.

Miami, meanwhile, has lost all its five games for its worst start in decades.

"Look, that was bound to happen," Schembechler said. "The coach is the same coach who won 21, lost one and tied one (the last two years). If Miami goes 0-11, I'm still a Miami man."

"My first year there we were 2-3-1 and they (fans) hung me (in effigy) out there in the square. Then we went out and beat Bowling Green and we wound up 5-3-1."

Michigan enters Saturday's game with a 4-0 record to Michigan State's 1-2-1.

Fullback Rob Lytle, who rushed for 110 yards and two touchdowns against Wake Forest, was named Michigan's offensive "Champion of the Week." The defensive award went to defensive back Jerry Zuver, who recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass.

Hungry Vikes Trip Steelers

Turnovers Key 17-6 Win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's "Purple People Eaters" look hungrier than ever in 1976 and they remain unbeaten a month into the National Football League season.

The Vikings, now 3-0-1, capitalized on six Pittsburgh turnovers and ravaged the defending Super Bowl champions 17-6 in a nationally televised interconference battle Monday night, leaving the Steelers critically wounded.

"I can't believe our defense has ever matched our effort," said fifth-year middle linebacker Jeff Siemon. "In terms of total effort, everyone is coming up with big plays."

And while the defense did its thing, the Minnesota offense stayed on the ground more than normal under the direction of quarterback Bob Lee, who played the entire game for Fran Tarkenton.

The 36-year-old Tarkenton missed the first starting assignment of his 16-year career because of injury. The veteran Vikings' defense picked off four Terry Bradshaw passes, recovered two Pittsburgh fumbles, and blocked two field goal tries and an extra point attempt. The work of the Minnesota special team on the Steelers' kicking game left Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela astounded.

"You get a kick blocked on you once in awhile and you expect it," said Gerela in the subdued Steelers' locker room. "But three in a row. That's never happened to me."

The Vikings have now blocked three-of-four extra point tries and three field goal attempts. "They're the best I've ever seen at doing that," said Bradshaw. "Just absolutely awesome."

Bradshaw, in fact, was so impressed with Minnesota's interior strength that he changed signals early in the fourth period. With the Steelers at their own 28 on fourth down — a few inches shy of a first down — he originally left the huddle planning to try for the first down.

"Then I gave it a little more thought," said Bradshaw, who instead called a timeout and went to the sidelines to confer with Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "I think against any other team we'd have gone," said Bradshaw. "They're so super in goal line and short yardage situations and besides, we were down only 7-6 and there was still 12 minutes or so left in the game."

The decision to abort the effort for a first down backfired. "There are no tricks in this business," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant. "You don't want to admit to yourself though that you can't make a yard."

The Vikings have given up only 34 points in victories over the Steelers, Detroit and New Orleans and a 10-10 overtime tie against Los Angeles.

"They're gonna be there at the end, man," whispered Pittsburgh running back Franco Harris, who was held to only 34 yards in 17 carries. "They're some kind of a football team and they love to hit."

Minnesota capitalized on Pittsburgh turnovers for all their scoring.

Nate Allen picked off the first of his two interceptions on the night and returned it nine yards to the Pittsburgh 36 midway through the second period.

Chuck Foreman, who gained a career-high 148 yards in 27 carries, led the scoring charge with 28 yards on five carries, including an eight-yard scoring smash, and Fred Cox kicked the extra point, giving the Vikings a 7-6 lead.

The Steelers, who had scored on Bradshaw's one-yard pass to Bennie Cunningham in the first quarter, watched three scoring opportunities disappear in the face of the Vikings' defense in the third period.

Gerela had two short range field goal tries blocked and Bradshaw was intercepted with the Steelers at the Minnesota 15. Minnesota, which blew a similar opportunity late in the first half, converted a poor center snap by Mike Webster into its second TD. Allen, who has been brilliant all season for the Vikings, recovered at the Pittsburgh seven and Foreman jackknifed through two plays later for his fifth touchdown of the year.

FIRST FOR FOREMAN: Minnesota Viking back Chuck Foreman (44) high steps over teammates who flattened out Pittsburgh line enough to enable Foreman to pick up first down in third quarter action. Foreman rushed for a career high 148 yards in the Vikings' 17-6 win Monday night at Bloomington. (AP Wirephoto)

Orr Lifts Black Hawk Title Hopes

NHL Launches Season Tonight

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Hockey League launches its 60th season tonight with two relocated teams, one relocated superstar, some new curbs on violence and high hopes for an independent television network.

The season will run through April 3, the playoffs will go another month or so and then, in all likelihood, the Montreal Canadiens will again be crowned Stanley Cup champions.

In the meantime, there will be 720 NHL games played and some of them will be in Cleveland, where the California Seals have relocated as the Barons, and in Denver, where the Colorado Rockies have risen from the ashes of the Kansas City Scouts.

Bobby Orr, the longtime star of the Boston Bruins, has packed up his knee brace and moved west to join the Chicago Black Hawks in a curious transaction. Orr, who signed with Chicago as a free agent, picked up a reported $3 million. But the Bruins haven't gotten any compensation yet and it is unclear just what they will receive under the NHL rule providing for payment of players, cash, draft choices or a combination of the three in return for losing a free agent.

It is also unclear how well the injury-riddled Orr can perform, although he was very impressive in the recent Canada Cup series.

The NHL, upset over increasing violence among its players and even more upset about the resultant bad publicity, lawsuits and court cases, has passed some new rules this season designed to crack down on chronic offenders. Fines, suspensions or both, it is hoped, will help rambunctious players control their tempers.

Faced with the prospect of a second straight year without national television coverage — NBC dropped the NHL after the 1974-75 season — the league has put together its own television package and is trying to sell it to independent networks. A series of 13 telecasts is planned for Monday nights starting Jan. 3.

The season opens tonight with Atlanta visiting Washington and Colorado hosting Toronto.

A look at the four divisions:

WALES CONFERENCE
Norris Division
Montreal won this division by 42 points last season, and this time around they may make it a runaway. Guy Lafleur, who led the league with 125 points, Yvan Cournoyer and Co. will be joined by Rejean Houle, a 51-goal scorer last season in the WHA. Ken Dryden and Bunny Larocque form an impressive goaltending duo and the defense is tops.

Los Angeles, with talented goalie Rogie Vachon and slick center Marcel Dionne leading the way, should finish second. The Kings will also give the league's new anti-violence rules a severe test, having acquired tough guy Dave Schultz from Philadelphia.

Pierre Larocque, 20, who piled up 111 points last season, could help offense-minded Pittsburgh challenge for second place. The Penguins defense should be better with the addition of goalie Denis Herron and defenseman Don Awrey.

Adams Division
Boston, Buffalo and Toronto all have a chance to win this division. The Bruins, minus Orr, have solid goaltending in Gerry Cheevers and Gilles Gilbert. The offense is respectable if unspectacular, but the defense — except for Brad Park — is questionable. Buffalo will try to get by again with a strong offense built around the French Connection line of Gil Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert. But the Sabres' defense is over-worked and the goaltending situation is worse.

Toronto, with talented young players like center Darryl Sittler, Swedish defenseman Borge Salming and goalie Wayne Thomas, is in the process of building a contender. The Barons have a good goalie in Gilles Meloche but will probably finish last in this hotly-contested division.

CAMPBELL CONFERENCE
Patrick Division

The Philadelphia Flyers are almost as deep as the Canadiens but could be hurt by injuries. Goalie Bernie Parent, trying to overcome a neck injury, was unimpressive in exhibition play and will miss at least the first month of the campaign with a broken toe. Wayne Stephenson may have to shoulder the burden again this season. Bobby Clarke, second to Lafleur with 119 points last year, has a bad leg. But Reggie Leach, 61 goals, and Bill Barber, 50, will assure the Flyers of a potent offense.

If anyone beats the Flyers, it will be the New York Islanders. The Islanders failed to come up with a big gun on offense during the off-season but they still have strong goaltending in Glenn Resch and Billy Smith and a good defense anchored by Denis Potvin.

Atlanta doesn't score much but the Flames hustle on defense and Dan Bouchard and Phil Myre are a dependable goaltending duo.

The New York Rangers' hopes of overtaking Atlanta rest largely with Phil Esposito. New York picked up Ken Hodge from Boston to help Esposito get the puck but they didn't do much to help the defense which sorely needs it.

Smythe Division

Bobcat Golfers Trip Bridgman

BRIDGMAN — Steve Ontiveros took medalist honors with a 38 while leading Brandywine golfers to a 166-185 win over Bridgman in a non-league match Monday here at the Bridgman Country Club.

John Nichols added a 41 for Brandywine, while Jamie Stevens had a 42 and Brian Thomas 45. Bridgman had Ed Schroeder at 44, Brett Boyd 46, Ray Swart 46 and Ken Kamp 49.

Brandywine also won the jayvee match 180-189.

Benefit Game

BLOOMINGDALE — State police from the Paw Paw post will take on the Bloomingdale alumni in a benefit football game, Saturday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the high school field here. Proceeds will go to the Bloomingdale Athletic club. Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for students.

INDOOR TENNIS

FAMILY MEMBERSHIP $15.00

429-5285

If the gifted defenseman is anything like his former self, the Hawks could be much improved ... on the ice as well as at the box office. They won the division last year by one point over Vancouver.

The Canucks traded away several unhappy players in the interest of team unity and didn't get much in return. Aging goalie Cesare Maniago is among the new faces. The offense is led by Dennis Ververgaert and Don Lever.

The St. Louis Blues have a new coach in Emile Francis but they still need defense and goaltending. Garry Unger and Chuck Leffley supply the offensive punch. Minnesota has some new faces — goalie Gary Smith and Swedish forward Roland Ericksson — but not enough of them to make a difference. And the Colorado Rockies are merely the Kansas City Scouts in disguise ... and they won't fool anybody.

Free Agents Faced Risks

Jackson Won Gamble, McCovey Lost

NEW YORK (AP) — How many players will win the free agency gamble and how well will it pay off?

There are 26 players who did not sign their 1976 baseball contracts. Twenty-three became free agents at the end of the regular season Sunday. Three others will become free after the playoffs or World Series. Most of them are quality players coming off good 1975 seasons. So they stand to help themselves financially because they didn't sign 1976 contracts.

Players become free agents for two basic reasons. They want more money and security and think another team will offer it, or they want a chance to play regularly. Playing regularly, of course, also could lead to making more money.

But there are risks in not signing a contract. A player could have a bad season or he could get injured.

Reggie Jackson, for example, spurned a multi-year contract worth hundreds of thousands of dollars from the Baltimore Orioles, figuring the value for his services would be inflated by the open market once he became available to the highest bidder.

Jackson, however, won his gamble. His slugging statistics of 27 homers and 97 RBI are tops among the 19 hitters who will be eligible for the Nov. 4 free agent draft. Every major league team could use a 30-year-old power hitter.

Willie McCovey didn't win his gamble. He didn't sign a contract with the San Diego Padres and was traded late in the season to Oakland. With the A's, he seemed to have lost his once-famous bat speed and power. In 24 at bats, he had five hits — none for home runs. He didn't have an RBI. Who wants a 38-year-old former power hitter?

At the beginning of the season there were some 60 unsigned players. More than half of those signed, motivated by an improved offer or perhaps by the knowledge they were having a bad season and wouldn't be worth that much on the open market.

That leaves 26 unsigned players, many of whom look like winners at free agent roulette. The top infielders available are Dave Cash, 28, who batted .283; Bobby Grich, 27, an All-Star second baseman who batted .286; and Sal Bando, 32, who had 27 homers and 84 RBI.

Top outfielders besides Jackson are Joe Rudi, 30, an excellent fielder who batted .270 with 13 homers and 94 RBI; Gary Matthews, 26, who hit .280 with 20 homers and 84 RBI; and Don Baylor, 27, who hit .245 with 15 homers and 68 RBI.

If a team is looking for a starting pitcher, Don Gullett and Wayne Garland are available. Gullett, 25, is 26-7 over the past two seasons, while Garland, 25, was 20-7 in 1976. Garland, in particular, inflated his value. He was 2-5 in 1975.

Need a strong relief pitcher? What about 30-year-old Rollie Fingers, 13-11 and a 2.41 earned run average? Or Bill Campbell, 17-5 and a 3.02 ERA? Campbell, 28, really hit the jackpot since his 4-6 record in 1975 would not have warranted a big contract in 1976.

Lancers Sweep

Lakeshore's seventh and eighth grade girls basketball teams swept a pair of games Monday from Brandywine. The seventh grade Lancers won 31-9 and the eighth grade girls took a 28-26 decision.

HARTFORD — Patti Schmid tossed in 13 points Monday to help Lake Michigan Catholic's eighth grade girls basketball team trip Hartford 29-9. Hartford took the seventh grade game 38-20.

Meeting Slated

The Lakeshore youth baseball and softball association will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First National Bank on Red Arrow Highway. Anyone who wants to be a manager or coach should attend.

Little SAC Team Big Winner Lawrence Riding Streak

Lawrence may be the smallest school in the Southwestern Athletic Conference...but it is becoming a big factor on the gridiron.

The Tigers (2-0 in the conference) will put their 12-game league winning streak on the line Friday night when they travel to Bloomingdale (0-1) in a SAC battle.

This weekend will also feature a battle of Big Seven unbeaten teams when Kalamazoo Loy Norrix (2-0) travels to St. Joseph (2-0) on Friday. And Lake Michigan Catholic, 2-0 and ranked 26th in the AP Class C poll, hosts eighth-ranked Hartford (2-0) at Dickinson Stadium on Saturday in a key Red Arrow encounter. The Indians are the area's No. 1 offensive and defensive team, averaging 380 yards on offense and 115.7 on defense.

In other SAC games Friday night, Gobles (0-2) is at Martin (0-1), Marcellus (2-0) hosts Lawton (0-2) and Decatur (2-0) hosts non-league foe Hopkins.

Holland (1-1) is at Niles (1-1) in a Big Seven contest, while over in the Wolverine, Paw Paw (0-3) travels to Otsego (1-2) and Allegan (0-2) hosts South Haven (2-1). For some unexplained reason, the pollsters dropped the Rams from 11th to 27th place in this week's Class B poll, even though South Haven won 42-0.

In Allegan-Ottawa contests, Covert (0-2) travels to Saugatuck (0-1) while Fennville (0-1) hosts non-conference squad Grandville Calvin Christian.

Even though Bloomingdale hasn't won a game yet this season, coach Jim Coady isn't taking the Cardinals lightly. "I think they are a good, quick team and can cause all kinds of problems," he mentions. "And it's their homecoming."

The Cards run the option, and they threw 21 times last week. They also have a good defensive backfield and don't give up many yards on the ground."

If the ground game can't get on track, Coady has a good passing game to rely on. "The passing game has come around, and I don't really like to throw that much," he grins. "Jim Mason is a good, steady passer. He throws a pass that is easy to catch."

A mainstay for the Tigers on defense has been linebacker Jeff Queen. "Jeff is the best middle linebacker this league has seen in a long time," Coady declares. "He has been our leading tackler in all three games and will probably continue to do so."

Lawrence is nearing the league record of 17-straight SAC victories set by Decatur in the 1971-73 seasons. But it will have to go a long way to equal the Raiders' overall conference mark. Decatur has an amazing 27-3 record through the first five years of the SAC.

Gobles has been the hard luck team in the league thus far this season. In three games, the Tigers have run up 711 yards total offense and have yet to win a game. "The kids aren't down," comments coach Dave Armstrong. "We'll bounce back."

Armstrong indicates that Martin has a strong running game. "We will definitely have to stop the run," he says. "But they have a weak passing game, according to my scouts."

"This week we're going to work on our defense because it has been poor. Our offense is there."

Jeff Price is Gobles' quarterback, and Armstrong likes his performance so far. "Jeff is an excellent runner and passer," he indicates.

Nose guard Steve Roden also drew praise from the coach for his play last week against Marcellus.

Paw Paw has been great between the yard markers but still hasn't put a point into the end zone. "We outstrutted Plainwell and Vicksburg and still didn't score," comments Redskins head coach Dick Doll.

The guard spot has been a big problem for Doll this season. Scott Price, the leading guard candidate, has a chipped bone in his neck and hasn't played a minute yet. Now, two more guards, Mark Gregory and Mark Shipley, could both be out for the season with injuries.

"Otsego has a pretty good running attack," Doll says. "And they have a good quarterback in Jim Luoma."

The point ratings to determine the state playoff teams will begin a week from Wednesday.

MSU Increases Women's Budget

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University women's athletic programs will get almost 50 per cent more money this year than last year, as well as a new scholarship program.

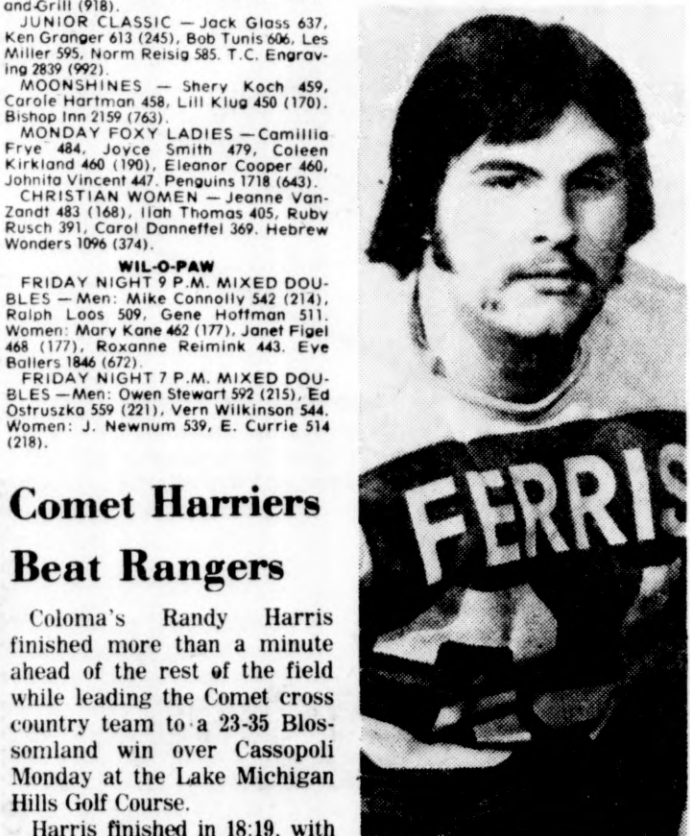

The allocation for women's intercollegiate athletics for 1976-77 will be $254,000, an increase of $82,600 over last year. As recently as 1970, there was no money specifically tagged for women's athletics.

Included in the appropriation is $30,000 to begin the scholarship program. The program is expected to increase each year until it matches scholarships for men's non-revenue-producing sports, the school announced Monday.

The allocation for women's sports also includes increased funds for parttime and assistant coaches and travel expenses.

The university's total intercollegiate budget as approved by the Board of Trustees is $3.3 million, an increase of 12 per cent over last year.

The athletic budget is self-supporting, and university officials said they expect increased revenue from football, hockey and basketball.

Comet Harriers Beat Rangers

Coloma's Randy Harris finished more than a minute ahead of the rest of the field while leading the Comet cross country team to a 23-35 Blossomland win over Cassopolis Monday at the Lake Michigan Hills Golf Course.

Harris finished in 18:19, with Cass' Lavaughn McNary second in 19:34. Ranger Victor Hawks was third, but the Comets got the next four spots, with Brian Dilts fourth, Bruce Vandervort fifth, Steve Hardman sixth and Don Umphrey seventh.

Coloma is now 2-2 in the league and 3-4 overall.

Bobcats' Harriers Snap Eddie String

EDWARDSBURG — Edwardsburg's 15-meet cross country winning streak was snapped in "overtime" by Brandywine in Blossomland action here Monday.

The meet ended in a 28-28 deadlock, but tie-breaker rules then gave the Bobcats a 17-19 victory (rules call for using the first four runners, instead of five, for scoring when there is a tie).

Brandywine took the first two places, with Mark Commons first in 16:26 and Joe Kachoris second in 16:28. Taking the next three places for Edwardsburg were Ken Dyeus (16:38), Dan Parsons (16:45) and Mark Haines (16:50).

In a real battle for the sixth spot, Jim Morrow of Brandywine (16:52) just caught Dan Hoover of Edwardsburg (16:53) at the finish line. There was also a tight race for the eighth spot, with Brandywine's Steve Gibson finishing in 17:10 and Edwardsburg's Kevin Turner in 17:11.

The next two places went to Edwardsburg's Craig Grover (17:57) and Brandywine's Tim Pipke (17:58).

Michigan's Duck Hunters Can Shoot 'Bonus' Bird

Changes in the point system for the Michigan duck season will allow hunters to bag a "bonus" bird.

Guns opening the state's 30-day season at noon Wednesday will be able to shoot one more bird than last year if they are selective.

This is possible because values of high-point ducks have been dropped — the redhead from 100 to 70 and the female mallard, black duck, wood duck and hooded merganser from 90 to 70.

"It's a definite boost to hunters in Michigan," declares district Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist Tim Payne, while noting that hunters filled their bag under the 100-point maximum limit last year when they shot two high-point birds. They can now shoot a high-pointer, one of low value and another 70-pointer before breaking the 100 barrier. (Hunters must stop when the point value of ducks he has killed in a single day reaches or exceeds 100.)

Federal guidelines decreased the point value from 35 to 25 on the baldpate, oldsquaw, scoter, ruddy, bufflehead, goldeneye, male mallard and ring-necked ducks. The point value was increased from 15 on the scup, pintail, blue-winged teal, gadwall, shoveller and common and redbreasted mergansers. Canvasbacks top the list with a 100-point value.

Population levels are used to determine the point value of ducks.

Southwestern Michigan hunters will be shooting mainly at mallards and wood ducks. And hunting should be just about the same as last year.

"Duck hunting will probably be about as good as last year," states Payne, "but I don't think it will be any better."

Payne says the birds are concentrated more cause dry late-summer weather has dried up many potholes. The low water conditions also probably hurt rearing success a "little bit."

Hunters will generally be shooting at native birds in Wednesday's opener, but Payne says there are "some indications that teal are moving in" from the north.

The 30-day season runs through Nov. 24. The goose season in southwestern Michigan also starts Wednesday and goes through Nov. 30, except at the Allegan State Game Area, where it runs from Oct. 21 through Nov. 14.

The DNR has also issued a reminder to those constructing blinds — the name and address of the person constructing the blind must be affixed in waterproof letters, not less than three inches high.

All hunters under the age of 65 must also have a Michigan waterfowl stamp, in addition to a small game license and a federal waterfowl stamp.

Hunting is already underway in the area for squirrels, raccoon and deer (bow and arrow only).

The DNR says squirrel hunting has been "good to excellent." Hunting near hickory trees with an abundance of nuts is the best bet. However, heavy foliage is hampering efforts.

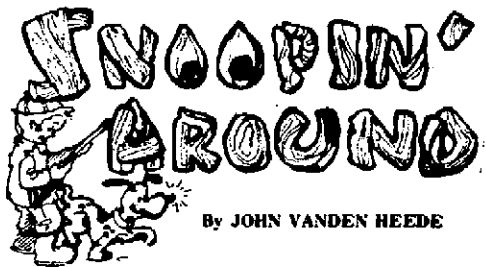

Dense cover is also making it a bit rough for archery deer hunters.

The DNR says there are plenty of raccoons and the "activity will pick up as fall progresses."

The Department of Natural Resources is seeking the help of hunters in a new program which will monitor lead levels in ducks.

The study is an outgrowth of new federal regulations which will require waterfowl hunters to use non-lead shot in Michigan next year.

Biologists hope to learn how long lead remains in the environment. There will be follow-up checks in upcoming seasons.

Some biologists believe 10 per cent of the duck population dies each year from lead poisoning. "One No. 4 shot could kill a bird," declares Tim Payne, a district DNR wildlife biologist.

And because females are the most susceptible — almost twice as much as males — Payne says lead poisoning is "kicking the production of birds right in the head."

Gastric juices in ducks break down the lead shot, turning it into lead salt. Waterfowl then absorb the lead salt into their bloodstream. An anemic condition follows, with the birds losing weight and usually dying.

Hunters wishing to cooperate in the study are asked to keep the gizzards and wings of ducks they shoot in a freezer. They will be collected at the end of the season — at a date and place to be announced later. The wing will determine the species, sex and age of the birds. Other information needed includes the place and date of the kill.

The recent Ducks Unlimited membership banquet raised a record $7,990, according to Ash Brecht, treasurer of the DU Southwestern Michigan Chapter.

An all-time high 275 tickets were sold for the seventh annual event at the St. Joe Kickers Sport Club at Arden.

The area DU chapter has now contributed about $35,000 overall to the national organization for use in preserving waterfowl habitat.

Hunting In 1975 Was 'Good'

Although Michigan's 1976 small game hunting seasons are barely underway, sportsmen may be interested in a summary of last year's results affixed recently compiled by the Department of Natural Resources.

Harvests of small game in 1975 were generally "good" says DNR statistician Luis J.

Hawn.

Hawn says records included harvests of woodcock, 389,060, up from 283,130 in 1974; snowshoe hares, 756,530, up from 553,000 in 1974; and deer, 96,370 bucks during the regular firearm season, up from 89,470 bucks in 1974.

The statistician notes that numbers of small game hunters increased again from the previous year, a pattern seen for four consecutive years. A total of 626,493 sportsmen hunted for small game in 1975, the most to participate since 652,020 went afield in 1968.

An all-time mark was set for numbers of firearm deer hunters, 711,540, topping the 657,500 hunters in 1974. Bowhunters improved in two categories — hunter numbers of 120,700, up from 102,000 in 1974, and in recording a record harvest of 8,780 deer, up from 7,960 in 1974.

Harvest total for other species of game in 1975 included 837,019 pheasants; 830,520 ruffed grouse; 651,860 ducks; 32,439 geese; 32,450 coots; 2.47 million cottontail rabbits; 1.12 million squirrels; 330,940 raccoons; and 111,170 quail.

Fishing Report

Salmon fishing on the Big Lake remains generally slow, although fishermen continue to "mark" fish. One of the best lures for trollers has been the J plug.

Probably the best success has been on the St. Joseph River below the Berrien Springs dam, where anglers are taking some coho and steelhead in addition to chinook. Anglers are also having success on the Paw Paw River at the Watervliet dam and on the Kalamazoo River at the Allegan dam.

Pressure is down on most inland lakes in southwestern Michigan. However, fair bluegill success has been noted by the Department of Natural Resources on Stone Lake in Cass county — fishing 20 to 25 deep. Some pike have also been taken on Painter Lake in Cass county.

BIG ONE: Todd McKie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McKie of Benton Harbor, caught this 40-inch, 30-pound chinook on the St. Joseph River. The Fairplain junior high seventh grader caught the salmon on a 15-pound test line with a tadpole lure.

Winter Sports Exposition This Week At Kalamazoo

KALAMAZOO — A winter sports exposition, entitled Michigan Snow Show '77, will be held at Wings Stadium in Kalamazoo Oct. 8, 9 and 10. It will include exhibits and attractions relating to skiing, snowmobiling, winter travel and other winter leisure time activities.

Country music singers Jack Blanchard and Misty Morgan will provide daily free stage shows. Also on stage will be the reigning Misses Minnesota and Iowa, and the former Miss Minnesota will present a "disco" winter fashion show. Other attractions will include an indoor ski ramp for ski demonstrations, a mini ice rink for skating activities and an indoor archery range.

There will also be an "antique" snowmobile display.

Vandals Kill Hatchery Trout

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Some 100,000 to 150,000 trout were killed Sunday when vandals shut off the incoming water supply at the Pendills Creek National Fish Hatchery, officials said.

With the incoming water supply turned off, the hatchery water overheated, killing the fish.

Police said they believe vandals also broke a wooden dam at the site. The trout were to be planted in the Great Lakes in the spring.

South Haven Will Help Fix Up Park

By TOM KENNER
South Haven Correspondent
SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven city council last night agreed to participate with the South Haven school system in a project to upgrade Baer park near the Central school.

Harold Gaarde, schools superintendent, told the council that the U. S. Soil and Water Conservation district had agreed to pay 75 per cent of the estimated $21,000 expense to stabilize existing and potential erosion problems at the park and improve recreational areas in the three-acre tract.

The park is located in a ravine near Center and Michigan

streets. During wet weather the park is not usable.

The city's involvement will be replacement of an existing calwalk-type sidewalk along Center street at an estimated cost of $1,500.

In other matters, council again tabled action on a proposed new zoning ordinance at the request of the planning commission. The ordinance has been in preparation for more than two years and has been before the council for adoption since July. Mayor Richard Lewis said the planning commission wishes to review additional minor points before presenting it to the council Oct. 18.

Council specified the annual Halloween trick-or-treat time for children in the city as Saturday, Oct. 30 from 6 to 8 p.m. The South Haven Ministerial association was given permission to conduct a UNICEF drive on the 30th.

James Hale, 311 Van Buren street, was appointed to the planning commission to fill the unexpired term of Kenneth Coe who recently resigned.

Alderman Wilbur Ingrham resigned as the council representative to the Community Recreation and Education saying the 5 p.m. meeting time is not conducive to his business schedule. Alderman Norvan Books was appointed the new representative.

Council agreed to pay half the cost for the installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of Superior street and Broadway. The state highway department will pay the other half.

The council recognized with appreciation the work of the city Bicentennial commission. It also expressed gratitude to members of the Beta Sigma Phi service sorority for its efforts in beautifying Dyckman park this summer.

The council paid tribute to Edwin Appleyard and Alfred Bours for publishing a pictorial history of South Haven. The book is being sold by the South Haven hospital auxiliary as a fund raising project.

The council stood in silent tribute to former alderman Galen McKee Gilden who died Saturday.

Alderman Robert Warren suggested the the administration examine the possibility of going to monthly billings for water and sewer utilities instead of the present bi-monthly procedure. He cited the growing difficulty for people to budget the amount of money needed to pay the increased billings.

Big Polls Differ On Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the big national polls charting the presidential campaign have come up with sharply differing pictures of the race.

The latest Gallup poll gives Democrat Jimmy Carter an 8-point lead, 50-42, while a Yankelovich poll, conducted for Time magazine, indicates a neck-and-neck race, 43-43.

The difference has been clouded somewhat by George Gallup's announcement that his organization's latest report was based on incomplete tabulations and may have to be revised.

But he says any revision will be minor.

Gallup also disclosed that incomplete reports on two earlier polls underestimated the Democratic candidate's strength. He swore off from making any more partial reports between now and election day.

"Henceforth," he said, "we will wait until we have a full sample."

Train Hits Car; Four Unhurt

NILES — Four people escaped injury here about 4 yesterday afternoon when the auto they were in was hit by a slow-moving freight train. Niles city police said. Driver Casimer Sass, 60, Manistee, told police he had not noted the flashing lights and bells at a Conrail crossing on US-31-33 north until it was too late to avoid the accident. Sass told police he tried to back the car off the tracks but was unable to and the front end of the car was struck by a two-car freight train.

Also escaping injury in the accident were the driver's wife, Pearl, 68, Adalyne White, 73, Ludington, and Bernice Ruba, 52, Scottville.

AT THREE OAKS

Neighbors Say Fire Whistle Too Loud

THREE OAKS — Three Oaks township Fire Chief James Flick told members of the Three Oaks township board last night he will try to resolve complaints that the siren on the fire station blows too loud and too long whenever there is a fire.

Flick said he will meet with volunteer firemen to see if the siren blast can be shortened in the daytime and possibly eliminated at night.

Flick said the siren alerts volunteer firemen to fire alarms. He said it would not be possible to eliminate the siren in the daytime because many firemen are away from radio alarms installed in their homes.

At night, it may be possible to do away with the siren because most firemen would be near their radios, he said.

Board members last month said they received several complaints about the siren from residents living near the fire station on East Linden street. The board voted to have Flick appear at the October meeting to discuss the matter.

The siren blows a short blast at noon each day and blows a warning of about one minute's duration for fire alarms, board members said.

Several complaints may have been triggered when the siren stuck once last month for several minutes, board

In other areas, Mrs. John Freehling told the board several residents south of the village of Three Oaks had hired an attorney in connection with their complaints regarding a 2½-acre pig farm in the township, owned by a Three Oaks man. She said the residents object to alleged noise and odor from the farm.

Supervisor Alfred Hellenka said the township had filed a suit in August in Berrien Circuit court seeking to stop the pig farm owner, Robert Fultz, Three Oaks, from continuing the operation because of township ordinances against nuisances and pollution.

Board members said they would meet Monday, Oct. 11, to interview applicants for the job of sexton at Forest Lawn cemetery.

Cassopolis Man Hurt In Crash

UNION — A Cassopolis man was in critical condition this morning at Elkhart General hospital with injuries suffered when he was thrown from his car last night as it crashed through a guard rail on US-12 about three miles east of Union.

Cass sheriff's deputies said the victim, Anthony D. Ferguson, 21, route 3, Osborn street, Cassopolis, was taken to the Elkhart hospital shortly after the 10 p.m. accident.

Deputies said Ferguson was alone in his westbound car attempting to pass three other vehicles when oncoming traffic forced him back into the right lane.

Officers said Ferguson's car struck one of the cars he was attempting to pass as he moved back into the lane. The Ferguson car then crashed through the guardrail and rolled down an embankment, throwing the driver from the car.

The other car in the collision was driven by Joseph DeFauw, Granger, Ind., deputies said. DeFauw and a passenger were not injured, officers said.

No tickets were issued, but the accident remains under investigation, officers said.

Bridgman Seeking Sand Plant Plans

BRIDGMAN — Bridgman city commissioners last night called for a meeting with representatives of Martin Marietta Aggregates to discuss the firm's plans for construction of sand mining facilities in Bridgman.

Martin Marietta in August announced plans to build a $7 million sand processing plant and loading system in Bridgman. However, more recently, Martin Marietta officials have said the plans are not definite.

The commissioners last night voted to send a letter to the firm requesting it be represented at the next commission meeting which was rescheduled for Monday, Oct. 25. The regular meeting Oct. 18 was cancelled.

The firm is presently seeking city approval for an extension of a permit to haul sand from the firm's south site in Bridgman over Red Arrow highway to its existing plant north of Bridgman. The new plant would be located at the south site.

Commissioners said last night action would be withheld on the sand hauling permit until the firm's plans are known.

Board members said they want to know if the firm still intends to build the new plant.

The present sand hauling permit has expired and the firm has ceased hauling sand from the south site, commissioners said.

In a related area, the commission instructed City Supt. Milford Mellon to contact officials from Martin Marietta and the state to discuss ways of preserving Bridgman's sand dunes from destruction by sand mining.

Another sand mining firm, Manley Bros. Inc., of Chesteron, Ind., was granted a renewal of its permit to mine sand on a three-acre area west of Red Arrow highway north of Lake street.

The firm's request had received a recommendation from the planning commission.

In other areas, Mellon told commissioners a request had been sent to the Army Corps of Engineers asking that a permanent solution be found for erosion on Weko beach.

Mellon said the sand erosion was endangering the city's water intake pipes by eating away at the sand underneath them, thus weakening them.

The city is presently fighting the problem by filling in with sand, he said.

Commissioners voted to have Mellon apply for a federal grant of $325,000. If approved, the money would be used for water and sewer extensions and repairs in the Toth subdivision.

Mayor Ronald Gelesko announced that trick-or-treat hours this Halloween would be from 6 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 30. He said trick-or-treat would end at 7 p.m. so children can attend a Halloween party at the Bridgman American Legion hall which begins at 7 p.m.

The commission voted to sell water outside the city limits. The action rescinds a previous policy of no water service without annexation.

The action came at the request of Phil DeMelenae who is building a house on Gast road. Commissioners said he would change to the Lake township water distribution system when it is installed.

He requested water service to avoid the expense of drilling a well, commissioners said.

The commission rescheduled its next meeting to Oct. 25 so a public hearing can be held on a rezoning request.

The request is from the Lazy V motel on Red Arrow highway which is seeking a change from residential to planned development so it can expand.

Commissioners indicated the approval for the expansion plans voted last month would have to be withheld until after the required public hearing.

The commission instructed Mellon to send letters to area industries reminding them truck loads should be covered so debris does not blow off onto cars. The action comes in the wake of complaints from residents, commissioners said.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Two Men Injured By Raps On Head

Wesun Watkins, 57, Howell, Mich., was reported in "serious" condition this morning at Mercy hospital with a head injury. Benton township police said Watkins was struck with a piece of pipe in the 1300 block of Pearl street Monday evening. A woman was taken into custody, then released when Watkins declined to sign a complaint, police said.

Benton Harbor police Monday investigated another injury to a man allegedly inflicted by a woman. Police said Acy Robinson, 885 LaSalle avenue, was treated and released at Mercy hospital for cuts on his face. Robinson said he was struck by a woman wielding an unknown object at his home, according to police. No arrest was made pending signing of a complaint.

Benton Harbor police said Thomas Scott, 22, of 738 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, was arrested Monday on a warrant charging breaking and entering the Eddie Sims residence. Scott was booked at the Berrien county jail. The warrant alleges the residence at 527 Whitcomb court was broken into Sept. 29.

Two thefts reported to Benton Harbor police Monday were:

—Tools valued at $250, from the pickup truck of Willie Pratcher, 370 Cedar street, parked at his home.

—A television, valued at $150, from the apartment of Gloria Dickerson, 695 Highland avenue.

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven city council last night agreed to participate with the South Haven school system in a project to upgrade Baer park near the Central school.

Harold Gaarde, schools superintendent, told the council that the U. S. Soil and Water Conservation district had agreed to pay 75 per cent of the estimated $21,000 expense to stabilize existing and potential erosion problems at the park and improve recreational areas in the three-acre tract.

The park is located in a ravine near Center and Michigan streets. During wet weather the park is not usable.

The city's involvement will be replacement of an existing catwalk-type sidewalk along Center street at an estimated cost of $1,500.

In other matters, council again tabled action on a proposed new zoning ordinance at the request of the planning commission. The ordinance has been in preparation for more than two years and has been before the council for adoption since July. Mayor Richard Lewis said the planning commission wishes to review additional minor points before presenting it to the council Oct. 18.

Council specified the annual Halloween trick-or-treat time for children in the city as Saturday, Oct. 30 from 6 to 8 p.m. The South Haven Ministerial association was given permission to conduct a UNICEF drive on the 30th.

Council accepted the low $2,150 bid of Motorola Communications for 10 radio receivers for the fire department.

James Hale, 311 Van Buren street, was appointed to the planning commission to fill the unexpired term of Kenneth Coe who recently resigned.

Alderman Wilbur Ingrham resigned as the council representative to the Community Recreation and Education saying the 5 p.m. meeting time is not conducive to his business schedule. Alderman Norvan Books was appointed the new representative.

Council agreed to pay half the cost for the installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of Superior street and Broadway. The state highway department will pay the other half.

The council recognized with appreciation the work of the city Bicentennial commission. It also expressed gratitude to members of the Beta Sigma Phi service sorority for its efforts in beautifying Dyckman park this summer.

The council paid tribute to Edwin Appleyard and Alfred Baars for publishing a pictorial history of South Haven. The book is being sold by the South Haven hospital auxiliary as a fund raising project.

William J. Hover, 1 Erie street, presented the council with a Michigan flag to be flown in front of city hall.

The council stood in silent tribute to former alderman Grace McKee Glidden who died Saturday.

Alderman Robert Warren suggested the administration examine the possibility of going to monthly billings for water and sewer utilities instead of the present bi-monthly procedure. He cited the growing difficulty for people to budget the amount of money needed to pay the increased billings.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE TO VACANT BENTON HOUSE: Benton township firemen battled fire three and a half hours early today that extensively damaged this vacant house on Meadowbrook road east of Yore avenue. CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Oliver J. Troster, 62, a New York investment broker and member of the University of Illinois Foundation, died in a hotel room here Saturday.

Big Polls Differ On Campaign

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the big national polls charting the presidential campaign have come up with sharply differing pictures of the race.

The latest Gallup poll gives Democrat Jimmy Carter an 8-point lead, 50-42, while a Yankelovich poll, conducted for Time magazine, indicates a neck-and-neck race, 43-43.

The difference has been clouded somewhat by George Gallup's announcement that his organization's latest report was based on incomplete tabulations and may have to be revised.

But he says any revision will be minor.

Gallup also disclosed that incomplete reports on two earlier polls underestimated the Democratic candidate's strength. He swore off from making any more partial reports between now and election day.

"Henceforth," he said, "we will wait until we have a full sample."

Decatur Okays Housing Grants

DECATUR — The Decatur village council last night approved two housing rehabilitation grants, including one for an apartment house. Approved was a $9,543 grant to Mrs. Veta McGrew for her four-apartment house at 117 East Sherwood street. Mrs. McGrew, a widow, lives in one of the apartments.

The grant money comes from an $83,000 federal community development grant the village received for housing rehabilitation from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year. A second grant for housing rehabilitation in the amount for $4,345, for Mrs. Nellie Gothard for her property at 216 West Beers street was also approved by the council.

In other areas, the council turned down a request by the Veterans of Foreign Wars that its property on North Phelps street be rezoned from agricultural to industrial to allow construction of a VFW hall. The rezoning rejection came after home owners in a nearby subdivision said construction of the hall, and bingo games the VFW is planning to hold there, would add to traffic and reduce home values.

Appraisal values of two downtown properties the village wants to buy for offstreet parking were also approved. Accepted was the $7,500 appraisal for the Lawrence Vliek property on East Delaware street, adjacent to Harding's store, and the $5,000 appraisal of the Lee Titus property on West Sherwood, just off Main street.

The council also voted to accept the low June bid of a Kalamazoo firm to reroof the fire hall and council room.

The $3,340 bid is from Hockstra Roofing of Kalamazoo. Council trustees said the Hockstra bid was the only "solid bid" it had received on the proposed reroofing project. The council had delayed until last night in accepting the bid as it tried to get other bids on the project.

Lee Twp. Asks About Liability

PULLMAN — The Lee township board last night instructed township Clerk Melvin Riston to find out if the township would be liable for accidents at piers built by private citizens on township-owned land around Upper Scott lake.

Riston said the subject came up when several township residents voiced complaints about piers that have been built on township land without township board approval.

Riston said there are an estimated 10 or 12 piers that have been erected and the township board is now concerned about the board's liability in case of accidents.

The board asked Riston to check with the county prosecutor about rights and responsibilities in connection with the unauthorized piers.

In another area, Riston said the township has been told by the sheriff's department that a contract to provide a deputy and a car for added township police protection will have to wait until after the November election.

The township board wants to hire a deputy to patrol township areas at night.

Township officials said that because incumbent Republican Sheriff Robert Whitcomb was defeated in the August primary, he will not enter into a contract with the township for the night patrols.

High Court Gives Go Ahead To Death Penalty

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Criminal executions, absent from the United States since 1967, are now one legal step closer to returning. But some of those who fought to restore the death penalty say the nation's gas chambers and electric chairs may remain idle for years.

The Supreme Court, in refusing Monday to reconsider its decision of last July upholding the death penalty laws of Florida, Texas and Georgia, removed a federal delay of executions in those states.

The death penalty laws of other states also are expected to meet the high court's requirements, but prosecutors discounted any possibility of mass executions of death-row prisoners in the near future.

In the meantime, the court agreed Monday to hear arguments in a different case that raises the question of whether the death penalty is constitutional for the crime of rape, as opposed to crimes where another person's life is taken.

After the court denied rehearings in the cases from Florida, Texas and Georgia, Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill predicted there will be no mass executions in his state and said appeal procedures could delay the first execution for two years. There are 39 men on death row in Texas.

James Whisenand, deputy attorney general for Florida, said the legal apparatus of issuing mandates to state courts, establishing execution procedures and presenting death warrants for approval by the governor would consume at least six months.

In Georgia, where an execution set for Nov. 6 was delayed indefinitely, officials said they expected the state's sentencing courts to take time to either reset execution dates or stay executions.

Florida has 71 men on death row and Georgia has 58. Nationwide, more than 600 prisoners have been sentenced to death.

In New York, a spokesman for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund

said that organization will continue its fight to prevent executions in the three states whose laws obtained Supreme Court approval.

David Kendall said NAACP attorneys will try to prove that the death penalty, although not viewed by the court as unconstitutional because of rape, is unconstitutional because it discriminates against blacks and poor persons.

The argument of disproportional effect was used in past attempts to block reinstatement of capital punishment.

"I think our chances of obtaining relief for some people are good," Kendall said.

The rape case that the court agreed to review involves the case of Ehrlich Anthony Coker, who wants the court to declare his ordered execution unconstitutional because his crime did not involve the taking of a human life.

Coker was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the abduction and rape of a Waycross, Ga., woman on Sept. 2, 1974.

The woman had given birth to a child three weeks before her abduction.

In other cases, the court: —Sent the death penalty cases of two convicted murderers, Charles Martin Neal and Carl Albert Collins, back to the Arkansas Supreme Court for further consideration in light of the high court's recent decision. —Agreed to hear a government appeal against lower court rulings that restricted the power of agents to search for evidence in drug cases.

—Agreed to review an Arizona Supreme Court decision upholding the censuring of two Phoenix attorneys for advertising their fees and services, a practice prohibited in Arizona, as it is in most states.

—Refused to review court-ordered busing plans affecting schools in Boston and Charlotte, N.C.

Goblin Time Set In Coloma Twp.

COLOMA — The Coloma township board last night set Halloween Trick or Treat hours in the township from 5 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 31.

In approving the hours, Supervisor Ewald Eckblom suggested all youngsters in the township going house to house be accompanied by an adult or parent.

In other areas, the board approved rezoning 28 subdivided lots from agricultural to residential use in the Secluded Acres subdivision, off Becht road. The rezoning involving 56 acres of land had been approved by the township planning commission.

The board voted not to sell township-owned property off Little Paw Paw Lake road to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sumwalt, for constructing a pier on the property. The Sumwalts had sought to purchase the land in a request made last July.

Craig McCrystal of Paw Paw Lake Area Cable TV Co. told the board a proposed rate hike for the service was needed because of increases in costs of materials and electronics and an increase in pole rentals. The request had been previously submitted by the firm.

The board would raise from $5.95 to $7.50 the monthly charge for users. No action was taken by the board.

Watervliet township has already approved the increase and it is pending in Coloma and Watervliet cities.

The cable television firm serves the cities and townships of Coloma and Watervliet.

Results of a recent study showed no excessive infiltration or inflow problems existing in the township waste water collection system.

Monty Sternamen, of R. W. Petrie and Associates, Benton Harbor, outlined the findings of the engineering firm to the board.

In the report, the firm stressed the importance of having the township launch a cleaning and inspection program.

According to Sternamen, the township should begin a plan during which time the township collection system will be cleaned and inspected over a five-year period.

Eckblom announced the township's November meeting would be held Wednesday, Nov. 3, instead of Monday, Nov. 1.

Decatur Okays Housing Grants

DECATUR — The Decatur village council last night approved two housing rehabilitation grants, including one for an apartment house. Approved was a $9,543 grant to Mrs. Veta McGrew for her four-apartment house at 117 East Sherwood street. Mrs. McGrew, a widow, lives in one of the apartments.

The grant money comes from an $83,000 federal community development grant the village received for housing rehabilitation from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year. A second grant for housing rehabilitation in the amount for $4,345, for Mrs. Nellie Gothard for her property at 216 West Beers street was also approved by the council.

In other areas, the council turned down a request by the Veterans of Foreign Wars that its property on North Phelps street be rezoned from agricultural to industrial to allow construction of a VFW hall. The rezoning rejection came after home owners in a nearby subdivision said construction of the hall, and bingo games the VFW is planning to hold there, would add to traffic and reduce home values.

Appraisal values of two downtown properties the village wants to buy for offstreet parking were also approved. Accepted was the $7,500 appraisal for the Lawrence Vliek property on East Delaware street, adjacent to Harding's store, and the $5,000 appraisal of the Lee Titus property on West Sherwood, just off Main street.

The council also voted to accept the low June bid of a Kalamazoo firm to reroof the fire hall and council room. The $3,340 bid is from Hoekstra Roofing of Kalamazoo. Council trustees said the Hoekstra bid was the only "solid bid" it had received on the proposed reroofing project. The council had delayed until last night in accepting the bid as it tried to get other bids on the project.

Goblin Time Set In Coloma Twp.

COLOMA — The Coloma township board last night set Halloween Trick or Treat hours in the township from 5 to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 31.

In approving the hours, Supervisor Ewald Eckblom suggested all youngsters in the township going house to house be accompanied by an adult or parent.

In other areas, the board approved rezoning 28 subdivided lots from agricultural to residential use in the Secluded Acres subdivision, off Becht road. The rezoning involving 56 acres of land had been approved by the township planning commission.

The board voted not to sell township-owned property off Little Paw Paw Lake road to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sumwalt, for constructing a pier on the property. The Sumwalts had sought to purchase the land in a request made last July.

Craig McCrystal of Paw Paw Lake Area Cable TV Co. told the board a proposed rate hike for the service was needed because of increases in costs of materials and electronics and an increase in pole rentals. The request had been previously submitted by the firm.

The boost would raise from $5.95 to $7.50 the monthly charge for users. No action was taken by the board.

Watervliet township has already approved the increase and it is pending in Coloma and Watervliet cities.

The cable television firm serves the cities and townships of Coloma and Watervliet.

Results of a recent study showed no excessive infiltration or inflow problems existing the township waste water collection system.

Monty Sternamen, of R. W. Petrie and Associates, Benton Harbor, outlined the findings of the engineering firm to the board.

In the report, the firm stressed the importance of having the township launch a cleaning and inspection program.

According to Sternamen, the township should begin a plan during which time the township collection system will be cleaned and inspected over a five-year period.

Eckblom announced the township's November meeting would be held Wednesday, Nov. 3, instead of Monday, Nov. 1.

Lee Twp. Asks About Liability

PULLMAN — The Lee township board last night instructed township Clerk Melvin Riston to find out if the township would be liable for accidents at piers built by private citizens on township-owned land around Upper Scott lake.

Riston said the subject came up when several township residents voiced complaints about piers that have been built on township land without township board approval.

Riston said there are an estimated 10 or 12 piers that have been erected and the township board is now concerned about the board's liability in case of accidents.

The board asked Riston to check with the county prosecutor about rights and responsibilities in connection with the unauthorized piers.

In another area, Riston said the township has been told by the sheriff's department that a contract to provide a deputy and a car for added township police protection will have to wait until after the November election.

The township board wants to hire a deputy to patrol township areas at night.

Township officials said that because incumbent Republican Sheriff Robert Whitcomb was defeated in the August primary, he will not enter into a contract with the township for the night patrols.

High Court Gives Go Ahead To Death Penalty

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Criminal executions, absent from the United States since 1967, are now one legal step closer to returning. But some of those who fought to restore the death penalty say the nation's gas chambers and electric chairs may remain idle for years.

The Supreme Court, in refusing Monday to reconsider its decision of last July upholding the death penalty laws of Florida, Texas and Georgia, removed a federal delay of executions in those states.

The death penalty laws of other states also are expected to meet the high court's requirements, but prosecutors discounted any possibility of mass executions of death-row prisoners in the near future.

In the meantime, the court agreed Monday to hear arguments in a different case that raises the question of whether the death penalty is constitutional for the crime of rape, as opposed to crimes where another person's life is taken.

After the court denied rehearings in the cases from Florida, Texas and Georgia, Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill predicted there will be no mass executions in his state and said appeal procedures could delay the first execution for two years. There are 39 men on death row in Texas.

James Whisenand, deputy attorney general for Florida, said the legal apparatus of issuing mandates to state courts, establishing execution procedures and presenting death warrants for approval by the governor would consume at least six months. In Georgia, where an execution set for Nov. 6 was delayed indefinitely, officials said they expected the state's sentencing courts to take time to either reset execution dates or stay executions.

Florida has 71 men on death row and Georgia has 56. Nationwide, more than 600 prisoners have been sentenced to death.

In New York, a spokesman for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund

said that organization will continue its fight to prevent executions in the three states whose laws obtained Supreme Court approval.

David Kendall said NAACP attorneys will try to prove that the death penalty, although not viewed by the court as unconstitutional, is unconstitutional because it discriminates against blacks and poor persons.

ate effect was used in past attempts to block reinstatement of capital punishment.

"I think our chances of obtaining relief for some people are good," Kendall said.

The rape case that the court agreed to review involves the case of Ehrlich Anthony Coker, who wants the court to declare his ordered execution unconstitutional because his crime did not involve the taking of a human life.

Coker was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the abduction and rape of a Waycross, Ga., woman on Sept. 2, 1974. The woman had given birth to a child three weeks before her abduction.

In other cases, the court: —Sent the death penalty cases of two convicted murderers, Charles Martin Neal and Carl Albert Collins, back to the Arkansas Supreme Court for further consideration in light of the high court's recent decision. —Agreed to hear a government appeal against lower court rulings that restricted the power of agents to search for evidence in drug cases.

—Agreed to review an Arizona Supreme Court decision upholding the censuring of two Phoenix attorneys for advertising their fees and services, a practice prohibited in Arizona, as it is in most states.

—Refused to review court-ordered busing plans affecting schools in Boston and Charlotte, N.C.

Budget Stabilization Begins Legislative Journey

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A top-level legislative search for ways to stabilize the state budget began Monday amid early SAYONARA: S. I. Hayakawa, former president of San Francisco State University, wears his famous tam and a lapel button reading "Sayonara Tunney" at a rally at the school Monday. partisan differences and warnings not to oversell the concept as a cure-all for Michigan's economic woes.

A 10-member House-Senate committee made up of leaders from both parties held a largely ceremonial first meeting to put itself on record in favor of a "budget stabilization fund" endorsed by both Gov. William Milliken and the Democratic leadership.

Under the concept, the state would put aside money during good years to use in lean years in an attempt to avoid painful cuts in services and tax increases. But Milliken and legislative Democrats already are disagreeing on the details of the proposal.

Milliken has called for two funds, one to save money for rainy days and the other — a temporary fund — to restore the state's cash balance and reverse recent budgeting "gimmicks" used to balance the books.

The general proposals outlined Monday, however, did not contain the second fund. Introduced by Democrats in the House and Senate, they included instead a method of injecting some of the surplus money into the economy when unemployment exceeded a certain figure.

The 10-member joint committee is scheduled to hold public hearings around the state on the various stabilization fund proposals, including whether to capent the idea in the constitution. Leaders said they plan to issue a recommendation for actual legislative consideration early next year.

The flurry of activity over the proposals is partly an effort to defeat "Proposal C" on the November ballot, which would limit state spending. Both Milliken and Democratic leaders both oppose the idea as too inflexible to meet state needs.

House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Detroit, and Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, said the issue will be a priority one for 1977. Crim said he supports both a law and constitutional amendment to "protect the fund."

Also serving on the committee are the two Republican leaders, Rep. Dennis Cawthorne of Manistee and Sen. Robert Davis of Gaylord.

Several committee members urged quick action while the state remembers how difficult it was during the recent recession. But two expressed doubts about the current proposals.

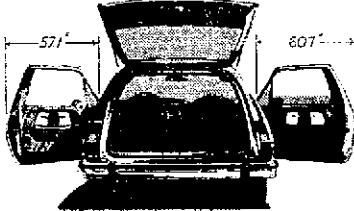

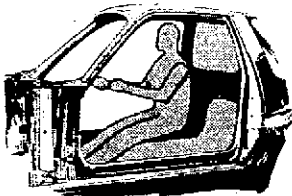

Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, questioned whether the Michigan economy would ever get so healthy the state will put money into the fund. And he said the proposed "trigger" level of 8 per cent unemployment to release money into the economy was far too high.

For 1977, there's more to an AMC.

More unique design features.

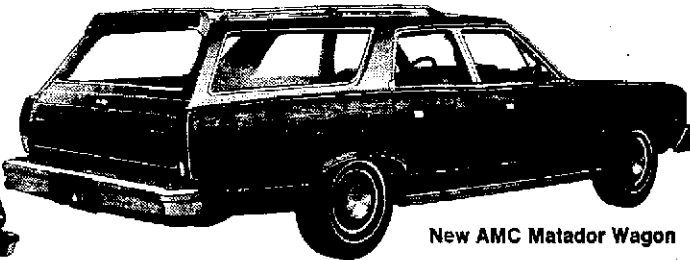

Massive B-pillar construction is unique and basic to Pacer's design, allowing for an unusually large, comfortable passenger compartment. And its wide-design cargo area maximizes width instead of length for easier loading and unloading. For quick, easy access, the Pacer Wagon's passenger door is nearly 4' wider than the driver's. And the rear hatch opens on a flat load floor. Pacer Wagon also has rack & pinion steering for precise handling; isolated suspension, which combined with wide stance, provides a smooth, stable ride; and much, much more.

New AMC Hornet Wagon

More useable accessible space.

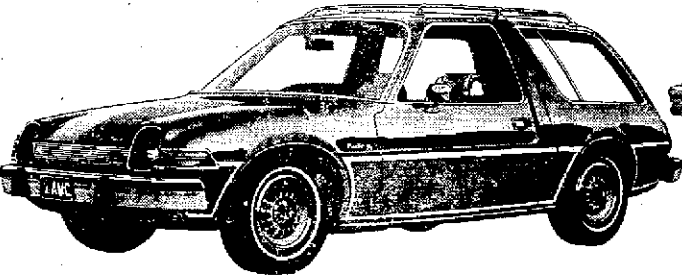

The stylish, hard-working Hornet Wagon is a great car for people and families on the go. Its roomy interior seats five in sedan-like comfort. For cargo carrying, the rear seat flips down to give you 56 cubic feet of easy-to-load space. And, for easy access, it has 4 doors plus a rear liftgate. Hornet Wagon is both stylish and practical. Its sloping rear deck adds a sporty flare to its clean, handsome lines.

New AMC Matador Wagon

More standard equipment.

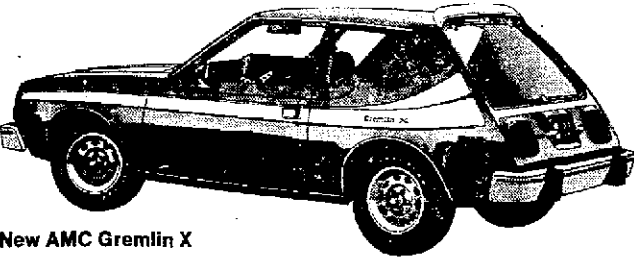

The Matador Wagon has the largest cargo area of any intermediate wagon. And at 95 cubic feet of cargo area the Matador Wagon is larger than many 1977 full size Wagons. And, for 1977, it has more standard features than ever before, including power steering, power brakes, 304 CID V-8 engine, automatic transmission, electronic ignition, dual swing tailgate, and many more!

Buchanan OKs Lot Changes

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan township board last night approved lot changes for properties along Red Bud Trail north.

It approved changing from five lots to four lots, property owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas and changing from 13 acres to 11 lots, land owned by Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Larson.

The new lot sizes conform with standards recommended by the township planning commission, township officials said.

In other areas, the township board accepted the reciprocal aid agreement between the Buchanan township fire department and other departments in the county.

The new agreement makes provisions for inter-departmental assistance in fighting fires.

The board authorized Clerk Donna Newsam to have the 22 fire alarm units in homes of firemen insured by the Buchanan and Flower Insurance agency of Kalamazoo at an annual cost of about $30.

Marion Rumbaugh of Buchanan was hired to clear snow from the driveways of the township hall and fire station for a fee of $10 for each time he plows plus an extra $5 for each time he plows the township hall parking lot.

Township officials also urged residents with complaints about a proposed township zoning proposal to attend an Oct. 18 meeting of the township planning commission.

The meeting will be the latest public hearing on the zoning ordinance and map that have drawn criticism from some township residents.

Benton Employee Injured

Benton township police said Jack Blakeman, 54, a township parks department employee, was injured while trimming trees at the Benton township park on the St. Joseph river Monday morning.

Blakeman, 2155 Berg avenue, Benton Heights, was treated for a broken collarbone, bruised ribs and cuts at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, and later released.

Police said the incident occurred about 9:30 a.m. when Blakeman was pinned between a tree and the bucket of a front end loader in which he was standing. Edgar Poe, another parks employee working nearby, told police Blakeman was pinned by a tree that was knocked over by another tree Blakeman had just cut.

Their Lifeline Is Wearing Out

SEATTLE (AP) — The North Star III, the only supply line to 70 remote Alaskan villages, is beginning to wear out, and there's no replacement in sight.

After more than 30 years of carrying general cargo and fuel along the Alaska coastline, the Seattle-based ship can be expected to survive only about four more years of voyages to the coastal villages of Eskimos, Indians and Aleuts, says the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Buchanan OKs Lot Changes

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan township board last night approved lot changes for properties along Red Bud Trail north.

It approved changing from five lots to four lots, property owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas and changing from 13 acres to 11 lots, land owned by Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Larson.

The new lot sizes conform with standards recommended by the township planning commission, township officials said.

In other areas, the township board accepted the reciprocal aid agreement between the Buchanan township fire department and other departments in the county.

The new agreement makes provisions for inter-departmental assistance in fighting fires.

The board authorized Clerk Donna Newsom to have the 22 fire alarm units in homes of firemen insured by the Burnham and Flower Insurance agency of Kalamazoo at an annual cost of about $50.

Marion Rumbaugh of Buchanan was hired to clear snow from the driveways of the township hall and fire station for a fee of $10 for each time he plows plus an extra $5 for each time he plows the township hall parking lot.

Township officials also urged residents with complaints about a proposed township zoning proposal to attend an Oct. 18 meeting of the township planning commission.

Deere-Union Talks Slated

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — Resumption of bargaining between United Auto Workers representatives and Deere & Co., struck five days ago, is likely later this week, a company spokesman says.

Some 27,000 workers set up picket lines at plants in six Midwest states last Thursday.

All-Boy Choir Under Fire

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The elementary school all-boy choir here won't be singing in this year's annual Christmas show. And a sex discrimination dispute may mean the choir won't sing again at all. The chorus group of fifth- and sixth-grade boys has been disbanded until the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare rules on whether the choir discriminates against girls, choral director Robert Zysk said Sunday. Zysk, who founded the chorus in 1974 to encourage boys to sing, said the chorus won the interest of many boys who would have been too embarrassed to sing in a coeducational group. The chorus included about 65 youngsters from several elementary schools last year, and Zysk volunteered his time so there was no cost to the town. But the auditions scheduled last spring were called off when HEW said the school system might lose federal funding by operating a discriminatory choir.

Market Takes An Upswing

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose a bit today in an upswing attributed to technical forces within the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks picked up a fractional gain in early trading, and advances slightly outnumbered declines in the overall count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market seemed to be staging a technical bounce after a week of broad declines.

Sony eased 1/4 to 9 in a 50,000 share block trade.

Gardner-Denver slipped 1/4 to 20 1/4 in a 57,900-share block transaction.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 1.91 to 977.78, extending its loss for the past five trading days to 35.15 points.

Losers held a slight edge on gainers on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index dropped .06 to 55.62.

Big Board volume hit a five-week low of 12.63 million shares with the observance of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .06 at 101.48.

Sanyo,
Whirlpool Agree On Warwick

Whirlpool Corp. and Sanyo Electric Co., Ltd., Osaka, Japan, have reached a definitive agreement for acquisition by Sanyo of controlling interest in the television business of Warwick Electronics.

Warwick is a 57-per-cent owned subsidiary of Whirlpool which announced last April it intended to get out of the unprofitable television business through sale to Sanyo.

The proposed transaction as announced by Whirlpool is that a new Warwick subsidiary, Sanyo Manufacturing Corp., will acquire Warwick's television business. The stock of the new subsidiary will then be spun off to Warwick's stockholders on a share for share basis.

Sanyo will acquire Whirlpool's stock interest in the new subsidiary for $10,325,000, or $4.16 per share. Sanyo will offer to purchase the stock interest of all other stockholders (except for the 25 per cent interest of Sears, Roebuck and Co.) in the new subsidiary for $4.43 per share, the price previously announced.

To facilitate the proposed transaction, Whirlpool will contribute a $10 million loan previously made to Warwick to Warwick's capital. This will leave Warwick without further obligation on the loan.

Sears will contribute $6 million of a $15 million loan to Warwick's capital.

Because of the proposed sale to Sanyo and assuming its consummation, Whirlpool has, for financial accounting purposes, treated Warwick's television business as a discontinued operation in its previously reported consolidated financial statements for the quarter and six months ended June 30, 1976.

Sanyo is a diversified manufacturer of electronic products, including color television receivers. The present Warwick corporation, in which Whirlpool and Sears are retaining their stock interests, will continue the electronic organ business of Warwick's subsidiary, Thomas Organ Co.

The proposed transaction remains subject to action by Warwick's stockholders at a special meeting to be called for that purpose and to appropriate governmental clearances.

Strike Cuts Ford Sales Slightly

DETROIT (AP) — Despite a three-week-old strike that has limited the supply of automobiles, Ford Motor Co. reports that sales of 1977 models are just 7 per cent below last year's levels.

Ford dealers delivered 34,105 1977 models last Friday, the first day the new models were available. That's 2,690 fewer than last year, when dealers had a normal first-day supply.

New model truck sales totaled 34,105 units, an increase of 4,112 from a year ago.

"The Thunderbird is clearly the hit of 1977," William Benton, a Ford vice president, said Monday. "Despite the... strike, Ford dealers delivered 4,294 new Thunderbirds, nearly three times the delivery of Thunderbirds on introduction day last year."

Michigan Can Lure Industry, Milliken Says

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Michigan can offset the lure of the "sun belt states" in attracting new industry, but only if it solves some of its present problems, Gov. William G. Milliken said Monday. Milliken said those problems include a need for reform of workers disability compensation programs, and blamed a lack of action on what he called the intransigence of the state Legislature. The governor spoke at a ceremony marking the manufacture of the 500,000th truck by Clark Equipment Co. here.

Lurlean Tischler New Trustee In Covert Township

COVERT — Appointment of Mrs. Gregory (Lurlean) Tischler as a Covert township trustee to replace Fred Williams was announced by the township board last night.

Mrs. Tischler, 56, was appointed to the post during a special meeting of the board Sept. 24, the same night Williams' resignation from the unit was accepted.

Jerry Sarno, supervisor, said Williams resigned the remaining two years of the four-year post because he was moving from the township.

Mr. and Mrs. Tischler are the parents of two children. They live on 75th avenue in the township.

In other areas, the board also announced purchase of a used state police car for $750, during the special Sept. 21 meeting. The 1974 auto will replace a 1975 model, used by the township police department, sold to Police Chief Robert Kelnhofer, also for $750, during the special meeting.

Sarno said no bids were sought for the 1975 model because the process had been unsuccessful in the past.

Wayne Eagleson, South Haven Community hospital administrator, appeared to discuss a one-mile property tax request on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The hospital is seeking one mill for three years to fund a $1.2 million building improvement program. The levy is being sought in the cities of Bangor and South Haven, and the townships of Arlington, Bangor, Casco, Columbia, Cover Geneva and South Haven.

In response to questions about a Van Buren countywide solid waste disposal proposal on the Nov. 2 ballot, Sarno said the state has ordered the township landfill operation closed, but the facility has remained open because no other facility was available.

All landfills found to be in violation of state regulations will be closed after Nov. 2, Sarno said. The proposal seeks approval of a $825,000 bond issue and a 1.2 mill property tax levy for construction and maintenance of a system of 10 transfer stations and a central landfill for solid waste disposal.

The board issued a mobile home permit to John W. Prewitt, for location of a mobile home on 76th street, south of 35th avenue.

New Veterans' Plaque Okayed By Bainbridge

The Bainbridge township board last night voted to purchase a Veterans Memorial plaque for the township hall building.

The blue-gray marble stone plaque, measuring 18 by 36 inches, will honor all township men and women who have served in the Armed Forces.

The plaque costing $633 will be installed in the township hall by Vance Ferguson Cemetery Memorials, Benton Harbor.

The new plaque will replace a 28-year old memorial stone which has become weatherbeaten and cracked. Plans for replacing the memorial had been under study since January.

In other areas, the board approved the purchase of a copy machine from Parrett Business Machines, Inc., Benton Harbor, for $769.

Trustee Robert Spies, a member of the township planning commission, told the board that many of the township's zoning problems stem from a lack of information among buyers.

According to Spies, before people buy property in the township they should check with either the township building inspector or a township official to learn if the land is zoned properly for their purpose.

Spies indicated many purchasers are not given the true zoning classification by potential land sellers, which eventually leads the new property owners to seek a public hearing to rezone the property properly.

The board approved sending two copies of the township Bicentennial publication to the Niles Community Library, free of charge.

The board learned a new 36-inch drainage tube was installed under Angling road, just south of Carmody road, by the Berrien county road commission for a cost to the township of $700.

The new tube replaced a former 24-inch drain which collapsed under the road last month.

The board requested estimates be sought for landscaping the grounds around the township hall before considering any action on the improvement.

Mrs. Beverly Koroch, township clerk, reported 28 new voter registrations were received between 4:30 p.m. and the 8 p.m., filing deadline last night.

Supervisor Leonard Smith Jr., announced the North Berrien Senior Citizen center, located in Coloma, will open of-

According to Smith, the daily nutrition program now held elsewhere will be moved to the center beginning Thursday, Oct. 11.

Work on renovating the former portable classroom is nearly complete, said Smith, with an open house slated at the center during the first week of November.

U.S. Has Power Over Gold Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has the power to stabilize the price of gold by declining to sell off big chunks of its holdings, according to the Treasury Department's former top gold expert.

Thomas W. Wolfe said Monday that the price of gold has bottomed out around $120 an ounce on world markets. He said the price floor based on supply and demand may increase gradually to around $130 an ounce unless the U.S. government holds a major sale that would drive the price down.

Re-Sentenced, He's Ready For Parole Now

A former St. Joseph man sentenced to 3 to 5 years in prison in 1975 was re-sentenced yesterday in Berrien Circuit court to 2 to 5 years.

Judge William S. White imposed the reduced sentence on Gary James, 21, and gave him credit for 598 days already served in confinement. A Department of Corrections spokesman said James, who has been in Ionia prison, is now eligible for parole because of good-time considerations.

James received the original prison term from Judge Julian Hughes in April, 1975, for attempted forgery — attempting to forge a check for $35 at the former Pumpnhouse lounge in St. Joseph.

James had pleaded guilty to the offense, but after he was sentenced to prison asked that he be allowed to withdraw the plea. Hughes denied that motion but granted a motion for re-sentencing.

In passing the new sentence, White noted that one of the purposes of incarceration is rehabilitation and added: "Reports show you have handled yourself very well and gotten yourself straightened out."

In another sentence, Joe L. Henderson, 23, of 1082 Highland avenue, Benton township, got 2 to 5 years in prison from Hughes for receiving and concealing stolen property — a CB radio — valued at more than $100 June 5 in Benton Harbor.

Wilbur A. Travis, 19, Niles, was placed on two years probation by White for receiving and concealing stolen property — household goods valued at more than $100 — June 24 in Niles.

Harry D. Bonney, 35, of Three Oaks, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with intent to murder Thomas Payne with a shotgun Aug. 22 in Weesaw township.

Willie Johnson, 29, and Lionell Johnson, 30, both of 782 Colfax, Benton Harbor, each pleaded innocent to two counts of assault with a deadly weapon — a revolver — against Duane Jones and John Doolittle Sept. 2 in Benton Harbor.

Charles Perry, 36, of 10116 Pavone street, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of second offense possession of heroin Sept. 4 in Benton Harbor.
